YESTERDAY'S CLOSE.

THE DOLLAR WAS TRADING QUIETLY TODAY AROUND 1.86 MARKS AND 134 YEN.

"THE DOLLAR/DEUTSCHEMARK RATE IS BANG IN THE LOUVRE RANGE NOW, " LAWSON SAID. "WE ARE BACK IN THE LOUVRE RANGE AND HAVE BEEN FOR SOME TIME.

"AS FAR AS THE DOLLAR/YEN RANGE IS CONCERNED, THE YEN IS NOW HIGHER BUT I THINK THAT IS WHOLLY APPROPRIATE WITH THE JAPANESE. ECONOMY'S PERFORMANCE," HE SAID. 20-SEF-1217. MONOS1 MONJ

LAWSON COMFORTABLE WITH STERLING EXCHANCE RATE -PART 3 NREQ HE SAID HE WAS NOT WORRIED ABOUT THE YEN'S STRENGTH. "I THINK, TOO, THE GERMANS FOR THEIR PART AT THE TIME OF THE LOUVRE

WOULD HAVE LIKED TO HAVE SEEN THE YEN A LITTLE BIT HIGHER (AGAINST THE MARK) SO I THINK THERE IS GENERAL SATISFACTION." SPEAKING TO JOURNALISTS BEFORE LEAVING THIS WEEK FOR THE SERIES OF INTERNATIONAL MONETARY MEETINGS IN WEST BERLIN, LAWSON SAID INTERNATIONAL ECONOMIC COOPERATION WAS WORKING VERY WELL: THE RECENT WAVE OF INTEREST NATE INCREASES HAD BEEN WHOLLY APPROPRIATE IN BOTH NATIONAL AND INTERNATIONAL TERMS, HE SAID.

CBOPERATION," HE SAID. ASKED ABOUT WEST GERMANY, LAWSON NOTED ITS ECONOMY HAD BEEN PERFORMING BETTER THAN EXPECTED, LARGELY BECAUSE OF THE GROWTH IN THE WORLD ECONOMY.

"BUT I STILL THINK THEY HAVE DONE LESS THAN THEY SHUULD HAVE ON THE SUPPLY SIDE," HE ADDED.

HE SAID BRITISH MO NARROW MONEY SUPPLY MEASURE, WHICH NOSE 1.0 PCT IN AUGUST AND IS CURRENTLY RUNNING AT AN ANNUAL 7.8 PCT INCREASE COMPARED WITH THE ONE TO FIVE PCT TARGET KANGE, DID NOT REFLECT THE RECENT INTEREST RATE TIGHTENING. 20-SEP-1251. MON122 MONK CONTINUED FROM - NRBQ

I REALLY DON'T THINK IT IS DENSIBLE TO PLACE ANY SIGNIFICANCE ON A SINGLE MONTH'S FIGURES: WE NEED TO SEE A RUN OF FIGURES, " HE ADDED.

LAWSON SAID THE EFFECTS OF BRITAIN'S TIGHTER MONETARY POLICY WILL BE SEEN IN STAGES, WITH THE HOUSING MARKET PROBABLY THE FIRST TO REACT AND THE CURRENT ACCOUNT PROBABLY THE LAST.

HE SAID BRITAIN'S RISING INFLATION RATE WAS LARGELY DUE TO THE SPEED OF THE COUNTRY'S GROWTH BUT HAD BEEN AGGRAVATED BY RISING PAY AWARDS. 20-SEP-1319. MON157 MONL CONTINUED FROM - NRBR

DISCUSSIONS ON AN IMF QUOTA INCREASE WOULD LIKELY BE DEFERRED TO THE SPRING MEETING WHEN THE NEW U.S. ADMINISTRATION IS IN PLACE AND THE PROPOSAL FOR A GENERAL CAPITAL INCREASE FOR THE WORLD BANK HAS PASSED THROUGH CONGRESS, HE SAID.

"AS FAR AS THE DULLAR/YEN RANGE IS CONCERNED, THE YEN IS NOW HIGHER BUT I THINK THAT IS WHOLLY APPROPRIATE WITH THE JAPANESE ECONOMY'S PERFORMANCE," HE SAID.

LAWSON COMFORTABLE WITH STERLING EXCHANGE RATE -PART 3 NRBQ HE SAID HE WAS NOT WORRIED ABOUT THE YEN'S STRENGTH. "I THINK, TOO, THE GERMANS FOR THEIR PART AT THE TIME OF THE LOUVRE WOULD HAVE LIKED TO HAVE SEEN THE YEN A LITTLE BIT HIGHER (AGAINST THE MARK) SO I THINK THERE IS GENERAL SATISFACTION."

SERIES OF INTERNATIONAL ECONOMIC COOPERATION WAS WORKING VERY WELL.

THE RECENT WAVE OF INTEREST RATE INCREASES HAD BEEN WHOLLY APPROPRIATE IN BOTH NATIONAL AND INTERNATIONAL TERMS, HE SAID.

SEPTEMBER END MONTH RESERVES FIGURE

We need to decide shortly what figure to publish for the underlying reserves change in September. Wednesday 28 is the last dealing day this month.

2. As of today, the reserves would show a true underlying fall of around $500 million in September. We have, however, to allow for the possibility of some further intervention in support of sterling on publication of the UK trade figures next Tuesday.

3. We see some advantage in publishing a modest underlying fall this month, not least because it will be taken as evidence of the authorities' willingness to support the exchange rate at the beginning of the month. We therefore suggest it would be sensible to plan on the basis that we publish an underlying fall of around $250 million on 4 October but that we accept the possibility that the figure might be slightly larger, if we need to intervene in the aftermath of the trade figures.

ALL COUNTRIES HAD TO FLAY THEIR PART IN THE PROCEES. THE UNITED STATES SHOULD MAKE USE OF AN OPPORTUNITY TO REDUCE 118 BUDGET DEFICIT, HE SAID.

CAMDESSUS ALSO STRESSED THE INTERDEPENDENCE OF ALL MALOR INDUSTRIAL COUNTRIES AND THE NEED FOR THEM. TO TAKE THE CONCERNS OF OTHERS INTO CONSIDERATION. IMF CHIEF NOT UNDULY CONCERNED BY DOLLAR RISE -PART 3 NREO CAMDESSUS EXPRESSED SATISFACTION WITH CURRENT ECONOMIC GROWTH IN THE INDUSTRIALISED WORLD, DESPITE SIGNS, MOST RECENTLY FROM THE UNITED STATES, THAT RATES OF EXPANSION MAY BE SLOWER THAN PREVIOUSLY EXPECTED.

HE PREDICTED FOUR PCT GROWTH IN THE INDUSTRIAL COUNTRIES THIS YEAR AND A SLIGHT SLOWDOWN IN 1989. THE MOST RECENT INDICATIONS OF SLOWDOWN WERE NOT SUFFICIENT TO MAKE THE IMP ADJUST ITS FORECASTS.

CURRENT ECONOMIC EXPANSION HAD NOT BEEN ACCOMPANIED BY INFLATIONARY EXPECTATIONS, HE ADDED.

"I THINK THIS HAS TO BE CONSIDERED, HAS TO FIND ITS PLACE IN THE MENU." IT WAS UP TO COMMERCIAL BANKS TO CONSIDER HOU THEY COULD BEST MAKE A CONTRIBUTION TO THE FINANCING PACKAGES OF DEBTOR COUNTRIES.

DEBT FORGIVENESS BY GOVERNMENT CREDITORS OWED MONEY BY THE WORLD'S VERY PODREST COUNTRIES WAS AN EASIER MATTER TO DECIDE. HE SAID. IN THESE CASES, CAMDESSUS HAD "NO DOURT THAT DEBT & FORGIVENESS IS IN ORDER". 22-SEP-1129. MON629 MONM CONTINUED FROM - NREY

MARKET COMMENT

GILTS had quite a good day, with more switching longer reported.Prices actually opened easier in the exchange rate, with losses of 1/8 through the list, but they soon recovered and continued better for the rest of the day, disregarding the setback in US bonds.Prices closed with shorts up 1/8, mediums 1/4 and longs 3/8.

INDEXED LINKED overcame some hesitation to close 1/4 up.

EQUITIES were dominated by special situations with little net movement ahead of next week's trade figures. CGL dived 65 pence and now stand below Minorco's offer price.Lonrho's good run continued on news of possible management buyout or asset sales as a springboard to hamper an unwelcome takeover bid.

Thank you for sending me the details of your UK Ecu Treasury Bills programme, which is of great interest to me.

As you know, the Ecu, being nowhere a domestic currency, has suffered somewhat from the lack of short term debt instruments backed by a government of one of the Community countries around which an efficient money market could develop. Your programme will go a long way towards redressing this situation and is therefore particularly welcome.

If the UK programme is a success, and I have little doubt that it will prove so, it will give the Ecu the opportunity to develop into a fully-fledged intervention and reserve currency.

I share your pleasure at the evidence of the strong Community involvement in the institutions that have undertaken to provide active support at the initial series of tenders and to act as market-makers in the Bills.

I hope that your initial experience with the Ecu Treasury Bills will be satisfactory enough for you to continue them in the future, and for others to follow your example.

Sencerely yours Jacques DELORS

WITH THE U.K. GOVERNMENT RUNNING A LARGE BUDGET SURPLUS AND THEREFORE NOT ISSUING MANY NEW BONDS, THE MOVE WILL ALLOW OVERSEAS SOVEREIGN BORROWERS TO PROVIDE MORE LIQUIDITY TO THE STERLING BOND MARKET, BANKERS SAID.

THE LIMIT HAD BEEN INTENDED TO KEEP SUCH TOP-QUALITY BORROWERS FROM LURING FUNDS AWAY FROM U.K. CORPORATE BORROWERS, GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS SAID. "THE FEELING IS THAT NOW THE MARKET IS RESILIENT ENOUGH TO ACCOMMODATE ALL OF THIS," ONE NOTED. 26-SEP-1411. MON617 MONJ CONTINUED FROM - NRDT ENDS

US FINANCIAL DEVELOPMENTS

The latest weekly summary of developments in monetary policy and the financial markets is attached.

International Division Group 1, HO-3 27 September 1988

R T Thorne (4385)

MMARY: 19-25 SEPTEMBER

- Last Saturday's G7 meeting resulted in no new policy initiatives, but will have satisfied US participants as they try to keep markets calm in the run-up to the Presidential election. The meeting's communique contained a thinly veiled call for the US to tackle its budget deficit after the election.
- The communique reaffirmed the commitment to exchange rate stability, but omitted a more detailed remark contained in the previous two summit communiques about exchange rate fluctuations. It was apparently felt that the remark had been misunderstood by some in the market after the Toronto summit as implying that the authorities would be content with a dollar rise. Officials emphasised that there was no policy significance in the changed language. Nevertheless the omission still raised a little speculation that there was a weakening in resolve to stabilise the dollar.
- US official reserves rose $3.90 bn to $47.78 bn in August, indicating heavy intervention.
- The FOMC is thought to have left policy unchanged at its meeting last week, but retained a predisposition towards tightening rather than easing in future. The minutes of the August meeting show that the Fed took a similar position then, but with one member dissenting on the side of tighter policy. The FOMC appears to be ready to place a little more emphasis on monetary aggregates when setting policy in future, following the suggestion of several members.
- Interest rates rose by about 5 bp last week in quiet trading before the G7 meeting, following a higher than expected durable goods orders figure and amid concern about the market's ability to absorb this week's note auctions.
- Discount window borrowing rose sharply last week as a seasonal increase in Treasury balances at the Fed exerted pressure on reserves. Analysts saw no indication in the figures of a change in Fed policy.

(a) G7 meeting

1 As expected, the G7 meeting in West Berlin last Saturday resulted in no new policy initiatives and left exchange rate policy unchanged. This outcome will have satisfied the US participants, as their main aim was to keep policy stable to try to retain the current calmness in financial markets in the run-up to the Presidential election. Newly-appointed Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady apparently kept a low profile at the meeting, letting the more experienced Fed Chairman Greenspan take the lead for the US.

2 The G7 communique said that the meeting participants "re-affirmed their commitments to pursue policies that will maintain exchange rate stability and to continue to co-operate closely on foreign exchange markets". However, the communique omitted the remark made after the last two summits that "either excessive fluctuation of exchange rates, a further decline of the dollar, or a rise in the dollar to an extent that becomes destabilising to the adjustment process, could be counterproductive". The omission apparently did not indicate any change in policy, but when the remark had been repeated at last June's Toronto summit, with its implication that a dollar rise was still regarded as less serious than a dollar fall despite the dollar's firmness already during the year, it had been misinterpreted by some in the market as a sign that the authorities would be content with a dollar rise. To avoid a similar misinterpretation, the statement was left out this time.

3 Nevertheless, the omission, combined with a failure to replace the remark with any similar remark warning against excessive exchange rate fluctuations, apparently raised concern among some officials that the market might see in this some weakening of resolve to stabilise the dollar. The strength of the dollar on Monday may have been partly due to such a perception. However, the obvious alternative to omission, namely a remark expressing equal concern about a dollar rise or fall, might itself have been interpreted by the market as a definite change in Fed policy and provoked a dollar fall, and this possibility may have influenced officials to leave out the statement altogether. One official also said that the communique was vaguely worded to hide differences between countries. Following the meeting, officials from the US and from other countries were at pains to point out that there was no policy significance in the changed language and that their earlier exchange rate stabilisation agreement was unchanged.

4 There is widespread market speculation that the G7's range for the $/DM rate currently has an upper bound of DM 1.90 and US officials reportedly indicated that such speculation was reasonable. Intervention tactics are said to have been discussed in private talks at the weekend between Greenspan and Bundesbank President Poehl. Both countries were said to be standing by to resist further upward pressure on the dollar and were apparently part of the joint intervention on Monday after the rate rose to DM 1.89 at one point.

5 Apart from its comments on the exchange rate, the G7 communique presented a buoyant picture of the world economy, with economic growth and investment strong, and little evidence of an inflationary threat following the recent tightening by several countries, although "continued vigilance is required" on that score. In a thinly veiled reminder that the US will need to confront its budget deficit problem after the election, the communique said that "where external and budget deficits are still large the strengthening of the fiscal position will be essential". Surplus countries were urged to encourage strong domestic demand.

(b) Official reserves

6 US official reserves rose $3.90 bn to $47.78 bn in August, following a $2.85 bn rise in July. The foreign currency component of reserves rose by $3.96 bn, an almost identical figure to the total rise, and now stands at $18.02 bn, thus indicating heavy intervention, especially as the dollar's slight appreciation during the month will have tended to reduce the dollar value of those reserves.

(c) Domestic policy

7 The FOMC is thought to have left its policy stance unchanged at its meeting last week, as economic data showed signs of slower GNP growth in August, and committee members may well wish to hold policy steady for a while while the effects of the tightening earlier this year work their way through the economy. Nevertheless, the Fed is likely to have indicated again a predisposition towards tightening rather than easing in the light of future developments.

8 The minutes of the previous FOMC meeting on 16 August were released last week and as expected show that it voted to maintain steady policy, but with a predisposition towards tightening rather than easing. Cleveland Fed President Lee Hoskins dissented, though, favouring instead an immediate tightening. One reason given for holding policy steady was that the financial markets did not appear to have fully adjusted to the discount rate rise on 9 August, and it was also felt that further tightening might unsettle the markets or push the dollar up to an undesirable level.

9 At the August meeting, several members felt that the monetary aggregates should be given more weight in policy decisions, although the FOMC decided that more time was still needed to assess M2's reliability as an indicator and that economic indicators of inflationary pressures should still be the most important factor in decisions. Accordingly, the policy directive issued to the New York Fed at the end of the meeting moved "the behaviour of the monetary aggregates" above "developments in foreign exchange and domestic financial markets" in the list of factors to be taken account of in setting policy in the inter-meeting period.

MONEY

10 M3 rose by a moderate 0.1% and M2 rose even more modestly in the week ending 12 September, following similarly small changes in the week before. M1 fell by 0.1%, despite a consensus market forecast of a 0.2% rise. M2 and M3 thus remain well within their target ranges, having experienced slow growth over the last few months, partly because of the effects of the rise in interest rates over that period.

RESERVES

11 Average adjustment and seasonal borrowing from the Fed's discount window rose $688 mn to $1,240 mn in the week ending The sharp increase in borrowing seems to have been 21 September. due to technical factors rather than any tightening of policy. Indeed, policy is widely thought to be being held steady at present. Reserves had been drained last week by an increase in Treasury balances at the Fed to an average of $9 bn over the week, compared with $5 bn the week before. The Fed aggressively added reserves throughout the week via system repos on almost every day, and by the end of the week no less than $17 bn in system repos was outstanding. However, a large net miss in their reserve projections on the Friday, when they underestimated Treasury balances, will have added to the reserve pressures. Treasury balances on Wednesday jumped to $19 bn, causing discount window borrowing of $5.3 bn and pushing the Fed funds rate up to 20% at one point.

12 Despite the heavy borrowing, the Fed funds rate averaged 8.17% during the week, very close to the perceived Fed target of 8 1/8%. The Fed's discount window borrowing target is seen as being $600 mn.

MARKET DEVELOPMENTS (19-23 September)

13 Treasury interest rates rose by about 5bp last week in quiet trading last week as traders waited for the G7 meeting and, a little further in the future, the September employment figures to be released next week. The higher than expected rise in durable goods orders in August and concern about the need for the market to absorb this week's note auctions contributed to the rise. Weakness in gold and other commodity prices partially counterbalanced these factors. The dollar was fairly stable over the week as dealers generally kept square positions, but it briefly tested DM 1.88 and was pushed back by mild Fed intervention.

MIDLAND'S MCMAHON SEES FALLS IN DOLLAR, POUND NRCS WEST BERLIN, SEPT 28, REUTER - BOTH THE DOLLAR AND THE POUND WILL HAVE TO FALL TO REDUCE THE U.S. AND BRITISH TRADE DEFICITS, MIDLAND BANK PLC CHAIRMAN KIT MCMAHON SAID.

"THE RECENT RISE IN THE DOLLAR SEEMS TO ME TO HAVE BEEN QUITE IRRATIONAL AND WILL HAVE TO BE REVERSED," MCMAHON TOLD REPORTERS. THE POUND, TOO, OVER TIME, WOULD HAVE TO MOVE LOWER AGAINST THE MARK. "IT'S HARD TO IMAGINE HOW WE CAN AVOID A CONSIDERABLE REDUCTION IN THE STERLING EXCHANGE RATE."

MCMAHON SAID IT WAS "EXTREMELY MISGUIDED" OF BRITISH CHANCELLOR OF THE EXCHEQUER NIGEL LAWSON TO SAY THAT FISCAL POLICY HAS NO ROLE TO PLAY IN REGULATING DOMESTIC DEMAND. 28-SEP-0809. MON002 MONE

MIDLAND'S MCMAHON SEES FALLS IN DOLLAR, POUND -PART 2 NRCT MCMAHON SAID INFLATION WAS OBVIOUSLY A CONCERN IN BRITAIN. MORE SO THAN IN THE U.S., AND A TIGHTER FISCAL POLICY MIGHT BE NEEDED NEXT YEAR. BUT HE SAID IT WAS REASONABLE FOR LAWSON TO TRY TO WAIT A FEW MONTHS TO SEE IF THE ECONOMY COOLS DOWN IN RESPONSE TO THE RECENT INCREASES IN INTEREST RATES.

MCMAHON SAID HE WAS NOT VERY ENCOURAGED BY THE ECONOMIC PROGRESS THAT ARGENTINA HAS MADE IN THE PAST YEAR, BUT HE DEFENDED THE WORLD BANK FOR MAKING NEW LOANS EVEN THOUGH BUENOS AIRES HAS NO IMF PROGRAMME YET. IT WAS CHURLISH FOR PEOPLE TO CRITICIZE THE WORLD BANK FOR ACTING SWIFTLY AFTER URGING IT FOR SO LONG TO BE MORE ACTIVE IN TACKLING THE DEBT CRISIS, HE SAID. 28-SEP-0841. MIDLAND'S MCMAHON SEES FALLS IN DOLLAR, POUND -PART 3 NRCU COMMERCIAL BANKS SHOULD LEND MORE TO DEVELOPING COUNTRIES IF THERE ARE IMAGINATIVE FINANCING MENUS AS IS THE CASE WITH BRAZIL'S CURRENT PACKAGE. BUT IN THE LONGER TERM, BANKS HAD NO ROLE TO PLAY IN PROVIDING DEVELOPMENT FINANCE, MCMAHON SAID.

MIDLAND BANK MIGHT LEND MONEY TO SOVIET AND CHINESE STATE ENTITIES, BUT IN GENERAL IT WAS NO LONGER IN THE BUSINESS OF BALANCE-OF-PAYMENTS LENDING TO SOVEREIGN BORROWERS, HE SAID.

JACQUES DE MANDAT-GRANCEY, A SENIOR MIDLAND OFFICIAL RESPONSIBLE FOR THE BANK'S LATIN AMERICAN PORTFOLIO, SAID THE BANK'S CURRENT EXPOSURE TO THE REGION OF 7.2 BILLION DLRS WOULD BE REDUCED BY 200 MLN STG, OR ABOUT 340 MLN DLRS, BY END-1989. 28-SEP-0846. MON045 MONE CONTINUED FROM - NRCT ENDS

UK ECU Treasury Bill programme

In preparation for the Committee's meeting on 2 November it would greatly help the Committee if they could be sent a note on the background to the reasons for the decision announced on 2 August that a new programme of issues of UK Government ECU Treasury Bills would be launched this autumn.

CONTRIBUTION TO LETTER FROM PRIME MINISTER TO SIR JOHN EGAN

You asked us to update the exchange rate reference in the Prime Minister's reply to Sir John Egan, since the Department of Employment had been sitting on their contribution since May!

2. Very fortunately, the rate of sterling against the dollar has fallen since Sir John wrote on 11 May. I attach a draft, although I feel there is now a strong case for allowing Sir John to assume his letter had been lost in the post (unless No.10 have dutifully been sending interim replies). There must otherwise be a risk that he will believe we have deliberately held back our reply until the exchange rate looked more favourable.

mon Ch / This is instating but unavoidable. Paul Gray does want to reply, I have confirmed. Are you happy with the line? youngour [It is interesting to note that it is not just the treasury that hap problems getting replies from D. Employment. 7

CONTRIBUTION TO LETTER FROM PRIME MINISTER TO SIR JOHN EGAN

"You also commented on the problem you faced because of the rise in sterling's exchange rate, particularly against the dollar. Since you wrote, sterling has, in fact, fallen against the dollar to its current level of [below $1.70]. However, I do, of course, recognise your concerns. The defeat of inflation must remain our overriding objective, as I am sure you will agree. But subject to that, we shall continue to aim for exchange rate stability, as we and the other major industrial countries committed ourselves to do last week in Berlin."

ECU TREASURY BILLS : FIRST TENDER

We need to announce the details and size of the ll October ecu bill tender on Tuesday 4 October.

2. The attached letter from Ian Plenderleith sets out the Bank's proposals, with which I agree. The main points are :

announcement at 2.30 on Tuesday 4 October size of issue : ecu 800m - 1 billion, divided 1 : 2 : 1 between 1 month, 3 month and six month bills

- target highest accepted yield, 10-20 basis points below LIBID.

3. It will be quite convenient to have the announcement on the same day as the September reserves press notice. Commentators will be able to write about the two events together.

4. The key question is about size of tender/target yield. I accept the Bank's general approach : we should not be trying at the first tender, by restricting its size, to get the very keenest terms. Bills would then be likely to be locked away by a handful of central banks, inhibiting the development of a secondary market; and we would find the terms at subsequent tenders began to deteriorate. We want to get a healthy market going that we can continue to tap in future.

5. I also accept the argument that it is better if anything to err a little on the high side in the size of the first tender, since the Bank can always hold bills back for perfectly explicable reasons. 800m - 1 billion may seem a little high against a target initial total size of the programme of 1-2 billion; but subsequent monthly tenders will be smaller than the first one, and partly used to refinance maturing bills.

6. I think the Bank may be being just a little unambitious in their target of 10-20 basis points under LIBID. Although it is a different market, we usually do rather better (up to 50 basis points below LIBID) in sterling Treasury bills. I would certainly wish to discourage them from accepting bids at yields above 15 basis points below LIBID. But the only point to be announced on Tuesday is the size of the tender, and I recommend you give authority for a figure (to be decided at the last minute) in the range ecu 800m - 1 billion.

UK GOVERNMENT ECU TREASURY BILLS: AMOUNTS AND MATURITIES FOR THE FIRST TENDER

1 The first tender is to be held on Tuesday 11 October. Under the terms of the Information Memorandum, we have to announce the amounts and maturities of the Bills to be offered at least four business days in advance of the tender date, by publication in the FT and on Reuters and Telerate.

Timing

2 This means that the announcement must appear in the FT on Wednesday 5 October at the latest; and since we could not sensibly give such market sensitive details to the FT the previous evening without first having announced them publicly, the effective deadline is Tuesday 4 October. We see no reason to bring the announcement forward before that date, and we therefore propose that the announcement be made at 2.30 pm on Tuesday 4 October.

SECRET

3 That is also the day of the monthly reserves announcement; but in terms of presentation in the next day's papers, the two announcements complement each other quite well and there seems no reason deliberately to separate them. It may also be that the DTI will be making an announcement on BP/KIO that day, but we do not see that that necessitates bringing forward the ECU Bill announcement.

Maturities

We have had several rounds of discussions with the market 4 makers, both en bloc and individually, to get feedback from them on the developing interest they see in the Bills. The picture that emerges so far is that there is evidence of interest in Bills at all three maturities - one, three and six months - but with greater interest in 3-month Bills than for the other two maturities. The reason for this is that the market perceives somewhat greater interest-rate risk in the 6-month Bills than in the 3-month area; and 1-month Bills are felt likely to attract rather less demand than the other maturities from investors who may be reluctant to bid outright in the first tender but come into the market thereafter, because by then the 1-month Bills will be relatively close to maturity.

5 Given this background, we think it sensible to take the opportunity to test the water in all three areas at the outset, and we therefore propose that we should offer Bills at all three maturities. But reflecting the expected pattern of demand indicated above, we would propose a larger offering at three months than at the other two maturities.

Amounts

6 The broad consensus that we get from our soundings to date is that the Bills are expected to trade at around LIBID minus 1/18th per cent, but that there will be some investors - eg some central banks - who may be prepared to pay a higher price (take a lower yield) for the advantage of a prime sovereign name. However, there is also a general feeling that many investors may hang back from the initial tender because of the difficulty of deciding at what price to bid in the absence of any secondary market indications; such investors are expected instead to look to buy Bills from the market makers in the secondary market once a price level has been established.

Against this background we think that the ideal outcome for 7 HMG in terms of developing broad interest in the programme over a period of time would be a tender result in which the stop-rate (highest accepted yield) was around LIBID minus 10-20 bp. An outcome on these lines would be likely to generate additional demand in the secondary market as the price became established, possibly taking the Bills to a small premium over the initial tender price and thus encouraging continuing demand from a wider range of investors both in the secondary market and at future The alternative strategy of aiming to satisfy only the tenders. smaller pool of investors prepared to bid up at tighter yields would have the disadvantage of confining the Bills to a much narrower range of investors with little secondary market activity, which we think would be counter-productive to our longer run aim of developing the market.

8 If we take the broader market strategy suggested above, we think that, on the indications we have so far, we would need to offer somewhat more than the ECU 500 million indicated at the time of the Chancellor's first announcement. We think that the appropriate amount would be in the range of ECU 800-1,000 million, and we would like to reserve making a final recommendation within that range until Monday of next week, 3 October. In terms of specific maturities, we would propose that half of the total should be offered at three months, with the remainder split equally between the other two maturities. Thus we would propose either 800, split into 200 at 1 month/400 at 3 months/200 at 6 months, or 1,000 split 250/500/250.

9 An offering on these lines would, we think, give us the best chance of achieving our preferred outcome above, and should attract sizeable demand from market makers positioning themselves to supply investors who want the paper but may be hesitant about bidding at the first tender. In suggesting the increased amount, we recognise the downside risk that demand could prove less than Aspected. In that event we would plan to under-allot at the tender, taking Bills ourselves, so that we would then be in a position to sell into the secondary market to satisfy subsequent demand. Provided we did not have to take paper on an excessive scale, we think that under-allotting in this way would not convey any sense of failure, but on the contrary would be seen to be positively helpful to the development of broader interest in the programme; we would of course take steps to get this message across. At the other extreme, there is always the risk that demand may so exceed expectations that we are able to allot only the highest bids; that, as indicated above, is not our preferred approach, but it is of course an outcome that we could live with with equanimity if it happened.

10 If you are content with these proposals, it would be helpful if you could seek contingent authority for us to announce next Tuesday on the basis suggested above, subject to a final decision on the amounts after the weekend. If you have any questions, please do not hesitate to be in touch.

You asked for information on the restrictions on overseas investment firms seeking to do business in the UK. (Minute to PS/Chancellor 9 August). This arose from discussions on Barlow Clowes in which questions were raised about the protection available to UK investors against approaches from unregulated overseas companies such as Barlow Clowes International (BCI).

2. This minute explains the current rules under the Financial Services Act (FSA), and highlights changes made from the earlier Prevention of Fraud (Investments) Act (PF(I)A) regime. It does not consider in any detail the position of BCI under that regime or whether rules were broken in this particular case.

Summary

3. The broad position under the FSA is that overseas firms must seek authorisation to do investment business in the UK. An overseas firm which is authorised is bound by exactly the same rules as a UK firm regarding advertising, cold calling etc. An overseas firm which is not authorised can only do business with UK residents through a UK authorised intermediary, with unsolicited clients who approach the firm directly, or with professional and business investors. Under the PF(I)A regime a license was required to deal in securities in the UK, and it was an offence fraudulently to induce an investment, but the scope of the Act was more limited, there was no statutory right to sue intermediaries and no compensation scheme. Overseas firms were required to apply for licences but there was room for argument about what constituted dealing in securities. Inevitably the full story is more complicated. Details are set out below.

Authorisation

4. The first distinction to draw is between overseas firms which are authorised to do investment business in the UK and those which are not. The basic principle of the FSA is that it is a criminal offence to carry on investment business in the UK unless 'authorised' or 'exempted' (S.3).

5. There are a number of routes to authorisation, the main ones being authorisation by SIB or membership of a SRO. The procedures which an overseas firm must follow in seeking authorisation will depend on its circumstances. A UK subsidiary of an overseas firm must apply as if it were a UK firm. A UK branch of an overseas firm may take a short cut to authorisation if it can provide evidence that it has been authorised by a supervisor in its home country with which the SIB has negotiated a 'lead regulation arrangement'. (Such arrangements have now been concluded on securities business with all relevant countries and on banking business with some half dozen major countries). An overseas firm without an office of the UK (known in the Act as an 'overseas person') can also apply for authorisation. Where business of a branch or 'overseas person' is regarded as high risk the SRO may require incorporation in the UK as a condition of authorisation.

6. There is also provision in the FSA for businesses established in other EC member states, where there is investor protection equivalent to our own, to be authorised by their home countries to do business in the UK on a 'services' basis - that is, without having on office here. A firm would require the approval of the SIB to follow this route.

Rules for businesses which are Authorised

7. A firm - whether UK based or overseas - which is authorised to do investment business in the UK must do so within the terms of the Act and the rules laid down by the body which has given authorisation. In particular it must adhere to conduct of business rules which include detailed rules on advertising and cold calling. No distinction is drawn in the rules between authorised firms which are UK based, overseas firms with UK offices, or overseas persons.

8. Advertisements must also conform to the general requirements of the Misleading Advertisements Regulations and (voluntary) codes set down by the Advertising Standards Authority and the Independent Broadcasting Authority (for TV and Radio adverts).

Businesses which are not Authorised

9. An overseas firm which is not authorised to do business in the UK can only conduct or solicit investment business with UK residents in certain limited circumstances. (Such firms are governed by the 'overseas persons' regime set out in Part IV of Schedule 1 of the Act).

An unauthorised overseas firm may:

i. deal in investments in the UK (ie buy, sell etc) or arrange deals in investments with or through an authorised or exempt person in the UK, such as an authorised intermediary.

ii. do business which has not been solicited in any way. For example a UK resident may hear about an investment opportunity overseas through foreign newspapers or other sources and may contact the firm directly.

iii. solicit business if it can do so without breaking the law on advertising and cold calling (set out in Sections 56 and 57 of the FSA). There are broadly three ways it can do this. The first is by placing an advertisement which has been approved by an authorised person. SIB rules (rule 7.04) only allow such advertisements to be approved when they are 'image' or 'short form' advertisements within strict definitions, or where they are advertising regulated collective investment schemes or insurance business which has been approved through some other channel. The second exception is for advertising to professional and business clients who are considered to be 'sufficiently expert to understand the risks involved'. The third is for advertising to people who have been clients of the firm while living outside the UK and are now only temporarily resident in the UK. (The latter exceptions are set out in SI 1988 No.316)

What does this mean in practice?

10. A good way of testing the practical application of these rules is to consider a number of possible cases.

What is there to stop a UK authorised intermediary a. putting clients' money into a dodgy unauthorised overseas firm? The intermediary is bound by the conduct of business rules of the SRO by which it is authorised (probably FIMBRA). These rules must match those laid down by the SIB, which inter alia require the firm to warn investors before placing money with an unauthorised or overseas firm that, by doing so, they will lose the protection of the Act (Rule 2.18). The intermediary is also required to give 'best advice'/to consider the suitability of any investment for the investor concerned. High risk overseas investments could fall foul of both these provisions. A firm which breaks the rules can be sued (under Section 62 of the Act).

b. What happens if an unauthorised overseas firm just ignore all the rules and sends mailings to potential UK

What is there to stop an unauthorised overseas firm c. persuading a UK authorised intermediary to approve an advertisement designed to solicit business? The law allows this, but the SIB rules impose strict limits on what such an advertisement can say. One form allowed is 'image' an advertisement which can only promote public awareness of a firm, describe its services, commend the firm but not the services and offer to supply further information. The second form allowed is a 'short form advertisement' which allows details of the firm's address and phone number and names of investments. (This is primarily intended to cover 'tombstones' recording issues which have already been made). These rules would not allow any material in advertisement designed to promote investments and investors would have to seek further information from an overseas address in response to such an advertisement.

The PF(I)A Regime

11. The Prevention of Fraud (Investments) Act 1958 made it a criminal offence to deal in securities without a license from the DTI. The Act was in force until the FSA came into operation at the end of April of this year. Licensed dealers were bound by statutory conduct of business rules which included restrictions on advertising and cold calling. Additional provisions in the Act (Sections 13 and 14) made it an offence fraudulently to induce people to invest money, and to distribute circulars which might invite people to do so. Overseas firms wishing to do business in the UK were covered by these provisions. But the whole PF(I)Act system had become inadequate and the enforcement paras and machinery were insufficient.

12. The FSA has strengthened the PF(I)A regime in a number of respects. The procedures for authorisation have been clarified and transferred from the DTI to the SIB, SROs and other bodies. The coverage has been widened through a comprehensive definition of investment business. The conduct of business rules have been greatly extended and clarified. And a variety of other protections for investors have been introduced including a compensation fund.

Assessment

13. The new regime provided by the FSA and associated rule booksprovides a substantial improvement in investor protection; clarifies what can and cannot be done by unauthorised overseas firms; and sets out the responsibilities of intermediaries. It does not eliminate investments by UK residents with unauthorised overseas firms, nor is it designed to. But it does help to ensure that UK residents who do put their money overseas know what they are doing and understand the risks they are taking. It would be surprising if the present rules prove watertight at the first attempt and it would be wise for the DTI to monitor the impact of the rules, and the effectiveness of the overseas persons regime in particular, in conjunction with the SIB.

ECU TREASURY BILLS : FIRST TENDER

Following the Economic Secretary's agreement to the proposals in my minute of 30 September, we have now fixed a precise figure for the size of the 11 October tender (to be announced at 2.30 tomorrow) : ecu 900 million.

2. This will be divided 200 million : 500 million : 200 million between 1 month, 3 month and 6 month bills.

3. The amount is in the middle of the range the Bank proposed, and represents some natural caution on their part. They are, I think, fairly confident of achieving a highest accepted bid yield of 15 basis points or more below LIBID.

4. Most press questions are likely to be on points that should be referred to the Bank of England's press office, and I should be grateful if IDT could liaise with them. The size of the issue is larger than the earlier indication of ecu 500 billion. The Bank will be saying that they were able to raise the amount in view of the substantial indications of interest they have had from investors; but that this does not necessarily imply that the programme will eventually settle at anything larger than the ecu l billion-2 billion range. It is natural for the opening auction to be for a larger amount, to meet pent up demand, than subsequent auctions (which will in part be replacing maturing bills). If anyone is concerned that 900 million ecu is an odd amount, we can point out that it is roughly equivalent to $1 billion.
