

Public Opinion Background Note 130

(Produced 12th September 1982)

1. Introduction

Gallup conducted the interviewing for our latest 'tracking' study from 1st to 6th September - the interviewing was completed largely before the start of the T.U.C. Congress. The sharp drop in Conservative support we found in our previous 'tracking' study conducted from 25th to 30th August was not confirmed by our latest study. The 25/30 August study found 40% claiming they would vote Conservative - a drop of 5½ percentage points when compared with the previous study. Our latest study found an increase in support to 43½%. Support for Labour has fallen back to the level it reached before the sharp increase we found in our previous study. Our latest study found 28½% claiming they would vote Labour - this compares with 32% in our previous study. Although our latest study found a slight increase in Social Democrat and a slight fall in Liberal support the combined level of Liberal and Social Democrat support remained almost unchanged. Liberal support fell from 11½% to 8% and Social Democrat support increased from 15% to 17%. The combined level of Liberal and Social Democrat support fell from 26½% to 25%.

The table on the following page shows the level of support for the main parties, when those respondents who did not give an answer to the standard voting intention questions are excluded.

4. Published Polls

(a) Marplan (Guardian 7th September 1982)

The Guardian on 7th September 1982 included details of a Marplan survey on attitudes to trade unionism conducted on Friday 3rd September. The survey was limited to trade unionists only.

Marplan asked trade unionists 'Do you support or oppose the motion to be debated at Brighton this week calling for total opposition to the Government's privatisation policy.' 46% claimed to be in favour, 44% against and 10% did not have a view.

The Marplan survey also asked trade unionists 'The 1980 Employment Act and the 1982 Employment Bill place legal restraints on trade union freedom of action. Do you think this legislation goes too far, not far enough, or is it about right?' 42% thought the legislation goes 'too far', 15% 'not far enough', 35% 'about right' and 8% did not have a view.

When Marplan asked 'The TUC is committed to opposing this legislation. Unions may be asked at the conference to defy the 1982 Bill by refusing to attend court proceedings and to pay fines and by withdrawing labour if any trade unionist is gaoled. Would you be in favour or against such a motion?' 42% claimed to be in favour of such a motion, 50% against and 8% did not have a view.

Marplan asked also 'Health service unions have asked other unions to take sympathetic strike action which could be unlawful, making individuals and unions liable to fines, damages and imprisonment. Would you be prepared to take such action?' 43% claimed they would be prepared to take strike action in support of the health workers, 52% they would not be prepared to take strike action and 3% did not have a view.
