Dear Mrs. Thatcher,

It does not seem possible that I should be writing my "Glyndebourne letter" already but twelve months have raced by. I wondered whether to write because no one knows what the political timetable will be for the next few months, but Richard said I should. Obviously events may cause a change in your plans. I enclose a schedule of this year's performances and I do not need say how much pleasure it would give Josephine and me if Denis and you were able to join us.

The Fidelio looks marvellous (apart from the danger of meeting Ted) because it has Elisabeth Soderstrom as Leonora but they are only doing it on one Saturday and one Sunday. Apart from that, La Fedelta Premiata is an opera by Haydn, apparently the first to be given at Glyndebourne. Anyway we are in your hands.

Kindest regards.

Yours sincerely,

Patrick Hutber

P.S. The public begins to see how right you have consistently been!
