CONFIDENTIAL

20th June 1979

I wonder if you have an opening for a first class economist of marked IEA tendencies, who is itching to advance the private sector at the expense of the public sector?

My candidate is Alfred Sherman, who you may know, has been the chief inspiration of Sir Keith Joseph at the Centre for Policy Studies, since 1974. Now that its primary purpose, has been to some extent achieved, I believe he could be tempted back into the real world.

Ralph Harris
