

23rd July 1982

Further news from San Carlos:

There were two further attacks by aircraft. In the first attack there was the possible downing of an A4.

2

The second wave was of four mirage aircraft. One was shot down by Sea Wolf on HMS Broadsword, one was shot down by 20 mm cannon on either Antelope or Plymouth, and one further possible shot down, but this is not confirmed.

4

There was a third wave of mirage, two of which were shot down by sea harriers. Therefore the total in the present wave of attacks is as follows:

4

- 1 A4 definitely shot down.
- 1 possible A4 shot down.
- 4 mirage definitely shot down.
- 1 possible mirage shot down.

7

+ 3 Helicopters (Shag Cove)

Our only casualties have been as previously reported, that of the unexploded bomb in HMS Antelope (still no further news about casualties).
