

We have to normalise our relations with the trade unions.
This is something that the Labour party can never hope to do, because their relations are basically abnormal. ~~the~~
The unions are their paymasters, a few powerful unions provide more than 80 p in the pound of their budget.

The union bosses pay the piper and want to call the tune.
~~the~~ Labour leaders, ~~when in government,~~ resent this. The trade union leaders think they have been had. However much they get, they ~~think~~ think they ought to have everything, even if it means turning the country upside down.
With us in office, they can represent their members while we represent the public. This is a ~~right~~ normal situation.

↳ nobody's business

Let's all members of the public

Recognition for ~~merit~~ merit, at all levels in society, is not a luxury but a necessity. Without it, our living standards, social services, quality of life, place in ~~the~~ the world, defences, are all at risk. <sup>This holds good whether we mean</sup> ~~whether we mean~~ the inventor, the top technologist, the captains of industry - who make the difference by their leadership between success and failure - management, skilled craftsmen, foremen and supervisors, and the difference between the individual who does his job well and the one who does not.

~~But~~ socialism and trade-union power, as they have developed in this country, have worked against merit at all levels. Our ~~top and middle management~~ top and middle management are paid less and taxed more than in other countries, so are many of our skilled workers. This holds good right down to the shop floor where effort is discouraged, in the name of solidarity.

our problems lie deeper than economics or even politics; ~~EXXPREHENS~~ our whole civilisation is at peril, from inside and out. There are forces at work from ~~inside~~ inside trying to destroy it, self-destructive forces out to defile, debauch, smear, break down. I have spoken about some, very ugly & phenomena like the new extreme ~~left~~ which wishes to destroy freedom of speech and law and order. There are the organised child-molesters, and that has become big business, part of the new pornography empire. They range from common or garden vandals to university staff always ready to condone barbarism and terrorism. They are not without their cells in the trade union movement. They are actively inciting Commonwealth immigrant communities against the country which has allowed them the right to live here and enjoy our facilities.

How can the healthy cells of our body politic resist this infection ?

The T.U. boss
can make you do anything under threat of Union expulsion.

They/ you say that the Unions hold the whip-hand .
But where will the lash fall? Where can it fall?
On whose back? On the public; ~~anyone else;~~ including union members; their wives and children; old-age pensioners for whom Trade-Union leaders express such concern. They hold the whip-hand, but its use has turned into self-flagellation.

~~How can you compare your relations with the~~
