My dear Mrs. Thatcher,

I was delighted to have you in India. Even before you came we had known that our views would not coincide on a number of matters. But as I remarked on your arrival, this does not take away from friendship or the need for an exchange of views. I am sorry the Press was, as is not unusual for it, rather negative.

I hope most thinking people appreciated the importance of your visit and saw it in the broader framework of Indo-British relationship.

With warm regards & good wishes,

Yours sincerely,

Indira Gandhi

(Indira Gandhi)

Rt. Hon. Mrs. Margaret Thatcher
