Periodic whispers have reached us about uncertainties in your department. Since we met about a year ago for Dinner at Locketts, might I suggest that we look for an early date to do the same again - with the addition of Martin Wassell ?

Arthur and I get horribly booked up for lunches and would prefer an evening meeting which might also suit you on a day when you have to be back at the House by 10 O'clock.

Whilst I think there are some very serious matters to discuss, I must add a personal word of admiration for all you are doing against what appears to be formidable odds.

I gave Martin a copy of our forthcoming Paper by Friedman and Laidler and look forward to seeing the Paper you will be publishing by Sam Brittan in July.
