PRIME MINISTER

MEETING WITH MR. RIDLEY

Mr. Ridley has asked today whether he could have "five minutes" with you tomorrow. I have explained to his office that this is very difficult, and that there may be no available slot. But I have said that if the post-Cabinet E(EP) meeting ends in time, Mr. Ridley may be able to have five minutes between that and the start of your Questions briefing.

Mr. Ridley apparently wants a quick word about the latest state of play on Alice Coleman, the Lyceum, and "one or two other matters".
