Paul Gray Esq
Private Secretary to
The Prime Minister
10 Downing Street
LONDON

24th April 1989

Dear Paul,

GLOBAL CLIMATE

At the meeting last week there was discussion on both the efficiency of power stations in the UK and on the use of methane from waste sites. My Secretary of State felt that the Prime Minister might find it useful to see the enclosed notes on these subjects. These describe what has been done so far in both areas and give some indication of the future potential.

I am copying this to Richard Wilson.

*Yours ever,
Stephen*
