Mr Evans:- Sections B and C

Mr Cassell:- Sections [D, E,] and H

Mr Monck:- Section F

Mr Monger:- Sections G, I, J, and K

Miss O'Mara:- Sections A and L

3. All further comments should be submitted in writing, in the form of precise drafting suggestions, specifying the reason for making the change and any appropriate background information. (This applies in particular to comments which the Chancellor has already considered once and rejected.)

4. All comments should reach this office by close of play on Thursday 13 March. I would be grateful for advance warning of any points that cannot be checked before this deadline.

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY*NOT TO BE COPIED*A. Introduction

The background to this year's Budget is the dramatic and unprecedented fall in the world oil price.

But the Government's objectives remain unchanged: the conquest of inflation and the creation of an enterprise culture.

And the Government's policies are unchanged, too: policies of sound money and free markets.

Not least because these are the only routes to more jobs.

So my Budget today will carry forward the themes of my two previous Budgets, and sow some seeds for the future.

In the course of my speech I shall begin by reviewing the general economic background to the Budget, and go on to deal with the specific issue of oil.

BUDGET SECRET

NOT TO BE COPIED

I shall then discuss monetary policy and the fiscal prospect, both this year and next.

I shall then turn to the question of direct help for the unemployed.

Finally, I shall propose some changes in taxation designed to assist in achieving the economic objectives I have already outlined.

As usual, a number of press releases, filling out the details of my proposals, will be available from the Vote Office as soon as I have sat down.

B. The Economic Background

I start with the economic background.

The strength and durability of the current economic upswing continues to confound the commentators.

We can now look back to very nearly five years of growth at around 3 per cent a year.

Even more important, 1985 was the third successive year in which we secured the elusive combination of steady growth and low inflation - the first time this has been achieved since the 'sixties.

In 1985 as a whole, output grew by a further 3½ per cent, the highest rate of growth in the European Community, and higher than the United States, too.

Within that total non-oil exports grew by over 6 per cent, to reach yet another all-time record.

Despite a marked slowdown in the growth of world trade from the heady pace of 1984, the current account of the balance of payments was in surplus for the sixth year in succession - this time by some £3 billion.

Inflation ended the year at around 5½ per cent and falling.

Employment continued to rise, though still not fast enough to reduce the distressingly high number of people out of work.

I shall have more to say about that later.

Manufacturing industry, the subject of so much ill-informed comment, had another successful year, with its output up by 3 per cent, its productivity by 4 per cent, its investment by 5 per cent, and its exports by 6 per cent.

As the London Business School recently observed, looking at Britain's recent performance:

"There has been no previous five year period in

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY

NOT TO BE COPIED

recent history over which manufacturing industry has been so successful in holding its market share, and in keeping pace with world output".

At the heart of this success lies a remarkable turn-around in productivity.

In the six years prior to 1979, Britain's annual rate of growth of manufacturing productivity, at less than 1 per cent, was the lowest of all the Group of Five major industrial nations.

In the six years since 1979, our annual rate of growth of manufacturing productivity, at 3½ per cent, has been second only to that of Japan.

Looking ahead, I expect 1986 to be a further year of steady growth with low inflation.

Indeed, with output forecast to rise by 3 per cent, and inflation to fall to 4 per cent, 1986 is set to register our best overall performance for a generation.

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY

NOT TO BE COPIED

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY*NOT TO BE COPIED

The pattern of growth should also show a satisfactory balance, with exports and investment expected to grow rather faster than consumer spending - as indeed they have during the sustained upswing as a whole.

But the uncertainties inherent in all these forecasts, good though their track record has been, is reinforced by constant reminders that we live in an uncertain and turbulent world.

One particular difficult aspect of this is the febrile nature of the world currency markets.

There has been some improvement here.

The Plaza Agreement between the Group of Five Finance Ministers last September has undoubtedly led to a more sustainable pattern of exchange rates worldwide.

Since Plaza, the dollar has fallen by some (15) per cent against the other major currencies as a whole, with the pound moving up by (5) per cent, the Deutschemark by (20) per

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY*NOT TO BE COPIED

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY*NOT TO BE COPIED

cent and the Yen by (30) per cent - a pattern broadly in line with what those of us who were party to the agreement intended.

This process will be assisted further if the passage of the Gramm-Rudman amendment succeeds in securing its objective of a much-needed reduction in the United States budget deficit.

Meanwhile, the Plaza Agreement has already succeeded in reducing, at least for the time being, the dangerous protectionist pressures that were building up in the United States.

Provided we are not over-ambitious, I believe that the Plaza accord is something we can usefully build on.

But the most dramatic development on the world economic scene, and one of considerable importance to this country, has of course been the collapse in the price of oil.

It is to that I now turn.

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY*5 NOT TO BE COPIED

C. Oil

I presented my Budget last year at the end of a 12-month coal strike.

I observed at the time that it was a remarkable tribute to the underlying strength of the British economy that it had been able to withstand so long and damaging a strike in such good shape.

We now have to face a challenge of a very different kind.

Over the past few months the price of oil has almost halved, and with it our North Sea oil tax revenues and earnings from oil exports.

Not surprisingly, perhaps, this initially caused a fair amount of turmoil in the financial markets, with sterling falling by some 8 per cent.

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY*NOT TO BE COPIED

I decided that it was right to respond with an immediate one per cent rise in short term interest rates in early January, and this helped to prevent the downward movement of the exchange rate from developing an unhealthy momentum of its own.

But equally I thought it right to resist the for a time very strong, but to my mind unjustified, pressure to raise interest rates still further.

That pressure now appears to have subsided.

There has been some speculation that the turbulence in the oil market, which from time to time has fed through into the financial markets, has been deliberately exacerbated by some leading OPEC countries in an attempt to force the United Kingdom to cut back its own oil production and thus become a de facto member of the cartel.

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY*NOT TO BE COPIED

BUDGET SECRET NOT TO BE COPIED
BUDGET LIST ONLY

It has even been suggested that the decision to hold a meeting of OPEC Ministers to coincide with today's Budget is part of that same process.

I have to say that, if any such tactics are indeed being employed, those employing them are wasting their time.

There is no question whatever, and never has been any question, of the UK cutting back its oil production in order to secure a higher oil price.

In the first place, the whole outstanding success of the North Sea has been based on the fact that it is the freest oil province in the world, in which decisions on levels of output are a matter for the companies and not for the Government.

And in the second place, we are not only, or even principally, a major oil producer; we are also a major world producer and trader of other

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY

NOT TO BE COPIED

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY

NOT TO BE COPIED

goods and services and a major oil consumer:

there is no overall UK national interest in keeping oil prices high.

I am aware that a Report, recently published in another place, which attracted a certain amount of publicity at the time, predicted that

"as the oil revenues diminish the country will experience adverse effects which will worsen with time"

- effects of a most alarming nature.

Had the authors of that Report dreamed at the time that half the oil revenues would disappear within a matter of months, their conclusions would no doubt have been even more apocalyptic.

As the House knows, I have always believed their analysis to have been profoundly mistaken.

But certainly it is going to be put to the test sooner than anyone expected.

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY

NOT TO BE COPIED

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY*NOT TO BE COPIED

The United Kingdom is likely to remain an oil producer, of a gradually diminishing volume of oil, for the next 25 years or so.

If we can survive unscathed the loss of half our North Sea oil revenues in less than 25 weeks, then the prospective loss of the other half over the remainder of the next 25 years should not cause us undue concern.

It is, of course, true that in relative terms we do lose from the collapse of the oil price.

That is to say, the really big gains will be made by the major non-oil-producing countries such as Germany and Japan, where growth will be boosted and inflation, already low, is likely to fall virtually to zero.

But the oil price fall will be beneficial for the industrialised world as a whole, and even for the United Kingdom what we gain on the swings will more than offset what we lose on the roundabouts.

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY*NOT TO BE COPIED

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY*NOT TO BE COPIED

To be precise, I expect that the levels of economic activity and inflation will if anything be slightly better than what they would have been without the oil price collapse. And what of the balance of payments?

Thanks to the abolition of exchange control in 1979, we have been able to use a good part of our earnings from North Sea oil since then to build up a massive stock of overseas assets.

Our net overseas assets have in fact risen from £12 billion at the end of 1979 to almost £90 billion at the end of last year.

This is a far bigger total than that possessed by any other European country, and bigger than the United States, too.

The earnings from those assets will be of increasing value to our balance of payments in the years ahead.

So, too, should the improvement in our manufacturing trade balance.

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY*NOT TO BE COPIED

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY*NOT TO BE COPIED

For while the British economy may not gain a great deal overall as a result of the oil price collapse, there will be considerable differences within the economy.

The major gainer will be the internationally traded sector of industry in general, and manufacturing in particular, which is already enjoying both lower oil prices and a lower exchange rate against its major competitors.

This provides British industry with an outstanding opportunity both to increase its exports and reduce import penetration in the home market.

It has no excuse for not seizing that unique opportunity.

But it will only be able to do so if it meets two conditions.

First, it must keep firmer control of its labour costs.

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY*7 NOT TO BE COPIED

BUDGET SECRET NOT TO BE COPIED
BUDGET LIST ONLY

healthier level of profits on investing for the future in Research and Development and in training.

Both the opportunity, and the responsibility to see that it is not thrown away, rest fairly and squarely on the shoulders of British management.

Meanwhile, despite the massive fall in oil prices, I expect the current account of the balance of payments to remain in sizeable surplus this year, by some £3½ billion.

As I have said, there will be gainers and losers within the economy.

If industry is the main gainer, the main loser, at least in the short term, is the Chancellor of the Exchequer.

Clearly, what is good for the British economy is not always good for the Chancellor.

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY

NOT TO BE COPIED

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY*NOT TO BE COPIED

I can live with that.

But it does mean that North Sea oil revenues, which are likely to amount to not far short of £12 billion for 1985-86, are expected to plummet to £6 billion next year, 1986-87 and perhaps some £4 billion in 1987-88.

A loss of more than £5 billion between this year and next.

This has obvious implications for the Budget.

But the important fact is that, just as we successfully weathered a year long coal strike, we have been able to take the unprecedented collapse in the oil price in our stride.

We have been able to do so, first, because of the underlying strength of the economy in terms of growth, inflation and the external account. And, second, by virtue of the reputation we have earned over seven years for sound and prudent financial management.

F. Help for the unemployed

I turn first to the continuing problem of high unemployment.

It is a problem that can be solved - and there is no secret about how.

The solution to the problem of unemployment - and it is the only solution - requires progress on two key fronts.

The first is a sustained improvement in the performance of business and industry, and thus of the economy as a whole.

That is what every aspect of the Government's economic policy has been designed to assist, and it is already achieving impressive results.

The second is a level of pay which enables workers to be priced into jobs instead of

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY

NOT TO BE COPIED

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY*NOT TO BE COPIED

pricing them out of jobs, and which in particular ensures that British industry can hold its own against our major industrial competitors.

It is here that Britain's weakness lies.

For the plain fact is that labour costs per unit of output in British business and industry continue to rise faster than is consistent with low unemployment and faster than our principal competitors overseas.

Productivity is, indeed, rising quite rapidly. But pay is rising faster still.

It is this - and not our alleged dependence on oil - that constitutes the Achilles heel of the British economy.

And I have to say that, in a free economy - as the CBI has frankly and commendably acknowledged - it is the responsibility of employers and management to control industry's

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY*NOT TO BE COPIED

BUDGET SECRETNOT TO BE COPIED

BUDGET LIST ONLY cost structure in general and its wage costs in particular.

In the new and improved climate of industrial relations, and with inflation falling and set to fall further, there can be no excuse for failure to discharge that responsibility.

I have, however, considered whether there is anything further Government can do to assist this over the longer term.

The problem we face in this country is not just the level of pay in relation to productivity, but also the rigidity of the pay system.

If the only element of flexibility is in the numbers of people employed, then redundancies are inevitably more likely to occur. One way out of this might be to move to a system in which a significant proportion of an employee's remuneration depends directly on the company's profitability per person employed.

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY³NOT TO BE COPIED

BUDGET SECRET NOT TO BE COPIED
This would not only give the workforce a more direct personal interest in their company's success, as existing employee share schemes do.
BUDGET LIST ONLY

It would also mean that, when business is slack, companies would be under less pressure to lay men off; and they would in general be keener to take men on than if pay costs were fixed, irrespective of company profitability.

It might, therefore, make sense to offer some measure of tax relief to the employees concerned to help get profit sharing agreements of the right kind off the ground, and to secure the benefits they could eventually bring if they really caught on.

The broad characteristics of such agreements are clear.

But the design of such a relief, and the precise definition of qualifying agreements, is a matter of some complexity.

BUDGET SECRET 4
BUDGET LIST ONLY

NOT TO BE COPIED

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY

NOT TO BE COPIED

I am keenly aware of the practical difficulties.

The Government therefore proposes to discuss with employers and others to see if a workable scheme can be defined which offers the prospect of a worthwhile and broadly-based take up.

If these preliminary discussions are sufficiently encouraging, we would prepare a consultative document setting out a detailed scheme for wider consideration.

The earliest opportunity for legislation would be next year's Finance Bill.

Meanwhile, there is more we can do of an immediate nature to help the unemployed.

In my Budget last year I announced the Government's intention to launch a new two-year Youth Training Scheme, leading to recognised vocational qualifications.

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY

NOT TO BE COPIED

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY*NOT TO BE COPIED

The new and expanded YTS will duly come into operation next month.

It will be a giant step towards our objective of ensuring that no youngster under the age of 18 need be unemployed.

I also announced in last year's Budget a substantial expansion of the Community Programme to help the long-term unemployed - those who have been out of work for over a year, or, in the case of those between 18 and 24, for more than six months.

The Community Programme, which offers work for up to a year on projects of benefit to the community, is currently providing almost 200,000 places.

I have agreed with my Rt. Hon. and Noble Friend the Secretary of State for Employment to provide the funds to raise the eventual target for this year to 250,000 places - very nearly double the number that existed a year ago.

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY*NOT TO BE COPIED

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY

NOT TO BE COPIED

At the same time, the average wage limit for the Community Programme will be raised to £67 a week from next month.

Last November my Rt. Hon. and Noble Friend announced two new pilot schemes to provide further help for the long-term unemployed.

These new initiatives, which began in January, are a counselling scheme open to all the long-term unemployed in the pilot areas, and a Jobstart allowance of £20 a week for six months for those long-term unemployed who take a job at less than £80 a week. The pilot schemes are already proving effective, and I have accordingly decided to provide the funds to develop these imaginative new initiatives into a single programme covering the entire country.

This means that every single one of the long-term unemployed throughout the land will

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY

NOT TO BE COPIED

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY

be called to interviews and offered help in finding a job.

I shall also be providing the resources to launch a new scheme - the New Workers Scheme - to help 18-20 year olds to find a job.

This will provide for a payment of £15 a week for a year to any employer taking on an 18 or 19 year old at not more than £55 a week or a 20 year old at not more than £65 a week.

The New Workers Scheme should provide a worthwhile incentive for employers to create jobs for young people.

Finally, I have agreed to a substantial enlargement of the proven and highly successful Enterprise Allowance Scheme, which makes payments of £40 a week for up to a year to assist unemployed men and women to set up in business on their own account.

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY

NOT TO BE COPIED

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY*NOT TO BE COPIED

Funds will be provided that will enable the annual rate of entry to the Enterprise Allowance Scheme to be increased from its present rate of 64,000 to 100,000 by April 1987, and to provide more training for those involved.

At the same time I propose to improve the tax treatment of payments made under this scheme.

The total public expenditure cost of the measures I have outlined comes to £195 million in 1986-87 and £290 million in 1987-88.

These gross costs will, however be partly offset by savings on social security benefits, leaving a net public expenditure cost of £100 million in 1986-87 and £165 million in 1987-88.

This will be financed from the Reserve, and there will therefore be no overall addition to planned public spending.

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY*NOT TO BE COPIED

BUDGET SECRET

G. Business and Enterprise

I now turn to the taxation of business and enterprise.

While the measures I have just announced help the unemployed directly, in the long run what really matters is the creation of a climate in which business and enterprise flourish.

For it is business and enterprise, not Government, who create jobs.

The new and improved system of business taxation which I introduced in my 1984 Budget has reached the end of its transitional phase and comes fully into force next month.

From then on the United Kingdom will have, at 35 per cent, the lowest rate of Corporation Tax of any major industrial nation.

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY

NOT TO BE COPIED

BUDGET SECRETNOT TO BE COPIED

This year I have only two further amendments to make.

First, I propose to ensure a full measure of depreciation for tax purposes for short life agricultural buildings and works, by giving the taxpayer the option of making balancing adjustments on the sale or destruction of such buildings.

Second, I propose to reform the mines and oil wells allowances broadly along the lines of the proposals published in last July's consultative document.

The overall net benefit of this to the industries concerned will amount to £45 million in 1987-88.

Otherwise I propose only minor technical changes to the taxation of North Sea oil; but I am continuing to keep the economics of incremental investment under review, and shall not hesitate to introduce at the earliest

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY*NOT TO BE COPIED

BUDGET SECRETBUDGET LIST ONLY*NOT TO BE COPIED

opportunity any changes which may prove necessary.

I need to set the 1987-88 car and fuel benefit scale charges for those with company cars.

At the same time the motor industry have represented to me that the discrepancy between the engine size break points in these scales and the break points in the new European Community directive on car exhaust emissions is potentially damaging to their international competitiveness.

Accordingly I propose from April 1987, to change our break points to those in the new directive.

At the same time, as last year, I propose to increase the (restructured) car benefit scale charges by 10 per cent.

This will still leave the scale charges well short of the true value of the benefit.

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY*NOT TO BE COPIED

BUDGET SECRETNOT TO BE COPIED

The Fuel scale will also be restructured, but the charges will remain unchanged; and as from April 1987 it will also be used to assess the VAT due on petrol used by registered traders and their employees.

This will be simpler and more equitable than the present system, and will also bring in an extra £40 million of revenue in 1987-88.

I propose to increase the VAT threshold to £20,500 from midnight tonight.

I also propose to rectify an anomaly in the taxation of international entertainers and sportsmen.

When British entertainers or sportsmen work overseas, the foreign tax authorities normally levy a withholding tax on their earnings.

But at the present time we levy no such tax on the earnings of foreign entertainers and sportsmen visiting the UK.

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY*NOT TO BE COPIED

BUDGET SECRETNOT TO BE COPIED*BUDGET LIST ONLY I believe that, in future, we should fall into line with most of the rest of the world.

Accordingly, I propose to introduce a withholding tax of 30 per cent - the same rate as applies in the United States - on the earnings of overseas entertainers and sportsmen in the UK. This should yield £75 million in 1987-88.

A key element in the Government's strategy for jobs is the encouragement of new businesses.

As the House knows, I have been reviewing the future of the Business Expansion Scheme, which is due to come to an end in April 1987.

I have been assisted in this review by the independent report commissioned by the Inland Revenue from the consultants Peat, Marwick and Mitchell, which is being published in full today.

BUDGET SECRET

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY

I am placing a copy in the Library of the House.

It is quite clear - and this is confirmed by the evidence in the Peat Marwick report - that the Business Expansion Scheme, which my predecessor introduced in 1983 as an improvement on the 1981 Business Start-up Scheme, has been an outstanding success.

It has fully achieved its aim of attracting new equity capital into unquoted companies.

It has been attracting well over £100 million a year, a high proportion of which has gone into new and small businesses.

Well over half the companies involved raised sums of less than £50,000 each.

I therefore have no hesitation in proposing to extend the life of the Business Expansion Scheme indefinitely.

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY

But at the same time, despite the exclusions of farmland and property development in my two previous Budgets, I am concerned that too much BES money is being diverted from the high risk areas for which the scheme was always intended into areas where the risk is very much less.

SECRET

Accordingly, I propose, from now on, to exclude from the scheme all companies holding more than half their assets in the form of land and buildings.

R.L.O.

I also propose to exclude companies whose main purpose is to invest in objects, such as fine wines, whose value may be expected to rise over time.

And I have decided to bring within the scope of BES companies engaged in the chartering of UK-registered ships.

SECRET

This will provide new opportunities for successful investment in both new and secondhand tonnage in the hard-pressed coastal, short sea and offshore trades.

BUDGET SECRET 7
BUDGET LIST ONLY

NOT TO BE COPIED

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY*NOT TO BE COPIED

I propose to take power to make further changes in the ambit of the scheme by Order.

Finally, having taken steps to target the Business Expansion Scheme more carefully, I propose to improve it.

BES shares issued after today will be entirely free of Capital Gains Tax on their first sale.

And as a further measure of help for small and new businesses, the Loan Guarantee Scheme, under which the Government guarantees 70 per cent of qualifying bank loans, will also be extended, in this case for a further three years.

My hon Friends will be glad to learn that the premium will be halved from 5 per cent to $2\frac{1}{2}$ per cent.

My last proposal in this section concerns Capital Transfer Tax, which ever since its

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY*NOT TO BE COPIED

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY*NOT TO BE COPIED

Introduction by the Labour Government in 1974 has been a thorn in the side of those owning and running unquoted family businesses, and as such has had a damaging effect on risk-taking and enterprise within a particularly important sector of the economy.

In addition to statutory indexation of the threshold and rate bands, I propose this year to reform the tax radically.

In essence, the Capital Transfer Tax is two taxes, as its two separate scales imply: an inheritance tax and a lifetime gifts tax.

We have had an inheritance tax in some shape or form ever since Lord Harcourt introduced the Estate Duty in 1894.

But the lifetime gifts tax which the Labour Government introduced in 1974, in the teeth of wholehearted Conservative opposition, is an unwelcome and unwanted impost.

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY*NOT TO BE COPIED

BUDGET SECRETNOT TO BE COPIED

BUDGET LIST ONLY

By deferring lifetime giving, it has had the effect of locking in assets, particularly the ownership of family businesses, often to the detriment of the businesses concerned.

Accordingly, I propose to abolish entirely the tax on lifetime gifts to individuals.

As with the old Estate Duty, there will be a tapered charge on gifts made within seven years of death and provisions to charge gifts made with reservation; and the regime for trusts, which is needed as a protection for the death charge, will be kept broadly unchanged.

The cost of abolishing the tax on lifetime giving will be £35 million in 1986-87 and £55 million in 1987-88.

In recognition of the radically changed nature of the tax I have decided to rename it the Inheritance Tax.

I now turn to the taxation of savings and investment.

In my 1984 Budget I introduced a major reform of the taxation of savings and investment designed to improve the direction and quality of both.

Today I propose to carry this reform further forward.

The Social Security Bill now before Parliament proposes important and far-reaching changes in pension provision, notably by encouraging the growth of personal pensions.

Those changes - to which the Government attach the utmost importance - have been warmly welcomed, both for the greater freedom they will give to existing pension scheme members

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY*NOT TO BE COPIED

BUDGET SECRET NOT TO BE COPIED

and for the new scope they will offer to the millions of working people who are not in an occupational pension scheme.

In the light of these changes, I intend later this year to publish detailed proposals designed to give personal pensions the same highly favourable tax treatment as is currently enjoyed by retirement annuities.

Publication of these proposals will enable there to be the widest possible consultation prior to legislation in next year's Finance Bill.

Meanwhile, I can assure the House that, as I made clear last year, I have no plans to change that favourable tax treatment.

But I do need to deal with the growing problem of pension fund surpluses.

The dramatic improvement in the financial climate compared with a decade ago, most notably as a result of the sharp fall in

BUDGET SECRET ²
BUDGET LIST ONLY

NOT TO BE COPIED

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY*NOT TO BE COPIED

inflation, has seen a number of pension funds become heavily overfunded.

This presents a double problem, both aspects of which the Inland Revenue is at present having to deal with through the exercise of its discretionary powers.

In the first place, excessive surpluses, even if they arise unintentionally, represent the misuse of a tax privilege which was intended to assist the provision of pensions, and for no other purpose.

So the Inland Revenue requires from time to time that surpluses be diminished.

But at the same time the Revenue feels obliged to turn down many of the increasing number of requests from companies which, often for good reasons, wish to take refunds from their pension funds into the company itself.

The absence of clear rules on how surpluses should and may be dealt with, and the ~~consequent reliance~~ that has to be placed on the exercise by the Inland Revenue of its discretion, have created considerable uncertainty and unnecessarily constrained trustees' freedom of action.

I therefore propose to replace these discretionary arrangements with clear and objective statutory provision.

In future, the amount of any surplus in a fund will be determined for tax purposes in accordance with standard published guidelines, based on a secure funding method and prudent actuarial assumptions, as advised by the Government Actuary.

Where a surplus is 5 per cent or less of total assets no action will need to be taken.

Where it is higher than that action will be required to eliminate the excess.

BUDGET SECRET⁴
BUDGET LIST ONLY*NOT TO BE COPIED

BUDGET SECRETNOT TO BE COPIED

BUDGET LIST ONLY I will be entirely a matter for the trustees and employers to decide whether the reduction is to be achieved by increasing benefits, or reducing contributions, or making a refund to the company.

If, and only if, they choose to make a refund, the company will be liable to tax at a rate of 40 per cent of the amount refunded, so as broadly to recover the tax relief previously given.

The effect of these new arrangements is likely to be a yield of £25 million in 1986-87 and £120 million in 1987-88.

Next, Stamp Duty.

I have no change to propose in the stamp duty on houses and other property.

But despite the all-round reduction in Stamp Duty to 1 per cent which I made in my 1984 Budget, there is a formidable case this year

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY*NOT TO BE COPIED

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY*NOT TO BE COPIED

For a further reduction in the rate of stamp duty on share transfers.

The City of London is the pre-eminent financial centre of Europe.

The massive £6 billion it contributes to our invisible exports is but one measure of the benefit this confers on the British economy.

But competition in financial services nowadays is not continental, but global.

The City revolution now under way, due to culminate with the ending of fixed commissions - the so-called Big Bang - on 27 October, is essential if London is to compete successfully against New York and Tokyo.

And if London cannot win a major share of the global securities market, its present world pre-eminence in other financial services will be threatened.

Successful competition depends on a number of factors, but one of the most important is the level of dealing costs.

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY⁶*NOT TO BE COPIED

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY*NOT TO BE COPIED

The abolition of fixed commissions will certainly help.

But with no tax at all on share transactions in New York, and roughly $\frac{1}{2}$ per cent in Tokyo, London will still be vulnerable.

I therefore propose to reduce Stamp Duty on share transactions from 1 per cent to $\frac{1}{2}$ per cent as from the date of the Big Bang, currently scheduled for 27 October.

But I believe it is right that the cost of this should be met from within the financial sector itself.

Accordingly, I propose to bring into tax at the new $\frac{1}{2}$ per cent rate a range of financial transactions which are at present entirely free of Stamp Duty.

These include transactions in loan stock other than short bonds and gilt edged securities, transactions unwound within a Stock Exchange account, letters of allotment, the purchase by a company of its own shares, and takeovers and mergers.

There will also be a special rate of 5 per cent on the conversion of UK shares into ADRs and other forms of depositary receipt.

Some of these changes, including the new ADR charge, will take effect immediately: others will be delayed until the Big Bang.

This further halving of the stamp duty on equities should enable London to compete successfully in the worldwide securities market.

It will also provide a further fillip to wider share ownership in the UK.

Just as we have made Britain a nation of home owners, it is the long-term ambition of this Government to enable the British people to become a nation of share-owners, too; to create a people's capitalism, in which more and more men and women have a direct personal stake in British business and industry.

Both through the rapid growth of employee share schemes, and through the massively successful privatisation programme, much progress has been made.

But not enough.

Nor, I fear, will we ever achieve our goal so long as the tax system continues to discriminate so heavily in favour of institutional investment rather than direct share ownership.

Accordingly I propose to introduce a radical new scheme to encourage direct investment in UK equities.

Starting next January, any adult will be able to invest up to £200 a month, or £2400 a year, in shares.

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY

BUDGET SECRET

These will be held in a special account which I am calling a Personal Equity Plan.

So long as the investment is kept in the plan for a minimum period, at most two years, all reinvested dividends, and all capital gains on disposals, will be entirely free of tax.

The longer the investment is kept in the plan, the more the tax relief will build up and the greater will be the rewards.

Although the scheme will be open to everyone, it is specially designed to encourage smaller savers, and particularly those who may never previously have invested in equities in their lives.

So the plans will be simple and flexible to operate.

Anyone who is legally permitted to deal in securities will be able to act as a plan manager.

~~But the investor himself~~ will own the shares - and the rights that go with them, including voting rights.

And it will be for the investor to choose whether to make the investment decisions himself or to give the plan manager authority to act on his behalf.

The cost of the scheme will be around £25 million in 1987-88, but will build up in later years as more plans are taken out.

This is a substantial, innovative and exciting new scheme.

I am confident that, over time, it will bring about a dramatic extension of share ownership in Britain.

Although wholly different in structure from the Loi Monory in France, I expect it to be every bit as successful in achieving its objective.

I. Charities

I now turn to the tax treatment of charities and charitable giving.

In almost every facet of the nation's affairs it becomes increasingly clear that private action is more effective than State action.

This is particularly well illustrated by the success of charitable organisations up and down the land in the fields of education, social welfare, medicine, the arts and the heritage.

This Government has already done a great deal to assist charities, both through the tax system and in other ways.

I believe the time has come to take a further step forward.

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY

NOT TO BE COPIED

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY*NOT TO BE COPIED

The fundamental question is whether any further fiscal relief should be given to the charities themselves, through relief from VAT, or to the act of giving.

In the light of representations from the Charities VAT Reform Group, I am prepared this year, exceptionally, to make a number of specific concessions on this front.

I propose to relieve charities from VAT on their non-classified press advertising; on medicinal products where they are engaged in the treatment or care of people or animals, or in medical research; on lifts and distress alarm systems for the handicapped; on refrigeration and video equipment purchased by charities from donated funds; on recording equipment used by charities for the blind; and on welfare vehicles used by charities to transport the deaf, blind or mentally handicapped.

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY²*NOT TO BE COPIED

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY

NOT TO BE COPIED

The cost of these reliefs is some £10 million.

But in general I am convinced that the right way to help charities is not by relieving the charities themselves from VAT, but by encouraging the act of charitable giving.

I say this for two principal reasons.

First, it is clearly better that the amount of tax relief is related to the amount of support a charity is able to attract, rather than to the value of goods and services it happens to purchase.

And, second, whereas a £ of VAT relief is worth precisely that, a £ of tax relief on giving is likely to generate more than a £ of income going to charity.

My principal proposals therefore relate directly to the act of giving to charity.

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY

NOT TO BE COPIED

BUDGET SECRETNOT TO BE COPIED*BUDGET LIST ONLY First, I propose to abolish altogether the upper limit on relief at the higher rates of income tax on charitable covenants.

At the same time I propose to act to stop the abuse of the tax system by ensuring that tax relief goes only to money which is used directly for charitable purposes.

Next, companies.

It is widely believed that corporate giving to charity would be more generous than it is at present if tax relief did not depend on the company entering into a four-year covenant or some form of sponsorship arrangement.

Accordingly, I propose to allow companies (other than close companies) to enjoy tax relief on one-off gifts to charity up to a maximum of 3 per cent of the company's annual dividend payment to its share-holders.

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLYNOT TO BE COPIED

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY*NOT TO BE COPIED

There will, of course, continue to be no limit on the amount a company can covenant to charity.

I do not, however, propose to extend a similar relief for one-off donations by individuals.

Quite apart from the administrative costs, which would be formidable, many charities have made clear to me their fear that to do this would weaken them by reducing the stability they enjoy as a result of the binding force of covenants.

Instead, I propose to encourage individual giving to charity by a different means, that of payroll giving.

From April 1987 it will be open to any employer to set up a scheme under which employees can have charitable donations of up to £100 a year deducted from their pay, and get tax relief on them.

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY*NOT TO BE COPIED

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY*NOT TO BE COPIED

All in all, the proposals I have announced today add up to a very substantial package of assistance to charities and charitable giving. Their cost to the exchequer will depend on how generously companies and employees respond to this initiative.

But my best estimate is that it could amount to £50 million in 1987-88.

This will be partly paid for by the measures to curb abuse, which may save as much as £20 million a year.

The additional charitable giving these concessions stimulate should be at least twice the cost of the tax relief given.

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY*NOT TO BE COPIED

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY*NOT TO BE COPIED*J. Personal Taxes: Taxes on spending

Finally, I turn to the taxation of spending and income.

So far as the indirect taxes are concerned, the overriding question this year is how far I should recover from the oil consumer the tax revenues I have lost from the oil producer, as a result of the massive fall in the oil price.

So far this year the price of petrol at the pump has fallen by roughly 11 pence a gallon.

If the oil companies had passed on the full amount of the fall in the oil price to date, the price of petrol at the pump could easily have been a further 10 pence a gallon lower still.

There is clearly scope, therefore, for a sizeable increase in petrol tax this year.

BUDGET SECRET¹
BUDGET LIST ONLY*NOT TO BE COPIED

BUDGET SECRETNOT TO BE COPIED*BUDGET LIST ONLY I have concluded, however, that at the present time, while I must certainly maintain the real value of the revenue I get from the motorist, I will not increase it.

But I do believe it makes sense to look again, in the light of the radically changed circumstances, at the relative weight of petrol tax and Vehicle Excise Duty.

Accordingly, I propose to increase the duty on petrol by an amount which, including VAT, would - if it were wholly passed on to the consumer - raise the price at the pump by sevenpence halfpenny a gallon.

This is twopence more than is needed to keep pace with inflation, and that enables me to keep VED at last year's level of £100 for cars and light vans, leaving the overall burden on the motorist unchanged in real terms.

Moreover, given the fat that has accumulated in the oil companies' margins, there is clearly no

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLYNOT TO BE COPIED

BUDGET SECRET NOT TO BE COPIED
BUDGET LIST ONLY

need for the pump price of petrol to go up at all.

In the same way, I propose to increase the duty on derv by an amount which would - if it were wholly passed on to the consumer, which it should not be - raise the price at the pump by sixpence halfpenny, including VAT.

This will enable me to avoid any increase this year in the Vehicle Excise Duty on lorries, too.

So far as the other oil duties are concerned, I have one or two changes to make.

Not to the duty on heavy fuel oil, which will remain unchanged as it has done since 1980.

But I propose to increase the very modest duty on gas oil, much of which is used for central heating, by a penny-halfpenny a gallon.

And I propose to abolish altogether the duties on aviation kerosene, or Avtur - which at

BUDGET SECRET NOT TO BE COPIED
BUDGET LIST ONLY

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY

NOT TO BE COPIED

present is taxed for domestic flights only -

and on most lubricating oils.

All these changes in duty will take effect from 6 o'clock this evening.

Finally, so far as oil products are concerned,

I am anxious to do what I reasonably can to assist the introduction of lead-free petrol.

The case for this on health grounds is clear.

I have therefore decided to create a duty differential in its favour to offset its higher production costs.

My officials will be discussing with the oil companies how this can best be achieved in time for next year's Budget.

Next, tobacco.

In the light of the representations I have received on health grounds, I have decided to increase the duty on cigarettes by appreciably

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY

NOT TO BE COPIED

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY

NOT TO BE COPIED

more than is needed to keep pace with inflation.

I therefore propose an increase in the duty on cigarettes and hand-rolling tobacco by the equivalent, including VAT, of approximately eleven pence on a packet of 20 cigarettes.

This will take effect from midnight on Thursday.

As last year, I propose no increase at all on the duties on cigars and pipe tobacco.

Finally, drink.

As the House will recall, I was obliged in 1984 to increase the duty on beer by slightly more than I would have wished as a consequence of the judgement against the UK in the European Court of Justice.

I now propose no increase at all in the duty on beer - for the first time since 1979.

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY

NOT TO BE COPIED

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY*NOT TO BE COPIED

Nor do I propose any increase in the duties on cider, table wine, sparkling wine, fortified wine or spirits.

This last decision will, I hope, be particularly welcome to the Scotch Whisky industry.

I have no major proposals for changes in Value
Added Tax.

The changes I have announced in the excise duties will, all told, raise an extra £795 million in 1986-87, the same amount as I would have raised had I simply increased all the excise duties in line with inflation.

The overall impact effect on the RPI, if all the increases were fully passed on, would be one half of one per cent.

This has already been taken into account in the forecast I have given the House of 4 per cent inflation by the end of the year.

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY*NOT TO BE COPIED

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY*NOT TO BE COPIED*K. Income Tax

Finally, I turn to income tax.

In my Budget speech last year I undertook to issue a Green Paper on the reform of personal taxation.

As the House is aware, I am publishing the Green Paper today.

It discusses a range of options which will in due course be opened up by the computerisation of PAYE, from the relationship between income tax and employees' national insurance contributions to the closer integration of the tax and benefit systems.

In particular, however, it outlines a possible reform of the present system of personal allowances.

The responses to my predecessor's 1980 Green Paper revealed widespread dissatisfaction with

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY*NOT TO BE COPIED

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY*NOT TO BE COPIED

~~the existing arrangements, but - inevitably -~~ no clear consensus as to what should replace them.

Married women increasingly resent the fact that a wife's income is treated for tax purposes as that of her husband, depriving her of the independence and privacy she has a right to expect.

There is growing complaint, too, of the way in which, in a number of respects, the present system penalises marriage itself.

And it cannot be right that the tax system should come down hardest on a married couple just at the time when the wife stops work to start a family.

Yet that is what happens at the present time. The alternative system set out in the Green Paper, of independent taxation with allowances transferable between husband and wife, would remedy all these defects.

BUDGET SECRET²
BUDGET LIST ONLY*NOT TO BE COPIED

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY*NOT TO BE COPIED

To be acceptable, however, it would need to be accompanied by a substantial increase in the basic tax threshold.

The Government is committed to reducing the burden of income tax, and the proposal in the Green Paper suggests one way of doing that which would achieve a number of other worthwhile objectives - including the ability to take more people out of the unemployment and poverty traps for a given amount of tax relief than is possible under the present tax system. Given the timetable of computerisation, none of this could in practice be implemented until the 1990s.

But we need to start planning for the 1990s today.

The Government will therefore carefully consider the responses to today's Green Paper before taking any decision on how to proceed.

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY*NOT TO BE COPIED

BUDGET SECRETNOT TO BE COPIED*BUDGET LIST ONLY Meanwhile, I have to set the tax rates and thresholds for the coming year.

But first I have two minor proposals to announce, both of which I hope the House will welcome.

First pensions paid by the German and Austrian Governments to victims of Nazi persecution are free of tax in both Germany and Austria.

In this country, however, the tax relief on such pensions is set at 50 per cent.

In future, I propose that pensions paid to victims of Nazi persecution should be free of tax altogether.

Second, the House will be aware that, as from next year, social security benefit upratings will be moved to April, to coincide with the tax year.

This will enable them to be fully taken into account before PAYE codes are issued for 1987-88.

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY*NOT TO BE COPIED

BUDGET SECRETNOT TO BE COPIED*BUDGET LIST ONLY However, to bridge the gap between the November

1985 and April 1987 upratings my Rt Hon friend the Secretary of State for Social Services proposes to have a special transitional uprating in July, the details of which he has recently announced.

The increases have been criticised by some as derisory.

I wholly reject that allegation.

They are fully in line with the rise in the cost of living over the relevant period; and to suggest that pensioners and others would sooner have high inflation and high upratings than low inflation and correspondingly low upratings is sheer poppycock.

But I do accept that it could be confusing for many old-age pensioners and widows to undergo a special mid-year tax recoding on account of the July uprating.

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLYNOT TO BE COPIED

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY

NOT TO BE COPIED

I have therefore decided that, for pensioners and widows, the benefit increases payable in July will be exempt from income tax in 1986-87.

The cost of this will be £15 million.

Since we first took office in 1979, we have cut the basic rate of income tax from 33 per cent to 30 per cent and sharply reduced the penal higher rates we inherited from Labour.

We have increased the main tax thresholds by some 20 per cent more than inflation - and the greater part of that 20 per cent has been achieved during the present Parliament.

It is a good record, but it is not good enough.

The burden of income tax is still too great.

Nothing could be further from the truth than the claim that we have a choice between cutting tax and cutting unemployment.

The two go hand in hand.

It is no accident that the two most successful economies in the world, both overall and

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY

NOT TO BE COPIED

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY

NOT TO BE COPIED

specifically in terms of job creation, the United States and Japan, have the lowest level of tax as a proportion of GDP.

Reductions in taxation motivate new businesses and improve incentives at work.

They are a principal engine of the enterprise culture, on which our future prosperity and employment opportunities depend.

The case for higher tax thresholds is well understood.

In my two previous Budgets I have raised the married man's allowance to its highest level in real terms since the war, and higher as a proportion of average earnings than in either Germany or the United States.

But we should not overlook the need for reductions in the basic rate of tax, too.

The basic rate is the starting rate of tax.

And it is the crucially important marginal rate of tax for 95 per cent of all employees and

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY

NOT TO BE COPIED

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY*NOT TO BE COPIED

over 90 per cent of all self-employed and unincorporated businesses.

Clearly, given the massive fall in oil revenues, this is not a year for substantial reductions in tax of any kind.

But provided the economy continues to grow as it has been, and provided we continue to maintain firm control of public expenditure, the scope should be there in the years ahead. Meanwhile, I propose for 1986-87 to raise all the main thresholds and allowances by the statutory indexation figure of 5.7 per cent, rounded up.

The single person's allowance will therefore rise by £130 to £2,335 and the married man's allowance by £200 to £3,655.

Similarly, the single age allowance will rise by £160 to £2,850 and the married age allowance by £250 to £4,505.

The age allowance income limit becomes £9,400.

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY*NOT TO BE COPIED

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY

NOT TO BE COPIED

I propose to raise all the higher rate thresholds by exactly £1,000.

Thus the first higher rate of 40 per cent will be reached at a taxable income of £17,200, in line with statutory indexation, and the top rate of 60 per cent will apply to taxable income above £41,200 - some £1,500 less than statutory indexation.

Given the need for caution in the light of current circumstances, I do not have scope this year for a reduction in the basic rate of income tax, beyond one penny in the pound.

But this reduction from 30 per cent to 29 per cent still represents the first cut in the basic rate of income tax since 1979.

And so long as this Government remains in office, it will not be the last.

I also propose a corresponding cut in the small companies' rate of Corporation Tax from 30 per cent to 29 per cent.

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY

NOT TO BE COPIED

BUDGET SECRET
BUDGET LIST ONLY*NOT TO BE COPIED

The combined effect of the various income tax changes I have just announced is to concentrate the benefit, modest as I readily concede it to be, not on the rich but on the great majority of ordinary taxpayers.

Thus the gain for those at the top of the income scale is more or less confined to what they would have received under simple indexation alone.

By contrast, the married man on average earnings will be some £2.60 a week better off, an improvement of £1.45 a week over simple indexation alone.

The income tax changes I have announced today will take effect under PAYE on the first pay day after 17 May.

Their cost is considerable: some £2 billion in 1986-87, of which over half represents the cost of indexation.

In collaboration with my rt hon and Noble Friend the Secretary of State for Employment, I have announced a further substantial range of measures to help the unemployed.

I have proposed a radical and far-reaching new scheme for tax-free investment in equities, so that we may truly become a share-owning democracy.

And I have abolished outright a fourth tax -

I have announced the most substantial package of assistance to charitable giving ever, and proposed the first cut in the basic rate of income tax for seven years.

Building as it does on the achievements of the recent past, this Budget is a safeguard for the present and a springboard for the future.

I commend it to the House.
