Dear Prime Minister,

As you know, we have always been most appreciative of the efforts you have made on behalf of Soviet Jews. May I particularly record our satisfaction at the contents of the speech you gave at your dinner for President Gorbachev last Thursday. As I was reported saying in The Times on Saturday, you have, with respect to President Gorbachev's visit, done everything we could have expected.

Your policy in this area is absolutely right. There is no doubt that the more progress the Soviet Union makes in the field of individual human rights, the less we will perceive them to be a threat. In such circumstances it will not only be Soviet Jews who will benefit.

Yours sincerely,

Neil Bradman
