23rd March, 1984

一九八四年三月二十三日

The momentous year covered by this Report has been one of intense activity for Members. It has seen the Sino-British negotiations on the crucial issue of Hong Kong's future brought to a successful conclusion.

The Agreement between the Government of the United Kingdom and the Government of the People's Republic of China on the future of Hong Kong was signed in Beijing on 19th December 1984 and this Report provides an account of the role played by UMELCO, during the year, leading up to this event. It covers the missions to London by the Executive Council, the UMELCO delegations to London and Beijing and accompanying public statements. The U.K. parliamentary debates on this subject are also included, as well as the debates on Hong Kong's future which took place in our own Legislative Council both before and after publication of the draft Agreement.

It will be for history to judge UMELCO's contribution to these events. In good conscience, we have acted in what we have perceived to be the best interests of Hong Kong and I hope this review will assist readers to acquire a better understanding of the role played by UMELCO in the Sino-British negotiations.

Throughout this period, the normal business of Government has continued and there were other developments of great importance. The Green and White Papers on the Further Development of Representative Government were published during the year and provide for an elected majority of Unofficials to join the Legislative Council by October 1985. They will take their place in LegCo as a matter of right and this will mark the end of an era. It heralds the close of over 150 years of colonial rule which, for all its shortcomings, has created not only an economic miracle but a caring society and a place we are proud to call our home.

We now enter a new phase in our history. In July 1997 Hong Kong will become a Special Administrative Region within China with a fully elected legislature and a high degree of autonomy. It is necessary therefore to prepare for this and to transfer the powers of the present colonial government to the elected representatives of the people of Hong Kong.

In the course of this transfer the Unofficial Members will gradually be changing their role from advisers to policy makers. UMELCO welcome this change and look forward to taking up the new challenge. Given understanding and sensitivity by the two signatory Governments and their firm commitment to implementing the Joint Declaration in both letter and spirit, UMELCO have confidence that the people of Hong Kong will succeed in maintaining Hong Kong's social stability and economic prosperity and in making the Joint Declaration work.

 Senior Unofficial Member of the Executive Council

CHAPTER 1

Introduction

The two major Councils of Government in Hong Kong are the Executive Council and the Legislative Council; both include Official as well as Unofficial Members. The Official Members are usually Heads of Secretariat Branches or major Government departments and the Unofficial Members are selected by the Governor from a wide cross-section of the population.

The Governor consults the Executive Council in the execution of the powers and authorities granted to him by Letters Patent, and acts on its advice. At present, the Executive Council consists of four Ex-officio Members, two Official Members and 10 Unofficial Members, appointed by the Governor.

The Legislative Council consists of three Ex-officio Members, 13 Official Members and 30 Unofficial Members. It enacts legislation and controls public expenditure.

The Unofficial Members are appointed from a wide spectrum of the community. Through their membership of over 300 boards and committees, including District Boards, the Urban Council and the Heung Yee Kuk, dealing with public affairs, with educational and legal matters, and with all facets of Hong Kong's economic and social life, Unofficial Members are in touch with all sectors of the community.

Apart from their duties in the two Councils, they monitor the effectiveness of the public administration, and consider complaints by members of the public against Government, for handling which they have far wider powers than is possessed by any Ombudsman.

The work of the Unofficials of the Executive and Legislative Councils (UMELCO) during the year under review was largely, although by no means exclusively, connected with one burning issue: the future of Hong Kong. A further topic of great importance which occupied a considerable amount of Members' time was the Green Paper on the Further Development of Representative Government in Hong Kong.

This report reviews the work of UMELCO during the period 1st September 1983 to 31st August 1984. In view of the major events relating to the future of Hong Kong which occurred after the closure of the report period, Chapter II dealing with the Future of Hong Kong covers events up to the signing of the Joint Declaration in Beijing on 19th December 1984.

CHAPTER 2

The Future of Hong Kong

The Sino-British negotiations on the future of Hong Kong continued throughout the year. The pace of the talks quickened from March when they were held at fortnightly rather than at monthly intervals. Altogether 18 rounds of talks were held in Beijing during the year.

It may be recalled that the negotiations began with the Prime Minister's visit to Beijing in September 1982. As reported last year, five UMELCO Members went to London with the Governor prior to the visit to acquaint the Prime Minister and the Foreign Secretary with the views of Hong Kong people.

In a joint statement issued on 24.9.82, at the end of the Prime Minister's visit to Beijing, Britain and China announced they had agreed "... to enter into talks through diplomatic channels following the visit with the common aim of maintaining the stability and prosperity of Hong Kong."

On 1.7.83, all nine Unofficial Members of Executive Council, Sir S. Y. CHUNG, Mr. O. V. CHEUNG, Mr. R. H. Lobo, Mr. LI Fook-wo, Dr. Harry S. Y. FANG, Mr. M. G. R. Sandberg, Mr. T. S. LO, Mr. D. K. Newbigging and Miss Lydia DUNN, made an historic journey to London with the Governor for a further round of discussions with the Prime Minister and Ministers of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office.

On the same day, 1.7.83, the following joint statement was issued in London and Beijing:—

"Following the discussions between the leaders of the two countries in September 1982, and subsequent useful exchanges it has been agreed that a second phase of the talks on the future of Hong Kong will begin in Peking on 12th July 1983."

The July 1983 visit to London marked the beginning of the involvement of the Executive Council in the talks on the future of Hong Kong. In a statement issued by the Prime Minister's Office in London after the visit it was said:—

"... Ministers reaffirmed their commitment to Hong Kong and their aim of seeking arrangements which would be acceptable to Parliament, to China and to the people of Hong Kong..."

The statement added that:—

"... They emphasised the importance which they attach to the advice of the Executive Council which would continue to be sought throughout the course of the talks..."

In speaking to the media, on returning to Hong Kong with the Unofficial Members of ExCo on 7.7.83, the Governor told reporters that:—

"... during that visit the British Government made clear very strongly the importance which they attach to taking the advice of Executive Council, and it is a fairly dramatic event I think, that all the Unofficials of Executive Council should go to London for that purpose."

The first meetings of the second phase took place on 12th and 13th July, and further rounds were held on 25th and 26th July and on 2nd and 3rd August. Thereafter the talks continued at monthly intervals.

Visits of Unofficial Members of ExCo to London

There was much uneasiness and speculation about the progress of the early rounds of talks.

At the end of the 3rd and 4th rounds held on 2/3 August and 22/23 September 1983, the customary phrase "... useful and constructive..." was omitted from the joint statement released at the close of the rounds. With growing fears and uncertainty about the talks, the Hong Kong dollar experienced the sharpest fall in its history and on 24.9.83 plunged to a record low of $9.50 against the US dollar.

On 5.10.83 all the Unofficial Members of ExCo, Sir S. Y. CHUNG, Mr. O. V. CHEUNG, Mr. R. H. Lobo, Mr. LI Fook-wo, Mr. M. G. R. Sandberg, Mr. LO Tak-shing, Mr. D. K. Newbigging, Miss

Lydia DUNN, Mr. Q. W. LEE, Mr. S. L. CHEN and Miss Maria TAM, returned to London with the Governor. They met the Prime Minister, Mrs. Thatcher, the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, Sir Geoffrey Howe, and other senior officials of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office. Referring to the meeting a statement issued by the Prime Minister's Press Office afterwards said:—

"There was a thorough review of developments since the Unofficials last visited London on July 4-5. This took place in a warm and positive atmosphere, it produced a valuable exchange of views and complete understanding on the issues involved. The Governor and the Unofficials expressed their appreciation of this further opportunity to meet the Prime Minister and other Ministers and for the continuing commitment of Her Majesty's Government to Hong Kong."

On 15.10.83, in order to stabilise the Hong Kong dollar, the Hong Kong Government announced that it would be linked to the US dollar at the exchange rate of HK$7.80 to US$1.00 with effect from 17.10.83.

The Unofficial Members of ExCo, less Mr. D. K. Newbigging who retired in January, again visited London with the Governor on 12.1.84 and a statement issued by the Prime Minister's Press Office afterwards said:—

"This was the third visit by the Governor and the Unofficials since July, 1983. Ministers reaffirmed HMG's continuing commitment to Hong Kong and to the search for a settlement acceptable to Parliament, to China and to the people of Hong Kong."

As on previous occasions there was a comprehensive review of developments in the talks. It produced a close identity of views of matters involved."

The Prime Minister and the Foreign Secretary reiterated the importance which they continue to attach to keeping the Executive Council fully informed and to receiving their advice. The Governor and Unofficials expressed their appreciation for this further opportunity to meet the Prime Minister and her colleagues and for their continuing support and encouragement."

The Unofficial Members of ExCo returned to London once more with the Governor on 3.4.84 and briefed Sir Geoffrey Howe on the feelings and views of the people of Hong Kong prior to his visit to Beijing and Hong Kong in mid-April. A detailed account of Sir Geoffrey's statement which he made in Hong Kong on 20.4.84 after his visit to Beijing is given on P. 5.

The "Lobo Motion" (March 1984)

As the Sino-British negotiations were conducted in the strictest confidence, and as Hong Kong was not a party to them, rumours and speculation on the contents and progress of the talks pre-occupied the media during the early part of the year, resulting in the confidence of the community being badly shaken.

It was against this background that Unofficial LegCo Members decided to introduce a motion in the Legislative Council on 14.3.84 to debate the issue in public. The motion, put forward over the name of the Senior Member, Mr. R. H. Lobo, read:—

"This Council deems it essential that any proposals for the future of Hong Kong should be debated in this Council before any final agreement is reached."

A total of 22 Unofficials participated in the debate. Many pointed out that it was their duty to reflect public opinion on such a vital issue as the future of Hong Kong. The aim of the debate was to encourage public discussion of the 1997 issue and several Members took the opportunity to call for a positive attitude on the part of the people of Hong Kong towards the future.

In introducing the motion, Mr. Lobo said its purpose was to give some focal expression to the undertaking by the UK Government that the objective was to reach an agreement on the future of Hong Kong which would be acceptable to the Governments of China and Britain as well as to the people of Hong Kong. Since LegCo was one of the principal forums for public debate, the motion was to reaffirm Unofficial Members' commitment to the responsibility of reflecting public opinion in Hong Kong, in advance of any proposed agreement being put before the UK Parliament.

Dr. Harry FANG was concerned that as Hong Kong's social, economic, political and cultural systems were greatly different from those of China and Britain the ideas and viewpoints of the two negotiating parties might not be entirely in tune with those of the Hong Kong people. Thus he hoped China and Britain would establish an effective means of consulting public opinion before reaching an agreement. He was of the opinion that LegCo should play an active part by encouraging and assisting the people to study and discuss the future question, so as to look for proposals that would meet the needs of Hong Kong and be acceptable to China and Britain. In his view, personal freedom and the livelihood of Hong Kong people had to be guaranteed in the arrangements.

Mr. LO Tak-shing, together with Dr. Harry FANG, Mr. Peter C. WONG and Mrs. Selina CHOW, stressed the importance of having adequate time to debate the arrangements for the future of Hong Kong before they were set in concrete. Any appearance of rushing an agreement through would psychologically damage the credibility of the UK Government even if the Agreement itself was actually quite reasonable.

Dr. Francis TIEN spoke of three economic issues: Hong Kong's autonomy in her trading links; Hong Kong's separate textile quotas; and her image as a supplier of high quality goods. These three questions called for immediate and positive answers, he said.

Mr. Alex WU used the analogy of an 'arranged marriage' to describe the arrangements being made by Britain and China for Hong Kong. He made it clear that only an informed public could make a valid judgement on the arrangements for their future. He also said that to doubt LegCo's right and responsibility to debate the proposals was in itself a factor to sap that confidence upon which Hong Kong depended.

Mr. Peter C. WONG pointed out that a vital element in maintaining the continued success of Hong Kong was the expertise to manage public affairs prudently within the framework of an independent and impartial judicial system. In the interests of efficiency and expediency, he suggested that the English language be accorded legal status after 1997, with a generous period for conversion and adaptation. He drew attention to Article 102 of the United Nations Charter, 1945 which imposed a binding obligation to effect the registration of any treaty or agreement entered into by member states of the Organisation. In conclusion, he said he appreciated that LegCo had no authority to pre-empt or override any decision of the British Parliament; nevertheless, he hoped views expressed in all forums would be given due consideration by the British and Chinese Governments.

Mr. WONG Lam urged that the confidentiality rule of the Sino-British talks be lifted so that the people of Hong Kong would be kept informed of progress in the negotiations. Only then could they contribute positively to the quest for a favourable solution and would they refrain from speculation.

Refuting criticism from some sectors that the Motion might resurrect the 'three-legged stool' concept and jeopardise the cordial atmosphere surrounding the negotiations, Dr. HO Kam-fai said the Motion was not aimed at changing the status of Hong Kong in the negotiations; it merely afforded an opportunity for a useful and timely debate in the LegCo Chamber. He urged that effective consultation machinery be set up to monitor, collate and compile views. The Government should continue to be autonomous and insulated from the exercise of arbitrary power or external influence after 1997. Transitional arrangements should be made early, especially with regard to the localisation of top level posts in the civil service; widening the use of the Chinese language in the judicial sector; and increasing the political consciousness of the people, Dr. HO said.

The fears and worries of the Hong Kong people, according to Mr. Allen LEE, stemmed basically from the lack of any known precedent for one country to allow two totally opposite systems to operate successfully at the same time. He said that on such an important issue as the future of Hong Kong Unofficial Members of LegCo had to feel free to express their views; to reflect public opinion; to provide leadership; and to help achieve the common objective of maintaining stability and prosperity. He quoted in full the representations made to UMELCO by nine workers' unions requesting the release of information on the Sino-British talks. He called for improved confidence and for the development of mutual trust with China to alleviate the confidence crisis.

Mr. Andrew SO drew an analogy between the progress of the Sino-British talks and changes in the weather in Hong Kong. He suggested that the negotiating parties should make regular reports to the people of Hong Kong so that they could plan their activities well.

Mr. F. K. HU was concerned with the freedom of movement of persons and the textile quota system which involved agreements with third countries. He pointed out that it was important for both the Chinese and British Governments to make a public announcement in the United Nations on the change of status of Hong Kong and to invite other member states to maintain mutually beneficial relations with Hong Kong in the future.

Mr. WONG Po-yan said Hong Kong had served and would continue to serve the interests of Britain and China. This congruence of interest, he believed, would enhance the well-being of Hong Kong citizens as well as maintaining prosperity and stability. He called on the people of Hong Kong to build up mutual trust and to work positively for the future.

Mr. W. C. L. Brown stressed the importance of local entrepreneurs' confidence and its impact on investment. In joining the call for more information on the Sino-British talks to be made public, he said businessmen needed more details and an opportunity to discuss them before decisions could be made. He added that LegCo was one of the most important forums in which the acceptability of a Sino-British agreement should be tested.

Mr. J. J. Swaine said the greatest freedom was the freedom from fear, the fear of pressure from the state. He considered it essential that the independence of the judiciary and the rule of law be incorporated into any future arrangements for Hong Kong. He suggested a system of secondments from the English Bench to the Court of Appeal in Hong Kong to remove doubts on the quality or impartiality of judicial decisions after 1997. As regards British nationals in Hong Kong, he requested that a new class of citizenship be devised for them so that they would have an option to leave if they wished and to settle overseas with assistance from the British Government. The very existence of an option would, he argued, enhance the prospects of an acceptable solution, and that option ought to operate as a built-in safeguard against arbitrary change.

Mr. Stephen CHEONG said Unofficial Members of LegCo were trying to help achieve the common objective of prosperity and stability through the debate on the Motion; they were not fighting for the power of veto or for the final word in the negotiations. He felt that the pre-1997 period was a truly critical one when China, Britain and Hong Kong must work hard together to build a solid foundation for the future. The first crucial step was to dismantle the barrier of mistrust between the three parties. He called for a positive and constructive attitude towards the Chinese proposals on the part of the Hong Kong people, a positive look at Hong Kong people's comments and contributions on the part of China, and for Britain to act as an effective catalyst in promoting better understanding between Hong Kong and China.

Mr. CHEUNG Yan-lung also appealed to the three sides to work together. In his view, the debate would not pose any obstacles to the talks between Britain and China, but give greater depth and broader scope to consideration of the problems at the talks.

Mrs. Selina CHOW raised a number of questions concerning China's intentions for Hong Kong, the most important being whether Hong Kong, a stronghold of capitalism, could maintain her identity and success under a communist regime, and what would happen should there be disagreement between Beijing and Hong Kong. In order that the mechanism of testing the acceptability of the Sino-British agreement could work effectively, she asked that Hong Kong be given a reasonable length of time to study and comment on the proposals.

Miss Maria TAM said she believed that the motion was tabled in the spirit of freedom of speech and that LegCo had the legal status to debate the vital question of the future of Hong Kong. She also pointed out that Hong Kong was a city with an open social system, in which the maintenance of stability and prosperity depended on the rule of law, a free economy, the freedom of movement of the people, and the separation of the legislature, the judiciary and the administration in the political structure.

Mr. CHAN Ying-lun pointed out the importance of preserving the two factors which he said made Hong Kong prosperous, viz. that Government acceded to the wishes of the people and that Hong Kong was a free, equal and open society. An elected Government by 1997 and an early start on educating the people of Hong Kong about democracy would enable these two factors to continue to work after 1997.

Mrs. Rita FAN stressed that, at this turning point in the history of Hong Kong, the people here must make both China and Britain understand their position and appreciate their sincerity in seeking a solution to Hong Kong's future. Secondly, any change in the Government system had to take place gradually and be tried out first on a small scale. She also suggested that a new curriculum on comparative government systems be introduced at the post-secondary school level.

Mrs. Pauline NG said Hong Kong people had doubts about everything surrounding the future issue because of the lack of experience, and hence their immaturity, in understanding stormy events in the political system. She hoped they would react positively to the development of Hong Kong's future.

Mr. YEUNG Po-kwan reiterated the call for a positive attitude and constructive views on the future. He considered that the debate would increase public confidence and urged the people of Hong Kong to 'hold fast to the present and strive for the future'.

The official reply was made by the Chief Secretary. He paid tribute to the great sense of duty and responsibility Members had shown in approaching the issue of the future of Hong Kong. He said it was entirely natural and understandable that Unofficial Members of LegCo should wish to raise this issue in the terms of the Motion. As the UK Parliament would wish to know the views of the people of Hong Kong on the Agreement resulting from the Sino-British talks, views expressed through various channels, including LegCo, would be considered by Parliament when assessing the arrangements as a whole. He could not believe that the debate on the Motion would do anything other than help achieve the objective of arriving at arrangements that would satisfy Britain and China as well as help confidence in Hong Kong.

In his winding up speech, Mr. Lobo said the debate had made a positive contribution to reaching an acceptable agreement which would be supported by the people of Hong Kong. While appreciating the need for the negotiations to be conducted in confidence, he drew the attention of both Britain and China to the fragility of public confidence in Hong Kong, saying that faith could not be created by orders; trust could not be induced by the exercise of power; and no settlement which failed to engender trust could possibly preserve stability and prosperity.

The Motion was carried.

Sir Geoffrey Howe's statement on 20.4.84

Sir Geoffrey Howe visited Beijing in mid-April for discussions with Chinese leaders on the future of Hong Kong. He then visited Hong Kong and met UMELCO Members on 19.4.84. A press conference was held the following day, at the end of Sir Geoffrey's visit, at which he said:—

"I want to emphasise that throughout the talks we have kept in close contact with the Governor and with Members of the Executive Council. Through them, through the Legislative Council, and through visits to Hong Kong by British Ministers, we have kept in touch with a wide range of opinion here. The hopes and aspirations of the people of Hong Kong have been very much in our minds. Our chief concern has been to preserve the way of life of Hong Kong, a way of life which lies at the heart of the territory's success. We know that the preservation of that way of life depends upon continuity; continuity in the essentials of the legal, economic, social and administrative systems, and maintenance of the freedoms that people in Hong Kong now enjoy."

Sir Geoffrey also revealed for the first time that Hong Kong would not be under British administration after 1997 when he said:—

"... continuity in Hong Kong is at present assured by British administration. The terms of an agreement between the British and Chinese Governments still have to be worked out, but it is right for me to tell you now that it would not be realistic to think of an agreement that provides for continued British administration in Hong Kong after 1997."

UMELCO Delegation to London (May 1984)

On learning that the House of Commons would debate the future of Hong Kong during the week commencing 14.5.84, UMELCO decided that a delegation should visit London before the debate to meet MPs to reflect the views of the people of Hong Kong. The delegation, led by Sir S. Y. CHUNG, included Mr. O. V. CHEUNG, Mr. R. H. Lobo, Mr. M. G. R. Sandberg, Mr. LO Tak-shing, Miss Maria TAM, Mr. Allen LEE, Mr. W. C. L. Brown, Mr. Stephen CHEONG, Mr. CHEUNG Yan-lung, Mrs. Selina CHOW and Mr. CHAN Ying-lun.

Taking account of the views and representations received from the public and through District Board members, a position paper was prepared which Members felt accurately reflected the views of the people of Hong Kong. This was distributed to all Members of the House of Commons and selected Members of the House of Lords and to the UK media. A copy of the position paper is at Appendix IV.

The visit took place between 9.5.84 and 23.5.84. Apart from attending the House of Commons and House of Lords debates on the future of Hong Kong on 16.5.84 and 21.5.84 respectively, the delegation met the following groups:—

(i) The Labour Party Foreign Affairs Committee (Mr. Tom Clarke)

(ii) All-Party Hong Kong and China Groups (Sir Peter Blaker and Mr. Robert Adley)

(iii) Foreign Affairs Select Committee (Sir Anthony Kershaw)

In addition, the delegation met many individual MPs, including Rt. Hon. Edward Heath, Rt. Hon. David Steel, Rt. Hon. Sir Humphrey Atkins, Mr. John Cope, Rt. Hon. Denis Healy, Mr. George Robertson, Mr. Michael Brown and Mr. Ian Wrigglesworth. Meetings were also held with the Prime Minister, the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, Sir Geoffrey Howe, and Minister of State, Mr. Richard Luce. The delegation also met Lord Rhodes, Lord Fanshawe, Lord Soames, Lord Shepherd, Lord Tanlaw and Lord Geddes before the debate in the House of Lords.

The meeting with the All-Party Hong Kong and China Groups was conducted in an unsympathetic atmosphere. A number of MPs and Lords were pointedly critical. Doubts were expressed both during the meeting and afterwards regarding the validity of the views reflected in the UMELCO position paper and about the timing and purpose of the UMELCO mission. Comments in this vein were reported by the media and produced an immediate response from the people of Hong Kong. Within hours hundreds of supportive telex messages were received by the delegation and the UMELCO Office in Hong Kong received messages of support from 8,200 individuals, about 1,500 organisations and 15 District Boards.

A formal report of the delegation's trip was made in LegCo through an adjournment debate on 30.5.84, in which Mr. LO Tak-shing, Miss Lydia DUNN and Mrs. Pauline NG participated. Mr. LO described the delegation's activities in London and explained the purpose and timing of the visit. He reported that as a whole the aim of the visit which was to reflect the views and wishes of the people of Hong Kong to British Ministers and MPs, had been achieved. Miss DUNN pointed out that the people of Hong Kong were anxious about their future after the transfer of sovereignty in 1997 because the "one country two systems" concept, under which Hong Kong would become a Special Administrative Region of China, had no precedent and involved a sharp break with the past. She said that, while accepting the validity of the Chinese claim to sovereignty over Hong Kong and the fact that the people of Hong Kong had no right to participate in the negotiations, local people were apprehensive about their future. She also pointed out that the Government had plans to develop on more representative lines and it was important for such a representative system to operate without interference. Mrs. NG reported on the reaction of the general public to the UMELCO position paper. She said the overwhelming support from telex messages and telegrams sent to UMELCO by the people of Hong Kong, and the results of an independent survey commissioned by a local English language newspaper (South China Morning Post), showed that the position paper had accurately represented their views. She observed that people had begun to recognise the importance of expressing their views and urged them to keep up their efforts in that direction.

The Attorney General replied on behalf of the Government. He said it was understandable that the people of Hong Kong should be concerned and anxious about the outcome of the negotiations and that UMELCO should wish to reflect those concerns and anxieties to MPs. He said the UMELCO delegation had never claimed to represent the people of Hong Kong, but they rightly claimed the right to present or represent their views. Being honest and well-informed, they were in the best position to do so, regardless of whether they were elected or not. He said the visit succeeded in raising considerably the level of awareness at Westminster of the problems of Hong Kong's future and boosted UMELCO's standing as leaders of the community. He concluded by saying that the best assurance lay in a binding international agreement in which arrangements for Hong Kong's continuing prosperity and stability, based on a substantial degree of autonomy, would be formally recorded with clarity and precision.

Visit of UMELCO Members to Beijing (June 1984)

Following the UMELCO delegation to London, a large number of comments and representations were received from members of the public and organisations, many urging UMELCO to make a similar visit to Beijing to reflect their anxieties to China's leaders. At the same time UMELCO also was considering whether such a trip should be made. Three ExCo Members, Sir S. Y. CHUNG, Miss Lydia DUNN and Mr. Q. W. LEE, therefore accepted an invitation from the Director of the Hong Kong Branch of Xinhua News Agency to visit the Chinese capital for an exchange of views with Chairman DENG Xiaoping and other senior Chinese officials.

The visit took place from 21.6.84—25.6.84. The three Members met Chairman DENG, and Mr. JI Pengfei and Mr. LU Ping, the Director and Secretary-General of the Hong Kong and Macau Affairs Office respectively. Members presented their views and three specific suggestions to Chairman DENG and other Chinese leaders; the full text of their Speaking Note is at Appendix V.

To enable the views reflected by the group to the Chinese leaders to be put on public record, Miss DUNN tabled the Speaking Note at the LegCo meeting on 27.6.84.

The purpose of the Beijing visit was to reflect the views and anxieties of the people of Hong Kong to Chinese leaders. That objective was achieved. In addition, three major proposals were made, which the Members felt could assist the maintenance of prosperity and stability in Hong Kong. The first was that the Agreement must be detailed and binding, and that there should be a provision in it stating that the Basic Law should reflect the relevant terms of the Agreement. The second was that those parts of the Basic Law which did not relate to sovereignty and which covered only the internal affairs of Hong Kong should be drafted in Hong Kong by a Committee including representatives of the people of Hong Kong. The third proposal was that a Committee consisting of Chinese people of international standing and reputation should be appointed by China for the purpose of monitoring or advising on the drafting and implementation of, and subsequent amendments to, the Basic Law. The first proposal was accepted by the Chinese leaders and they said they would consider the other two after the signing of the Agreement.

Adjournment debates on Hong Kong's existing systems

Four adjournment debates, each focusing on vital features of the existing systems in Hong Kong, were held in LegCo in June and July. The subjects were the Legal System, the Economic System, the Social System and Freedom of Movement. The aim of these debates was to put on public record the essential qualities which LegCo Members felt must be preserved in Hong Kong if prosperity and stability were to be maintained.

(i) Legal System and the Future of Hong Kong

In an adjournment debate on 27.6.84, Miss Maria TAM spoke on the legal system and the future of Hong Kong; Fr. Patrick T. McGovern and Mr. J. J. Swaine also took part. All emphasised the merits of the existing independent legal system which was fairly and justly administered. To preserve Hong Kong as a prosperous international city, it was necessary to maintain the rule of law beyond 1997.

Miss TAM pointed out some essential elements within the existing legal system. Law enforcement bodies must be subject to the law, Hong Kong's international trading partners must have confidence in our legal system, the system must follow principles and practices of the law which were internationally recognized, and be served by competent lawyers and eminent judges. Therefore, in order to maintain confidence in Hong Kong, the existing legal system should be allowed to function freely beyond 1997. She suggested that the final Court of Appeal should remain in the Hong Kong Special Administrative Region (HKSAR) and that the legislature of the SAR should be free to enact and repeal its laws. She said in order to preserve the integrity of the legal system the proposals in the debate had to be reflected in sufficient detail in the Sino-British Agreement and eventually in the contents of the Basic Law.

Fr. McGovern emphasised the importance of freedom as defined in the 'Universal Declaration of Human Rights of the United Nations', saying the Declaration contained the basic human rights which did not come from the law but had to be protected by the law. He highlighted religious belief as a freedom which should be protected. Another example of freedom was the freedom of association which should also be safeguarded. He cautioned that a person should be protected against being arbitrarily declared a 'non-person' on account of non-conformity with some factional rule or law.

Mr. Swaine said a similar independent body to the Judicial Service Commission should continue in operation after 1997 and the appointment of judges should be based on merit and not political reasons. They could only be removed on grounds of inability to perform the functions of their office and of misbehaviour, and their dismissal should only be made after investigation and on the recommendation of an independent tribunal. In order to command respect, judges should be of the highest calibre. He said the law should keep pace with other Common Law jurisdictions of the world and English had to remain the language of the law. On specific areas of the law, he emphasised the importance of the right to travel outside Hong Kong. Hence, a travel document which was internationally recognised should be issued by the governing authority of Hong Kong and the Hong Kong belonging should not be compelled to leave Hong Kong by some system of rustication or banishment. He also proposed that the final Court of Appeal for Hong Kong should be in Hong Kong.

Replying at the close of the debate, the Attorney General said both the British and Chinese Governments had expressed a common intention to preserve the essential features of Hong Kong's legal system. This unity of purpose was surely one of the most hopeful signs to the people of Hong Kong that the continuation of their lifestyle and way of life was assured beyond 1997 and that their freedoms and rights would continue to be respected.

(ii) Economic System and the Future of Hong Kong

In an adjournment debate on 11.7.84, Mr. Allen LEE spoke on the economic system and the future of Hong Kong. Six other Members took part in the debate: they were Dr. Francis TIEN, Mr. Andrew SO, Mr. F. K. HU, Mr. WONG Po-yan, Mr. W. C. L. Brown and Mr. Stephen CHEONG.

All speakers emphasised free enterprise, free trading and international linkage with the outside world as basic prerequisites to the maintenance of a successful economic system in Hong Kong. Mr. LEE highlighted the textile and electronics industries in Hong Kong and emphasised the importance of the development of technology-intensive industries and the further strengthening of a technology base. On the international front, he suggested that Government should set up a working group to find out from the USA, Japan and the EEC whether they would continue to treat Hong Kong as an international free trading port after 1997. He emphasised the importance of the continued development of industry in Hong Kong and cautioned that the embargo put up by the Coordinating Committee for Multilateral Export Controls (COCOM) to control the export of technology and strategic commodities from capitalist countries to communist or socialist countries might be extended to Hong Kong after 1997.

Dr. TIEN emphasised the success of Hong Kong's international trade and pointed out that Hong Kong should fight to remain a contracting party to the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT). The good reputation of the textile and garment industries and hence the quality of Hong Kong products should be preserved after 1997. For this reason, human investment should be further expanded. He said overseas traders would have confidence in commercial contracts in Hong Kong after 1997 if the Sino-British Agreement was acceptable to the people of Hong Kong.

Mr. SO said the right to private property, free enterprise and minimum Government interference were factors contributing to the success of Hong Kong today. Furthermore, human dignity was respected in Hong Kong. Since there were basic differences between the philosophy behind the existing systems in China and Hong Kong, and in order to insulate the economic system from political pressure, a detailed Sino-British Agreement was crucial to maintain the prosperity and stability of Hong Kong, to ensure the success of "two systems within one nation".

Mr. HU spoke on the investment in real estate and the construction industry and emphasised their importance to Hong Kong's social and economic needs. A sluggish property market would affect the position of Hong Kong as an international financial, trading and manufacturing centre. Therefore, a detailed Sino-British Agreement on the basic issue of land leases and land policy was essential. He put forward three sets of proposals for renewing leases on Hong Kong, Kowloon and the New Territories to expire beyond 1997.

Mr. WONG stressed the importance of industrial re-investment and said any standstill in this area would lead to a loss in competitiveness with other neighbouring countries. It was lack of confidence in the future of Hong Kong that deterred industrialists from re-investing. Therefore, a detailed agreement to ensure the continuation of the present economic system after 1997 would help. He advocated that industrialists should keep their nerve and expedite the process of re-investment, especially in high technology, at this crucial time.

Mr. Stephen CHEONG emphasised the ability of Hong Kong to increase exports of manufactured goods. Participation in GATT and Most Favoured Nation treatment were key factors. Therefore, a framework to maintain the present autonomy in handling external commercial relations should be detailed in the Agreement. As there was fear that the current textile access rights of Hong Kong might be combined with those of China, this issue should be specified in the Agreement in detail. He suggested that the Agreement should also maintain Hong Kong's relations with international organisations and allow Hong Kong to maintain a close working relationship with developing countries to resolve international trade issues and guard against protectionism by developed countries. In addition, freedom of movement and Hong Kong's status as a free port were vital. In conclusion, he urged that a detailed agreement to preserve these vital elements of Hong Kong's success should be made so as to prove the concept of "one country, two systems" as pragmatic and viable.

Mr. Brown emphasised the importance of a continuance of Hong Kong as an international financial and commercial centre and the importance of retaining a fully convertible Hong Kong dollar. The objective was to achieve continued progress on top of stability and prosperity. However, this progress could only be made by maintaining a high rate of economic growth. The present 'wait and see' attitude towards investment in land was damaging. A detailed agreement would therefore likely give confidence to investors. He also noted that the ability to finance public works depended in no small degree on the proceeds from land sales, and that the infrastructure created in the next decade would be important to the continued well-being of Hong Kong beyond 1997.

In reply, the Financial Secretary said the potential for generating further economic success and prosperity, both up to 1997 and beyond, would only be realised if the factors that had made possible the economy's past success remained unchanged. These successful factors included steadily expanding trade with other countries; the right to own property; and the right of people to use their skills, abilities and capital as they chose. Continuing improvement in the living standards of the community required Hong Kong's economic, financial and monetary policies to take full account of the economy's requirements, specific conditions and experience. Since Hong Kong had a strong foundation, and provided the economic system continued to function, Hong Kong had ample cause for optimism.

(iii) Social System and the Future of Hong Kong

In an adjournment debate on 24.7.84, Dr. Harry FANG spoke on the social system and the future of Hong Kong. Fr. Patrick T. McGovern, Dr. HO Kam-fai, Mrs. Selina CHOW, Mrs. Rita FAN, Mr. CHAN Ying-lun, Mrs. Pauline NG and Mr. YEUNG Po-kwan also took part.

Dr. FANG opened the debate by saying that underpinning all aspects of the social system in Hong Kong was the freedom to do what one liked, subject only to the rule of law and to the dictates of one's conscience. Therefore, he believed it would be the wish of all in the community that the best features of the social system in Hong Kong should be maintained. The philosophy of hard work was important for the success of Hong Kong while social mobility was equally important to provide the driving force to work. An adequate and progressive education system would guarantee mobility and encourage free intellectual development. He also pointed out that initiative, enterprise and creativity had also played an important part in the achievements of Hong Kong and people of different nationalities had contributed much to the success of the community. Hence, people with different ethnic backgrounds should be assured of a useful role to play in Hong Kong after 1997. He noted that Hong Kong enjoyed a greater degree of freedom, including the freedom of expression, than many other democratic countries in the region and that the best social system in the world required the judicious guiding hand of the Government to be a "positive non-intervention" one. In conclusion, he said the basic tenets of the existing social system should be preserved in order to achieve the objective of continued stability and prosperity.

Fr. McGovern pointed out that a large number of subvented voluntary agencies catering for a variety of social services were directly or indirectly related to religious bodies. Freedom of belief should hence not be limited after 1997. On education, he agreed that, while there was room for improvement in the education system in Hong Kong, the base on which it was built was correct. He believed that the right to organise and be a member of trade unions free from control and pressure of a political party were crucial. The right to organise should be protected in order to maintain the freedom to work in the employment of one's choice, and workers' rights must be protected by free trade unions.

Dr. HO Kam-fai said, in order to maintain current living standards and for the lifestyle of the people to be undisturbed after 1997, it was imperative at least to preserve existing social welfare services and provision to do this should be enshrined in the Agreement or the Basic Law. These included the tenets of individual dignity and human rights; the provision of welfare services to maximise the development of human potential without political objectives; services by voluntary agencies to be offered freely in accordance with the sponsors' beliefs; and public resources must be forthcoming to subvent and support the voluntary sector. He noticed that the uncertainties surrounding 1997 had dampened the enthusiasm of voluntary activity and he urged Government to search for new ways and means to exploit the vast pool of human resources. Finally, he pointed out the right to free choice of employment and urged that this should be embodied in the Agreement or the Basic Law.

Mrs. Selina CHOW noted the existing freedom enjoyed by the mass media in Hong Kong and emphasised the importance of preserving the role of the media after 1997. She said there should not be censorship from the state and no administrative, legal or fiscal deterrent to the dissemination and reception of news. She also related the concern of many journalists at the Control of Publications Consolidation Ordinance and urged the Government to examine this Ordinance to prevent any retrogression of the freedoms of the media after 1997. Furthermore, the free flow of information into and out of Hong Kong should be preserved. She also urged the establishment of a Media Council to self-regulate and upgrade the standard of professional journalism as well as to guard against direct or indirect interference in the free media.

Mr. CHAN Ying-lun said the right of ownership of private property was vital to the future of Hong Kong. Most families worked painstakingly hard to purchase a flat of their own by instalments in order to live a comfortable life. In the face of the 1997 issue, the people of Hong Kong felt uncertain of whether the right to own private property could be safeguarded. This was deterring potential flat purchasers. To put the hearts of the people at ease and encourage them to carry on improving their living and to plan for the future, the Sino-British Agreement should include detailed provision to safeguard the people's right to own private property.

Mrs. Rita FAN pleaded for the continuity, preservation and maintenance of academic freedom in the education system in Hong Kong after 1997. Young people needed to be equipped with qualifications that were recognised by other countries to enhance Hong Kong's international status. Hence, academic freedom was needed to develop people with those qualities, and such freedom should be protected against political influence and indoctrination. Also under this freedom was the large number of schools operated by independent sponsoring bodies which were able to offer variety in the school system. This enabled the community to retain its heterogeneous or cosmopolitan character. Mrs. FAN said academic freedom should enable different religious beliefs, philosophies and even political ideologies to co-exist, and the maintenance and continuation of academic freedom would promote the future prosperity and stability of Hong Kong.

Mrs. Pauline NG pinpointed the freedom to choose and the right to enjoy privacy as two major factors that should be preserved in Hong Kong after 1997. She said a reasonable framework should be built to enable the next generation to keep the present merits and success factors in Hong Kong. In addition, emphasis should be put on family, school and civic education so as to educate the younger generation on the relationship between an individual and society, on the rights and obligations of an individual, on the need to participate in the life of the community and on democracy.

Mr. YEUNG Po-kwan said the most important element in Hong Kong was the rule of law which enabled basic human rights to be protected. Therefore, the law must be safeguarded after 1997. He considered the provision of education as an obligation of society towards individuals, and young people should be provided with a better and more balanced education which would help them to develop a spirit to serve the community. He said Government should give assistance and encouragement to family activities and respect the rights traditionally enjoyed by the family. No matter what the changes might be, no one should be deprived of the right to education on account of his family, social or religious background. The overall review of education should be in line with the long-term objectives of education itself so that Hong Kong might continue to keep in step with the trends of the world.

In reply, the Secretary for District Administration said freedom is the essence of Hong Kong society. The principles of freedom, of social equality and of the law which bound them together, which had brought Hong Kong its success, were what the Chinese and British Governments were seeking to preserve as they worked steadily towards agreement.

(iv) Freedom of Movement

In an adjournment debate on 25.7.84, Mr. LO Tak-shing stressed the importance of freedom of movement to the future of Hong Kong. Mr. Charles YEUNG, Mr. CHEUNG Yan-lung, Miss Maria TAM and Dr. Henrietta IP also spoke.

Mr. LO opened by emphasising the importance of dissipating the worries of the majority of the people so as to free their creative energies and redirect them to exciting ventures. He said one should not ignore the successful and skilled middle class who were seeking options for themselves and their families. It would surely be a loss if they left Hong Kong. At the same time, the search for options could be misunderstood by Western people as a wish to emigrate and greatly underestimated the fierce desire of the Hong Kong people to stay in Hong Kong. Hence, Mr. LO proposed the establishment of an institution funded privately and charged to do specific things such as investigate the practicalities of guaranteeing all foreign countries that Hong-Kong-belonger travellers would not be a liability on the taxpayer of that country; convince foreign countries that all Hong Kong people wanted from them was an option and that they much preferred Hong Kong; and provide, in an accessible office, comprehensive and up-to-date information on immigration matters throughout the world. Mr. LO said the expenses of the institution should be funded by means of a charitable trust to ensure that it kept to its original purpose.

Mr. YEUNG explained the concept of freedom of movement as a human right in the context of Magna Carta, the Universal Declaration of Human Rights of the United Nations, the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, American Convention of Human Rights and the Council of European Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms. Setting the importance of freedom of movement in a historical scenario, he highlighted the need to preserve such rights in a legal form which transcended the sovereignty of nations.

Mr. CHEUNG urged the Hong Kong Government to recommend to Her Majesty's Government that the rights of BDTCs and the rights of all Hong Kong people to freedom of movement be clearly outlined in the Sino-British Agreement. He pointed out that the majority of Hong Kong people working in the UK came from the New Territories. Without freedom of travel, it would not be possible for family members in Hong Kong to reunite with those living and working there. The assurance of this freedom was also vital to business and financial interests in Hong Kong. Therefore, he hoped such freedoms would be clearly spelt out in the Agreement.

Miss TAM stressed the importance of freedom of movement to the economy of Hong Kong and hence the necessity to preserve that freedom after 1997. For this reason, Miss TAM said Britain had to take up its responsibility of safeguarding the rights of BDTC passport holders and their children. Their right to British Consular protection should be retained after 1997. She pointed out the significance of freedom of movement to facilitate interflows with various countries in the academic, cultural, technological and educational fields. Therefore the Agreement must delineate clearly how freedom of movement of Hong Kong people would be protected. In addition, all citizens of Hong Kong should continue to enjoy a right of abode in the Hong Kong SAR, as provided for 'Hong Kong Belongers' under the Laws of Hong Kong (Chapter 115). When freedom of movement and the right of abode in Hong Kong could be guaranteed, confidence in the future of the territory would be established.

Dr IP pointed out that Hong Kong was a gateway which connected the East and West and played the role of bridging any communication gap in between. She said that Hong Kong could contribute a lot towards the modernisation of China; and for this to be achieved, the people of Hong Kong had to be given the freedom of movement in order to keep them abreast of development in modern technology and skills.

In reply, the Attorney General said that the two Governments who were conducting the negotiations had the interests of the whole of Hong Kong's population at heart and would be seeking to incorporate in the Agreement clear and detailed provisions for resolving these issues. The objective was to ensure continuity in the four freedoms (freedom to move, freedom to leave, freedom to belong and freedom to return) which Hong Kong people now enjoyed.

Sir Geoffrey Howe's Statement on 1.8.84

Sir Geoffrey Howe visited China in late July to review progress in the negotiations and to discuss with Chinese leaders the issues outstanding. He also visited Hong Kong and met UMELCO before and after his China trip. At the end of Sir Geoffrey's visit to Hong Kong, he held a press conference at which he revealed the broad outlines of the Agreement. He told the people of Hong Kong that they could look forward with confidence to an Agreement providing for:

- preservation of the existing legal system;
- continuation of Hong Kong's status as a free port and as a financial and manufacturing centre;
- the right of property ownership;
- continuation of Hong Kong's status as a separate customs territory;
- Hong Kong to manage its own financial affairs;
- convertibility of the Hong Kong dollar and free movement of capital;
- retention of the existing system of shipping and port management;
- freedom of travel in and out of Hong Kong;
- maintenance of the existing education system; and
- preservation of existing rights and freedoms enjoyed by the people of Hong Kong.

Sir Geoffrey said that the British Government would remain responsible for the administration of Hong Kong until 1997. He also announced that a Joint Liaison Group would be formed for liaison and consultation on implementation of the Agreement and to facilitate the exchange of information between China and Britain. The Group would continue its work up to the year 2000.

Sir Geoffrey added that the aim was for the Agreement to be initialled before the end of September and, after a period to assess opinion in Hong Kong and debate in the British Parliament, for it to be signed before the end of the year.

Motion on Test of Acceptability (August 1984)

The British Government had pledged from the outset to reach an Agreement acceptable to the Government of China, the British Parliament and the people of Hong Kong. To this end, Sir Geoffrey Howe announced in the House of Commons on 18.7.84 that a special Assessment Office would be set up to test Hong Kong's reaction to the draft Agreement. The Office would be under the authority of the Governor and be responsible for collating and assessing all views which it received on the draft Agreement. It was also announced that a small independent monitoring team would be established to check the work of the Assessment Office.

In response to this announcement, Unofficial LegCo Members decided to introduce a motion to debate the subject in public. A special sitting for this purpose was convened on 8.8.84. The Motion, moved by Miss Lydia DUNN, read:

"That this Council welcomes the Government's initiative to test the acceptability of the Sino-British Agreement on the Future of Hong Kong."

The eight Members who spoke unanimously welcomed the move to set up an Assessment Office, but some expressed reservations about ruling out a referendum to test acceptability as a last resort. Miss DUNN, Mr. Peter C. WONG and Mr. W. C. L. Brown pointed out that, in the unlikely event of no clear-cut decision emerging from the assessment exercise, Government should consider holding a referendum on a simple "yes" or "no" basis.

Miss DUNN urged Government to explain the Agreement to the public and to reach out for their reactions once the draft was published. She suggested that the community should have direct access to the relevant documents and all explanatory material, and should be encouraged to put forward their views to the Assessment Office. She added that the Assessment Office should consider commissioning some independent surveys, the results of which could help validate the subjective judgements of the Office. She also asked the British and Chinese Governments to reconsider elements of the draft Agreement should an overwhelming majority of the people of Hong Kong have reservations about a particular element. This view was shared by Mr. CHAN Ying-lun.

Mr. WONG urged people to speak up in the light of Sir Geoffrey Howe's statement on 1.8.84. Mrs. Selina CHOW made the same appeal and stressed the importance of the public making known their views and suggestions while the talks were still going on. Mr. WONG also said, in view of the far-reaching implications attached to the results of the Assessment Office, extra care should be placed in the planning and implementation of each stage of assessment.

Mr. Andrew SO pointed out that people should speak up unreservedly after the draft Agreement was published, in the hope that elements found to be unacceptable by a majority of Hong Kong people could be amended.

Mr. Brown stressed the importance of testing acceptability of the draft Agreement, first to demonstrate the commitment made by both the British and Chinese Governments and second to provide a basis upon which Parliament could decide whether to accept or reject it.

Mrs. CHOW raised the question of the future structure of the Hong Kong SAR Government which formed the central core upon which our economic and social systems depended. She considered that this essential element should be stated in the Agreement and eventually enshrined in the Basic Law.

Mr. CHAN requested that the Assessment Office seek views not only on the main body of the draft Agreement but also on all the elements contained in the Annexes. Mr. CHAN, Mrs. Pauline NG and Mr. YEUNG Po-kwan stressed that views expressed to the Office should be treated in strict confidence.

Mrs. NG said the Assessment Office should not be regarded as a substitute for existing channels in expressing views on the future of Hong Kong. She suggested a number of ways to help people present their views to the Assessment Office and asked Government to try to assess the views of the silent majority.

Mr. YEUNG added that the Assessment Office should make known the methods and processes through which the assessment would be carried out. He agreed with Mrs. NG that existing consultative organs had a vital role to play in collecting views on the draft Agreement.

The Secretary for Home Affairs, in reply, emphasised that although the Sino-British negotiations had been conducted in strict confidence, Members of ExCo had been fully consulted throughout the talks. He added that the views of Hong Kong people had been and would continue to be fully considered by Her Majesty's Government and taken into account in the negotiations. He also revealed the Terms of Reference of the Assessment Office and the Monitoring Team. The Assessment Office would collate, summarise, analyse and assess all the views submitted to it, reported in the media, revealed by surveys and obtained from the ordinary processes of consultation through existing channels. It would not reach out into the community to obtain or solicit views. However, Government would ensure the contents of the Agreement were widely publicised and ample opportunity was created for people to express their views. The Motion was carried.

Visit of Unofficial Members of ExCo to London (September 1984)

After the final round of the Sino-British negotiations on the Future of Hong Kong was concluded in Beijing, and on the eve of the Draft Agreement being considered by the British Cabinet, ExCo Unofficials again visited London on 17.9.84 to join the Governor for consultations with Ministers. After the meeting with the Prime Minister, a press statement issued by Downing Street said:

"The Prime Minister and the Foreign Secretary this evening had a meeting with the Governor and the Unofficial Members of the Executive Council of Hong Kong. The Minister of State FCO, Mr. Richard Luce, was also present."

This was the fifth visit by the Governor and the Unofficials since July 1983.

This meeting took place on the eve of consideration by the Cabinet of The Draft Joint Declaration by the United Kingdom and Chinese Governments on the question of Hong Kong.

The meeting had a thorough discussion of the draft text which British and Chinese negotiators in Peking had now referred to their respective Governments for consideration. This resulted in a full identity of views.

The Executive Council has throughout been fully consulted and informed about the negotiations between the British and Chinese Governments.

Her Majesty's Government place on record their recognition of the valuable part which the close consultations between Ministers and the Executive Council of Hong Kong have played throughout the negotiations. It was agreed that the same close consultations will continue in the future.

The Prime Minister and the Foreign Secretary expressed their understanding of the difficult role which the Unofficials had had to play in advising Ministers and the Governor during the course of the negotiations. They reiterated their admiration for the way in which the Unofficials had fulfilled this role and for the way in which they had strongly represented the views and interests of the people of Hong Kong at all times."

On their return to Hong Kong on 21.9.84, Sir S. Y. CHUNG told reporters that "the full Council endorsed the Agreement for initialling."

Initialling of the Sino-British Joint Declaration

At noon on 26.9.84, the Joint Declaration on the future of Hong Kong was initialled in Beijing by the respective heads of the British and Chinese negotiating teams, Ambassador Sir Richard Evans and Vice-Foreign Minister Mr. ZHOU Nan. The same evening, the Governor tabled at a special LegCo sitting the Draft Agreement between the Government of the United Kingdom and Great Britain and Northern Ireland and the Government of the People's Republic of China on the Future of Hong Kong. Simultaneously the Draft Agreement was issued in the U.K. as White Paper Comnd. 9352. The Draft Agreement, which contained an Introduction, the Joint Declaration, three Annexes, the Exchange of Memoranda and Explanatory Notes, set out the future arrangements for Hong Kong after 1997. Copies in English and Chinese were distributed locally by the Hong Kong Government.

The Xinhua News Agency (Hong Kong Branch) distributed their own printed copies of the initialled text in English and Chinese without the Introduction and Explanatory Notes. It may be of interest to note that the final distribution amounted to 3,600,000 copies, as detailed in the table below.

Version Language	HMG Version	PRC Version
English	800,000 copies	400,000 copies
Chinese	1,600,000 copies	800,000 copies

After publication of the Joint Declaration, the Unofficial ExCo

Members issued a statement at a press conference on 28.9.84 which set out the rationale for their decision to endorse the Agreement and to commend it to the people of Hong Kong. A copy of their statement is at Appendix VI.

LegCo Debate on the Sino-British Joint Declaration (October 1984)

Following publication of the Joint Declaration, three days were set aside for a full debate in LegCo on 15.10.84, 16.10.84 and 18.10.84. The Motion, introduced by the Senior Member, Mr. R. H. Lobo, read:

"That this Council endorses the Draft Agreement on the Future of Hong Kong between the Governments of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and the People's Republic of China and commends it to the people of Hong Kong."

A total of 27 Members spoke. With the exception of two Unofficials, Mr. J. J. Swaine and Mr. CHAN Kam-chuen, who elected to abstain, all Members endorsed the Draft Agreement and commended it to the people of Hong Kong.

Introducing the Motion, Mr. Lobo said both the British and Chinese Governments had done their best to secure Hong Kong's future and the Agreement was a good one under the circumstances. He stressed that the choice was to accept the Agreement or face the future without one and he urged the community to make known their views to the Assessment Office.

Dr. Francis TIEN asserted that Chinese leaders would faithfully adhere to the terms of the Agreement and it would form a very good basis for the further economic development of Hong Kong. He called for inclusion of Hong Kong people in both the Joint Liaison Group and the Basic Law drafting committee.

Mr. Alex WU said the existing socio-economic systems in Hong Kong should be retained as far as possible, save all the necessary changes to bring about the transfer of sovereignty. He shared the view that Hong Kong people should be allowed to participate in drafting the Basic Law and he urged them to take the lead in future political as well as economic developments. In addition, he proposed that the Government should extend invitations to Chinese leaders to come to Hong Kong to gain a deeper appreciation of the running of the territory.

Mr. S. L. CHEN stressed that the Agreement was the highest form of commitment binding two sovereign states and provided sufficient detail to inspire confidence. He agreed Hong Kong people should assist in drafting the Basic Law and reiterated that the Chinese leadership had publicly re-affirmed its commitment to the "one country, two systems" policy.

Miss Lydia DUNN believed the Agreement would be faithfully implemented for six reasons. First, it was a formal and legally binding international agreement freely negotiated between two sovereign states; second, the Chinese leadership would surely not have committed so much effort into reaching an agreement if they had no intention of adhering to its terms; third, the Chinese leadership had publicly staked their personal prestige and reputation in the eyes of the world; fourth, the Chinese leadership had stated that it was in China's national interest to implement the terms of the Agreement; fifth, the Chinese people themselves would not easily accept any move which was likely to undermine the Hong Kong SAR's usefulness in the reconstruction of China; and finally, the Chinese leadership could not afford to prejudice the ultimate objective of securing the reunification of China by failing to observe the terms of the Agreement. She also said a suitable structure of Government had to be in place well before 1997 which would be able to stand the test of time after that.

Mr. Peter C. WONG warned that rejection of the Agreement might lead to a unilateral declaration by China, which might be less detailed and not legally binding. He pointed out that the question of nationality for minority groups had to be solved and he urged consultation with Hong Kong people in drafting the Basic Law. He stressed that preservation of the existing legal system was vital to Hong Kong's continued stability and prosperity, and the best guarantee for preserving the existing rights and freedoms. He added that continued employment of staff working for voluntary agencies and quasi-government bodies should be assured and that an early decision had to be made regarding the future arrangements for expatriate civil servants, particularly those whose career prospects might be adversely affected.

Mr. WONG Lam said the Agreement contained more detail than expected. He asked for further clarifications of the relationship between the executive authorities and the legislature and how the latter would monitor the former; and the relationship between the laws already in force in Hong Kong, the Basic Law and the Chinese Constitution. He doubted the usefulness of the Assessment Office as the Agreement's passage through Parliament was a foregone conclusion. He stressed the importance of accepting the views of Hong Kong people when drafting the Basic Law and of establishing a political structure to bring about Hong Kong people ruling Hong Kong.

Dr. HO Kam-fai said the Agreement provided a sound basis for the continuation of Hong Kong's prosperity and stability and preservation of the existing lifestyle. He sought clarification on the question of military conscription in the Hong Kong SAR and the legal status of the Exchange of Memoranda vis-a-vis the Joint Declaration and its annexes. He pointed out that the existing system of providing social welfare services should be enshrined in the Basic Law and overseas Chinese of international reputation should be invited to serve on the Basic Law drafting committee.

Mr. Allen LEE said the Agreement had broadly satisfied the basic requirements outlined in the UMELCO statement issued in May, which were essential to the acceptability of any agreement. He urged Hong Kong people to look at the Agreement positively and play their part to ensure that Hong Kong would continue to grow in the future.

Mr. Andrew SO considered that the Agreement embodied the wishes and aspirations of most of the people of Hong Kong. He emphasised that, apart from maintaining prosperity, it was equally important to preserve the existing social and economic systems and the way of life in Hong Kong. He called on both Governments to continue to cooperate in a good spirit to deal with affairs relating to the future of Hong Kong.

Mr. F. K. HU raised the issue that Chinese military forces stationed in Hong Kong should be confined to remote border areas and be subject to Hong Kong civil and criminal law. In case of emergencies, the Chief Executive of the SAR should have full authority to command all military forces in Hong Kong. On the question of land, he said land leases not having the right of renewal and expiring after 30th June, 1997, should be dealt with in the same way as those that would expire before that date. Land zoned for Government, Institutional and Community use should only be taken over by Government in accordance with the needs of development programmes. Leases granted for special purposes should be extended beyond 1997. He added that the limit on the sale of land should be applied with reasonable flexibility and the exclusion of public housing land should extend to land required by the Hong Kong Housing Society.

Mr. WONG Po-yan believed the Agreement would be implemented by both Governments. He stressed that steps had to be taken before 1997 to obtain the agreement of Hong Kong's trading partners to ensure that existing external economic and trade links would be maintained. He shared the view of other Members that Hong Kong people should participate in drafting the Basic Law.

Mr. W. C. L. Brown said the Agreement was reasonable and sensible, and addressed all the issues raised in LegCo and elsewhere whilst the negotiations were in progress. He said the Agreement was the best possible one under the circumstances and had met with almost universal applause from parties overseas, including the Secretary General of the United Nations, and the leaders of all Hong Kong's major trading partners.

Mr. J. J. Swaine expressed doubts about a number of points, including the employment of judges from other common law jurisdictions; the possible difference in the perception of "elections" between the Chinese leadership and the people of Hong Kong; lack of safeguards that elections to the legislature would be free and genuine; and infiltration of the political system and suppression of dissent by pressure or fear. He pointed out that Britain went to the negotiating table with one arm tied behind her back since she had long closed the door to Hong Kong by a series of immigration and nationality acts. He said he could not endorse the Agreement or commend it to the people of Hong Kong because he regarded it as the best of a bad deal. He abstained from voting.

Mr. CHAN Kam-chuen said uncertainty over the future had caused a 107.9% increase in the number of emigrants from Hong Kong in the past five years. He added that people who had experience of past political turmoil in China would not believe China's promises and he voiced reservations about the faithful implementation of the Agreement. He feared the ceiling placed on the sale of land might have undesirable implications for Hong Kong's reserves and annual budgets, and that the Land Commission and the Joint Liaison Group were bound to interfere with the functions of the Hong Kong Government. He also abstained from voting.

Mr. Stephen CHEONG felt the Agreement provided a stronger guarantee of Hong Kong's institutions, rights and freedoms than did the Letters Patent and Royal Instructions. He reiterated that the Chinese leadership had publicly re-affirmed their commitment to the "one country, two systems" policy. He echoed the views of others that the Basic Law should be formulated after the opinions of Hong Kong people had been fully considered. He urged Britain and China to help Hong Kong to maintain existing trade agreements, its role in GATT and in other international organisations. He pointed out that over the next 13 years, Hong Kong should explore, develop and improve mutual understanding with China. He asked for further consideration of a possible claw-back arrangement in case the Government had to buy back Private Sector Participation Scheme property and dispose of flats at a price below the fixed price; and for alternative compensation in case the complete redemption of Letters B could not be achieved by 1997.

Mr. CHEUNG Yan-lung stressed the importance of stipulating the selection process for the future Chief Executive and the Legislature. He asked whether the Chief Executive would be empowered to issue military directives to maintain public order; whether there would be military conscription in the Hong Kong SAR; whether citizens of Hong Kong would be subject to state directions regarding their movement within China; whether new owners, who bought land from indigenous villagers, would be given equal treatment with indigenous villagers as regards rentals for old schedule lots, village lots, small houses and similar rural holdings; and whether rental assessments for agricultural land would continue to be the same. He said no agreement was better than a bad agreement and the Agreement was better than no agreement; he urged Hong Kong people to make a contribution to the future by speaking out.

Mrs. Selina CHOW pointed out that there should be a Hong Kong input to the drafting of the Basic Law and Hong Kong should be entrusted with its implementation and interpretation. She supported the calls for inclusion of Hong Kong representatives in the Joint Liaison Group and for Chinese people of international standing to advise on and monitor the drafting, implementation and subsequent amendments to the Basic Law. She warned against possible abuse of power by PLA troops stationed in Hong Kong and against China's direct interference in Hong Kong affairs.

Miss Maria TAM said the Agreement included adequate and detailed provisions to maintain Hong Kong's existing social and economic systems. She added that the concept of personal freedom and the legal procedures for its protection had to be preserved in the laws of the Hong Kong SAR. She stressed that Chinese military forces and other personnel stationed in Hong Kong should observe and abide by the laws of the Hong Kong SAR and that the Basic Law should not contradict China's laws relating to SARs. She believed that both Britain and China would fulfil the Agreement and the commitments set out in the Exchange of Memoranda. She asked whether welfare institutions run by welfare agencies would continue to exist; would the Basic Law reflect the text of the Agreement; would Hong Kong people be allowed to participate in drafting the Basic Law; would citizens of the Hong Kong SAR be required to serve in the PLA; would the new British passport be internationally recognised; would the problem of nationality of those Hong Kong children born after 1997 who were not of Chinese descent be satisfactorily resolved; and would both Governments help to enhance Hong Kong's international trading status through the Joint Liaison Group?

Dr. Henrietta IP considered the Agreement was a good one and better than anyone had expected. She pointed out that it would be very difficult to remove all anxieties and urged Hong Kong people to recover their confidence and direct their energies to building up Hong Kong.

Mr. CHAN Ying-lun said effective implementation of the Agreement depended largely on the effort and determination of China, Britain and Hong Kong. He called on the British Government to remain resolute in honouring her responsibilities and obligations in the coming 13 years. On the Joint Liaison Group, he stressed that the Group should confine its activities to those laid down in the Agreement, strive to maintain the international agreements Hong Kong had entered into and should consider allowing Hong Kong people to participate directly in arrangements for the transition. He supported the need to have a well-established elected Government in Hong Kong before 1997.

Mrs. Pauline NG agreed that the views and proposals of Hong Kong people on the Agreement should be taken into account in formulating the Basic Law. She reiterated the importance of preserving existing rights and freedoms and appealed for the total removal of Britain's reservations in respect of the application to Hong Kong of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights and the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights.

Mr. Peter POON welcomed the fact that the Agreement provided for the preservation of the basic rights and freedoms of the individual, financial autonomy for Hong Kong, continued employment of public servants, freedom of travel and an elected legislature. However, he warned that taxes might have to be raised substantially to compensate for the loss of revenue resulting from the new policy on the renewal of land leases, the limit on land sales and the sharing of premium income from land transactions. In addition, he cautioned that radical changes in the political structure introduced prematurely and hastily had to be avoided and asked for further amplification of the provision for ensuring genuine freedom of travel.

Mr. YEUNG Po-kwan said Hong Kong people should voice their opinions on the Agreement and these views should be taken into account in drafting the Basic Law. He considered the Basic Law should be formulated as soon as possible so as to put the hearts of the people at ease and urged Hong Kong people to take an active part in the local political process.

Dr. Kim CHAM called on both Governments to issue a joint statement to clarify provisions in the Agreement so as to remove any uncertainties arising from its interpretation. He stressed the importance of keeping the future monetary system separate and distinct from the official fiscal system and the need for effective management and control of the Exchange Fund. He further pointed out that the vital elements of a flexible and adaptive private sector, low taxation and a non-coercive system of fiscal and monetary regulation, had to be preserved.

Mr. Keith LAM said the Agreement should be an acceptable package to the people of Hong Kong, but he asked for clarification of a number of points. These included whether there were other provisions in the Chinese Constitution that would be applicable to Hong Kong or were relevant to the provisions of the Basic Law. He urged that special arrangements be made for "free-hold" land; that military conscription in the Hong Kong SAR should not be carried out; that Chinese troops stationed in Hong Kong should be subject to Hong Kong law; and that local advice be sought in drafting the Basic Law.

Mr. Carl TONG said the Agreement had taken into account Hong Kong's existing systems. He pointed out that the Joint Liaison Group should include local representatives and the people of Hong Kong should be kept fully informed throughout the transition period. He added that Her Majesty's Government, in conjunction with the Chinese Government, should clarify the status of non-Chinese Hong Kong BDTs after 1997 and that the Basic Law should include all necessary refinements to the Agreement.

The Chief Secretary, the Attorney General, the Financial Secretary, the Secretary for Security and the Secretary for Lands and Works spoke in reply. The Chief Secretary said the Agreement had included all the essential features. He pointed out that the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs had said that if there was a need to supplement, amplify or clarify the Agreement, and if both sides agreed, that could be done with the same good sense as the two Governments had dealt with the Agreement itself. In general, the Officials expressed the view that the Joint Declaration provided a comprehensive framework for the continuation of the existing socio-economic systems in Hong Kong and for the extension of these systems for 50 years beyond 1997. Clarification was given on many of the points raised by Unofficial Members, e.g. tariff preferences and export quotas; the land sales limit; redemption of Letters B; nationality provisions for BDTs and children born to non-Chinese BDTs after 1997; the legal status of the Exchange of Memoranda; arrangements for expatriate civil servants; and Hong Kong representation on the Joint Liaison Group.

In winding up, Mr. Lobo said the debate had responsibly reflected the reservations, fears and worries which had troubled many about the future. He added that people of Hong Kong were to participate in an unprecedented experiment which would see the absorption of a free enterprise society into a communist state; and only time and history would tell whether the high hopes for the Agreement were justified and whether Members had discharged their duties adequately.

The motion was carried.

2nd UMELCO Delegation to London (November/December 1984)

To ensure that Members of Parliament were fully briefed on the reactions, concerns and worries of the people of Hong Kong to the terms of the Joint Declaration, it was decided that a delegation should be sent to London to reflect the views and wishes of Hong Kong people before the Parliamentary debates. The delegation, jointly led by Sir S. Y. CHUNG and Mr. R. H. Lobo, included Miss Lydia DUNN, Mr. Q. W. LEE, Miss Maria TAM, Mr. Allen LEE, Mr. Andrew SO, Mr. CHEUNG Yan-lung, Mrs. Selina CHOW, Mr. CHAN Ying-lun and Mrs Rita FAN.

In parallel with the Assessment Office, UMELCO jointly with other largely mass media organisations, sponsored Survey Research Hong Kong Ltd. to conduct a comprehensive survey of over 6,000 persons to assess their reaction to the Sino-British Joint Declaration. Results of this survey were published in the major Chinese and English papers on 24.11.84.

Based on the findings of this major survey, and from representations and opinions expressed by various sectors of the community following publication of the Joint Declaration—but leaving aside the results of the Assessment Office exercise—a position paper was drawn up which confirmed general acceptance of the Agreement as a whole. However, it also reflected areas of doubt about the terms of the Agreement and made specific requests for a "Hong Kong input" in the Joint Liaison Group and in the drafting of the Basic Law. The position paper was published on 29.11.84 and distributed to all Members of the House of Commons and to selected Members of the House of Lords and to the UK media. A copy of the position paper is at Appendix VII.

The visit took place between 30.11.84 and 12.12.84. Apart from attending the debates in the House of Commons and the House of Lords on the Draft Agreement on 5.12.84 and 10.12.84 respectively, the delegation met the following groups:—

- (i) British-Hong Kong Parliamentary Group (Sir Peter Blaker)
- (ii) Foreign Affairs Select Committee (Sir Anthony Kershaw)

In addition, the delegation held discussions with a number of MPs, including Rt. Hon. David Owen, Rt. Hon. Denis Healey, Rt. Hon. Peter Rees, Mrs. Shirley Williams, Mr. George Robertson, Mr. Tom Clarke and Sir Paul Bryan. Meetings were also held with the Prime Minister, the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, Sir Geoffrey Howe, and the Minister with special responsibility for Hong Kong, Mr. Richard Luce. The delegation also met Rt. Hon. Lord Whitelaw, Lord MacLehose, Lord Rhodes, Lord Kennet, Lord Whaddon and Lord Lindsay.

The debate in the House of Commons was described by Sir S. Y. CHUNG as historic, serious and wide-ranging. In a statement to the press afterwards he said:

"... We were pleased that all the points in our position paper of November 29 were reflected in the debate. The major concerns and anxieties of the people of Hong Kong were raised by many MPs, and the Government, in reply, undertook that these would be fully taken into account and in its future discussions with the Chinese Government."

There was general agreement that whilst Hong Kong must move towards a representative form of Government this should be balanced with the need to preserve the stability and prosperity of Hong Kong. There was support by many for our suggestion of an annual report to be made in Parliament and we were encouraged that the Minister in reply agreed to find some system of accountability to the House of Commons on a regular basis.

The majority of MPs were in favour of participation by Hong Kong people in the drafting of the Basic Law and on the Joint Liaison Group.

The Motion in the House was passed unanimously. This marked the beginning of a new chapter for all of us in Hong Kong, a new chapter in which we all have a part to play."

Similarly, the debate in the House of Lords was considered to be balanced and realistic. Speaking afterwards outside the House of Lords, Mr. Lobo said:

"We are pleased that our message seems to have been well-received and that those who spoke put our points across."

As we said after the debate in the House of Commons last week, our purpose in coming to London was to explain the anxieties and hopes of Hong Kong people. We have done this and, as you have seen this afternoon, our points have been taken on board."

Signing of the Sino-British Joint Declaration

With the acceptance of the Draft Agreement by both Houses of Parliament, it was announced that the Official Signing Ceremony would take place on 19.12.84 in Beijing. The Prime Minister, Mrs. Margaret Thatcher, and the Chinese Premier, Mr. ZHAO Ziyang, officiated on behalf of the two Governments. A party of 12 UMELCO Members were among the 100 Hong Kong people invited by the Chinese authorities to attend this historic event in the Great Hall of the People (Beijing). They were Sir S. Y. CHUNG, Mr. R. H. Lobo, Mr. M. G. R. Sandberg, Mr. Q. W. LEE, Miss Maria TAM, Dr. Harry FANG, Dr. Francis TIEN, Mr. Peter C. WONG, Mr. W. C. L. Brown, Mr. Stephen CHEONG, Mrs. Selina CHOW and Dr. Henrietta IP. Speaking at the Ceremony, Mrs. Thatcher pledged that:

"... the British Government will do all in its power to make the Agreement a success. It will be our pride and our pleasure to administer Hong Kong up to the 30 June, 1997, in accordance with the highest principles of British Administration. We shall administer it prudently with foresight and in the best interest of the people."

On 20.12.84, Mrs. Thatcher visited Hong Kong. She lunched with UMELCO immediately after her arrival from Beijing. In the evening she addressed a joint session of ExCo and LegCo and gave a press conference before she left the following day.

Responding to the Prime Minister's address after the joint session, Sir S. Y. CHUNG agreed with Mrs. Thatcher that it was a momentous occasion. He added:

"I should particularly like to endorse the Prime Minister's remarks about the need in Hong Kong to move towards a more representative Government, but that at the same time 'we must avoid sudden and dramatic changes which might have a disturbing effect.' As the Prime Minister rightly said, 'we need to build, but to build carefully and securely.'"

I agree with the Prime Minister that the signing of the Joint Declaration 'is not the end'. Much of the success of this unique Agreement lies in the hands of all of us, the people of Hong Kong. We, the people of Hong Kong, have made Hong Kong what it is today, a territory respected internationally for its achievements. I have no doubt that, given continued understanding and sensitivity by both the British and Chinese Governments and the faithful implementation of this Agreement, the people of Hong Kong will face up to the changes ahead with their usual resilience, courage and confidence and that what we have witnessed today is the beginning of another chapter in Hong Kong's proud history."

As Sir S. Y. CHUNG pointed out, acceptance of the Joint Declaration marks the beginning of a fresh chapter in Hong Kong's history. It remains necessary for legislation to be passed in the UK Parliament before the Agreement is ratified in June 1985. This legislation is likely to be introduced early in the new year and must provide for sovereignty over Hong Kong to revert to China on 1st July 1997. It is expected that it will also make provision for the future nationality title and status of Hong Kong's British subjects (BDTs).

CHAPTER 3 Executive Council

The Executive Council (ExCo) is primarily a consultative body. Its functions are similar to those of the Cabinet in Britain and its proceedings are confidential. ExCo meets in private, usually once a week, to advise the Governor on all matters of importance. Extra meetings are held for matters requiring urgent attention. Eleven Unofficials served on the Council during the year. They were:

Sir S. Y. CHUNG, CBE, LL.D., D.Sc., JP
(Senior Unofficial Member of ExCo)
Mr. O. V. CHEUNG, CBE, QC, LL.D., JP
Mr. R. H. Lobo, CBE, LL.D., JP
Mr. LI Fook-wo, CBE, D.Sc., JP
Mr. M. G. R. Sandberg, CBE, JP
Mr. LO Tak-shing, CBE, JP
Mr. D. K. Newbigging, OBE, JP
(retired January, 1984)

Miss Lydia DUNN, CBE, JP
Mr. Q. W. LEE, CBE, JP
Mr. S. L. CHEN, CBE, JP
Miss Maria TAM, OBE, JP
Five Members of ExCo also served concurrently on LegCo: Mr. R. H. Lobo, Mr. LO Tak-shing, Miss Lydia DUNN, Mr. S. L. CHEN and Miss Maria TAM.
As ExCo meetings are secret, an account of the work of the Unofficials on the business of ExCo cannot be given. However, no legislation, Government policy or change in policy can be made without the Council's prior advice and agreement. If the Governor decides to act against the advice given by his unofficial advisers, he must report his reasons to the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs in London.

There were 53 regular meetings of ExCo during the period covered by this report to consider normal business and an additional 91 meetings were convened in the period 1st September 1983 and 31st December 1984 to discuss the future of Hong Kong.

Visits to London

As reported in Chapter II, the Unofficials of ExCo accompanied the Governor on several visits to London as part of a continuing process of consultation with the Prime Minister and other senior Ministers on the future of Hong Kong.

CHAPTER 4 Legislative Council

The main functions of the Legislative Council are to enact laws, control public expenditure and debate matters of public concern. The Council meets in public fortnightly throughout most of the year.

The procedures of the Council are broadly similar to those of a parliament and questions may be asked by the Unofficial Members relating to any area of Government responsibility. Question time also provides an opportunity for Unofficial Members to obtain explanations of official actions and intentions in regard to topical issues. The questions—usually numbering between 15 and 20 per sitting—stem from Unofficial Members' wide public contacts, as well as from complaints and representations made to the UMELCO Office and points arising from regular district visits. The views of Unofficial Members expressed in LegCo have a strong influence on Government policies.

The President of the Council is the Governor, and the Chief Secretary, Financial Secretary and Attorney General are ex-officio Members. In 1983-84, there were 15 nominated Official and 29 Unofficial Members of LegCo. The Unofficial Members were:

Mr. R. H. Lobo, CBE, LL.D, JP
(Senior Unofficial Member of LegCo)
Dr. Harry FANG, CBE, LL.D, JP
Mr. LO Tak-shing, CBE, MA, JP

Standing Orders of LegCo

The proceedings of LegCo are governed by Standing Orders made by the Council in pursuance of the Hong Kong Royal Instructions. Following a revision of Standing Orders by a working party set up in the 1982-83 session, further amendments were moved by the Acting Chief Secretary, Mr. Denis Bray, on 18.7.84. The new amendments became effective on 20.7.84 and included:

(i) A new Standing Order 7A to provide that the Governor may, where he is satisfied that the public interest so requires, determine that a sitting of the Council shall be held on such day and shall begin at such hour as he may specify, and that the procedures for that sitting should follow those for any ordinary sitting held during a session.

(ii) A new Standing Order 8(4) to prohibit any new business after the six o'clock hour of interruption—other than adjournment debates—but explicitly providing that a motion to waive Standing Order 8 shall not count as new business.

(iii) An amendment to Order 60A to provide for public meetings of the Public Accounts Committee.

(iv) A new Standing Order 4A to establish the title of Counsel to the Legislature to denote the special position which the Law Draftsman occupies in the workings of the Council.

In moving the amendments, Mr. Bray said that as the work of the Council developed in sophistication and complexity Standing Orders should keep up with needs and changes. He added that reviews of Standing Orders would continue to ensure that their provisions remained up-to-date and as rational as possible.

Business of LegCo

There were 27 public sittings of LegCo during the 1983-84 Session. Two major parliamentary events of the Council each year are the Governor's opening address at the commencement of the Session and the annual budget debate. It is customary for the Governor to review Government plans and development proposals annually at the first meeting of the Session which usually takes place during the first week of October, and the opportunity is taken by Unofficial Members to debate matters of public concern and all facets of Government business. At the time of the annual budget presentation, groups of Unofficials analyse and study in depth the Government's proposals.

Annual Policy Debate

The Governor delivered his annual policy address at the opening of LegCo on 5.10.83. Twenty-four Unofficials spoke to the Motion of Thanks on 26.10.83 and 27.10.83 and the Officials replied on 9.11.83 and 10.11.83. The main subjects covered by the Unofficials included:—

Education

Establish a Commission to advise on priorities for the development of education at all levels and to define educational objectives; improve language standards in schools; choice of emphasis on quality or quantity in the development of secondary education; possible problems and repercussions resulting from the abolition of the Junior Secondary Education Assessment; a co-ordinated strategy required for the development of Hong Kong's young people to ensure that efforts are complementary and not wasted through unnecessary duplication; early decision on whether a third university should be built; establishment of a working party under the aegis of the University and Polytechnic Grants Committee to consider the provision of an alternative form of higher education for mature students; establish an open university to co-ordinate and extend continuing education; develop a flexible, responsive and pragmatic education system that takes into account the aspirations of the community; evaluate results of the moral education programme currently being followed in schools; the development of student-centered, self-learning programmes for those who need continuing education; encouragement for teachers to attain better qualifications and professional training; introduction of a "general studies" course at Form VI level to give students an insight into disciplines which are not their main courses of study; the possibility of giving Government subsidies to suitably qualified students on "approved" training courses; the formation of an education development fund through private donations; and provide subsidised places to all school children who aspire to study in Form IV.

Economy

Hong Kong's industry must continue to invest in modern plant and machinery to keep abreast of advancing technology, increased productivity and upgrade products; endorsement of government's monetary package to stabilise the then falling Hong Kong dollar; the need for a conservative budget and assistance to such foreign exchange earners as exports and tourism; Government's commitment to maintain and improve the legal and institutional framework of the financial sector welcomed; and the Government should be firm in introducing measures and legislation speedily where the public interest clearly overrides sectional interests.

Administration

Review the organisation and procedures of Government departments with the view to giving better effect to the decisions of Urbco and the advice of district boards; changes in the composition of Legislative Council are welcomed; advice of district boards should be sought on issues of territory-wide interest and significance; district boards should be encouraged to participate in the management of local community and recreational facilities; Government should review and update established procedures; a review should be undertaken to ensure that the ties between district boards and area committees are strengthened so as to further improve the operation of the district administration scheme; need for a staff college to provide training at various levels for professional, administrative and executive officers; and a fundamental reappraisal was necessary of the central machinery of Government and its management structure generally.

Future of Hong Kong

Government should make periodic announcements about the talks on the future of Hong Kong to correct misguided reports and speculation; the public should not speculate on the outcome of the talks; praise for the Government's determination to pursue the talks to a successful conclusion, to continue the development of Hong Kong's infrastructure and the planned expansion in social programmes; the future stability and prosperity of Hong Kong can better be achieved by the continuation of British administration and the preservation of the existing system of administering justice; the need for confidentiality about the talks must be respected and accepted; and continuation of the present system of administration, law and judicial independence is essential to preserve prosperity.

Social Welfare

Legislation on the lines of the Child Care Centres Ordinance should be introduced requiring the registration of privately-run homes; the scales of the various social security payments should be reviewed; special attention should be paid to the actual provision of places in half-way houses and the staffing of these institutions.

Industry

The need for industrial diversification and the acquisition of technology; an exhibition centre should be built; concern over the growing body of labour legislation which could have the effect of increasing production costs; Government should treat its consultancy on the monitoring of the power companies as something much more important than purely a public relations exercise.

Medical and Health

Consideration of the possibility of setting up a hospital authority to provide for the needs of both the Medical and Health Department and the University of Hong Kong Medical Faculty over the use of hospitals for teaching purposes; appointment of a panel of overseas and local experts to take a broad look at Hong Kong's medical and health programme over the next 10 years; need for a paediatric medical centre-cum-hospital; criticism of the Government for failing to implement recommendations of the management review team set up to look into the organisation and management of the Medical and Health Department.

Housing

Government plans to rehouse about half of the 100,000 families living in temporary huts over the next five years and the programme to improve safety, sanitation and environmental conditions in squatter areas welcomed; Government should take a fresh look at all aspects of its long-term public housing policy, including the establishment of a realistic ratio between rental housing and home ownership; the housing needs of the middle-income class should also be reviewed.

Miscellaneous

Government should make a prompt decision on the proposed nuclear power station at Daya Bay, which would be of benefit to both China and Hong Kong; the need for a review of deportation policy; a legal aid fund should be set up to help those who have a reasonable chance to succeed, but cannot afford the costs of civil litigation.

Annual Budget Debate

The Financial Secretary introduced the Appropriation Bill 1984 into LegCo on 29.2.84. Twenty-four Members spoke on 28.3.84 and 29.3.84 on the Government's fiscal policies and Budget proposals. The Officials replied on 18.4.84 and 19.4.84. The main subjects covered by the Unofficial Members included:

Administration

Consideration should be given to revamp the McKinsey system; civil servants who recently demanded salary adjustments beyond what the Government can afford should realistically look at the financial situation of the Government; one enlarged regional council for the whole territory would ensure uniformity and consistency in the implementation of guiding policies; the setting up of new departments or sections should be carried out with care; how seriously is the concept of increased productivity being applied to public sector activities; the Government should educate the public about elections; opening of the examination of the 1984-85 Estimates to the public welcomed; a special team should be attached to the Chief Secretary's office to review excessively complicated procedures; agree with the plan to keep annual overall growth of the civil service to below 2½ per cent; a training programme in management should be set up for civil servants; Government should be more critical of proposals to employ overseas consultants; and the policy of localisation of the civil service should be pursued with vigour so as to reduce the expenses of employing expatriate staff.

Economy and Finance

Private investment expenditure not matching the improvement in export demand; need to exercise stringent control over public sector expenditure; concern over the lack of a coherent Budget strategy; deficit financing is acceptable only as a short-term expedient; the Budget is a demonstration of Government's optimism and confidence in the territory's future; arguments for and against changing the peg of the Hong Kong dollar to the US dollar; fiscal reserves cannot be drawn down continuously to cover Budget deficits; urgent need to encourage growth in GDP by increasing expenditure on selected infrastructure projects; rises in fees and charges should be avoided during the year unless critical scrutiny establishes that an increase is justified; and suggestions on how priorities could be adjusted to make the Budget more fair and balanced.

Education

Early approval is needed on the setting up of technical institutes in Sha Tin and Tuen Mun; the establishment of the Education Commission is welcomed; increased expenditure on education is supported; rehabilitation experts needed to sit on the Vocational Training Council; the Junior Secondary Education Assessment should be abolished; inadequacy of school places for the mentally handicapped; the increase in funds for the construction and equipping of new school buildings is welcomed; the need for ample opportunities for students to participate in extra-curricular activities.

Future of Hong Kong

The agreement being negotiated between Britain and China should take fully into account the views, aspirations and fears of the people who live here; uncertainty is possibly a larger threat than lack of confidence; vital for Hong Kong to have confidence in its future; slowdown in capital investment in 1983 is a sign of the lack of confidence and political uncertainty; an early announcement on the current state of the Sino-British talks is necessary; Government should take steps to allay civil servants' worries; Government should reveal early the general plan for the future of Hong Kong; and the people of Hong Kong are urged to act positively and have confidence in their own future.

Land and Housing

The Housing Authority should pursue a sound rental policy to reduce the gap between actual costs and rental income from public housing.

Trade and Industry

Early review required of the textile quota allocation system; policies towards enhancing the growth of manufacturing industries should be reviewed regularly; need to establish a centralised co-ordinating body to promote and disseminate relevant technological information among industrialists; devaluation of the Hong Kong dollar has provided a temporary edge over competing exporters elsewhere.

Labour

Consideration should be given to the establishment of a Central Provident Fund; expansion of the apprenticeship inspectorate; the need for more stringent policing by factory inspectors to improve industrial safety.

Public Works and Utilities

The construction of a second cross harbour tunnel should be examined without further delay; the growth rate of inefficient road users, such as private cars, should be restrained through fiscal measures; Government should take a more critical look at public works expenditure and postpone some new projects so as to balance the Budget.

Social Welfare

A Commissioner for Rehabilitation should be appointed; concern over fee increases for hostels, homes and half-way houses; Government should not delay any of its development plans for social services.

Taxation

The Financial Secretary's taxation proposals are particularly harsh on the so-called 'sandwich' class; consideration should be given to tax goods which only the well-off could normally afford; there should be an increase on the petrol tax except for meeting public transport needs; arguments for and against the proposed cross harbour tunnel tax as a measure to alleviate traffic congestion; the proposed cross harbour tunnel tax should not be imposed at a uniform rate at all times and should take account of periods of high and low demand; the two percent increase in direct taxation is justified; tax bands of net chargeable income should be set at $15,000 intervals; Government should reconfirm its commitment to the basic principle that taxation should only be applied to income arising in Hong Kong; taxing interest earned overseas is incompatible with the principle and spirit of the existing tax system in Hong Kong; consideration should be given to adjusting personal allowances upwards to reflect inflation; fees and charges must be kept under constant review and brought into line with costs; and part of the income of working wives should be exempted from taxation.

Miscellaneous

The establishment and privatisation of public corporations should continue; introduce radical reforms to improve efficiency in environmental protection; examine whether radio and television programmes maintain an acceptable standard of language; expand evening out-patient services.

Bills

During the 1983-84 Session, 89 Bills were passed by LegCo (see Appendix XIV). Twenty-four Bills were amended in the course of their passage through the Council, mainly in response to public representations taken up by Unofficial Members. Some of the more important items are reported in the following paragraphs:

Employment (Amendment) Bill 1983

First Reading: 13.7.83

Second and Third Readings: 12.10.83

The purpose of this Bill was to increase sickness benefits under the Employment Ordinance. It proposed to increase sick leave entitlements from one day for every completed month of service to two days per month for the first 12 months and four days per month thereafter; and that such entitlement might be accumulated from a maximum of 36 days to 90 days without an element of hospital stay and 120 days with an element of hospital stay.

Following introduction of the Bill, a large number of representations were received from both employers' and employees' associations. In the light of the conflicting views received, an Ad Hoc Group under the convenership of Mr. Peter C. WONG, which had been set up to study the Bill, decided that it should be deferred so that the representations could be studied thoroughly. In the end, 28 representations from employers' and employees' associations were received and examined by the Ad Hoc Group which comprised 22 Unofficial Members. The Group held a total of 15 meetings, including seven with various organisations and five with the Administration before debate on the Bill could be resumed. Members generally accepted that the ceiling for sick leave should be 120 days. However, the Group recommended and the Administration agreed to amend the Bill as follows:

- (i) to delete the hospitalisation element proposed in the Bill;
- (ii) to require any claim for sickness benefits in excess of the existing maximum 36 days to be supported by a medical certificate from a hospital-based doctor; and
- (iii) to modify the sick leave earning rate to two days per month for the first year of employment and four days from the second year onwards, so that a worker could earn the maximum of 120 days in three years.

At the debate on second reading, 11 Members, Mr. LO Tak-shing, Fr. Patrick T. McGovern, Mr. Peter C. WONG, Mr. WONG Lam, Mr. Andrew SO, Mr. F. K. HU, Mr. WONG Po-yan, Mr. CHAN Kam-chuen, Mr. Stephen CHEONG, Mrs. Selina CHOW and Dr. Henrietta IP, spoke.

Mr. LO explained the amendments recommended by the Ad Hoc Group as a compromise between the immediate short-term interests of employers and employees.

Abstaining from voting, Fr. McGovern registered his disgust not only at the way the Bill had been mangled by amendments but also at the damage that had been and would be done to harmonious industrial relations at a sensitive time in Hong Kong's history. He observed that the Bill as originally introduced was already a long overdue effort to improve employees' sickness benefits.

Mr. Peter C. WONG reported that the spirit of the Bill was not in dispute. He then outlined the modifications recommended by Unofficial Members which he considered a reasonable and workable package. He also urged the Government to consider the employee groups' suggestion of a comprehensive social security scheme, and the employer associations' suggestion that the consultation process of the Labour Advisory Board be improved.

Mr. WONG Lam supported the Bill, but pointed out that it failed to guard against abuse of sick leave by employees and failed to provide for appropriate supervision or punishment of those irresponsible employers who might try to dismiss, for trumped up reasons, aged and infirm employees who were entitled to long, accumulated paid sick leave.

Mr. SO opposed the amendments to the original Bill, which aimed to provide financial assistance for sick workers in the absence of a comprehensive social security scheme; he abstained from voting.

Mr. HU said the sickness benefits to employees in Hong Kong should be improved so that they were comparable to those of neighbouring countries. He supported the Bill as it was moving in the right direction, but he stressed the need to monitor developments and to review the position regularly. He also urged the Administration to give early consideration to the welfare of non-manual workers who were not protected by the Employees' Compensation Ordinance.

Mr. WONG Po-yan supported the Bill as the amendments introduced were an honest attempt to strike a balance between the interests of all the parties concerned.

Mr. K. C. CHAN said members of the Labour Advisory Board, of which he was a member, were reasonably satisfied that the Bill represented an improvement for employees suffering from "genuine" prolonged sickness. He considered the certification of extended sick leave by a hospital-based doctor would safeguard abuse. In conclusion, Mr. CHAN urged pressure groups not to rock the boat in these stormy days.

Mr. CHEONG said the amendments would safeguard and limit possible abuses and covered various contingencies.

Mrs. CHOW said it was not a matter of abuse or not, but of where to draw the line. It was up to employees to guard against relaxation of self-discipline which would undermine productivity and efficiency of the work force in Hong Kong.

Dr. IP supported the Bill and noted that doctors would be given the privilege of recommending sick leave. Dr. IP said it was important that doctors keep a file copy of sick leave certificates issued so that cross checking was possible to prevent abuse.

In reply, the Commissioner for Labour thanked Unofficial Members for the proposed amendments. He said it would be unrealistic to expect the Bill, as amended, to please all concerned, but it did represent a reasonable compromise between sharply conflicting views. He added that to avoid misunderstanding the Labour Department would issue a guide to explain the legislation. The Commissioner for Labour also spoke in defence of the consultative process followed by the Labour Advisory Board.

At the Committee Stage, Mr. LO proposed amendments to five clauses. These amendments were to extend the period during which sick leave could be earned at two days per month from the first three months of employment to the first 12 months; to make transitional arrangements by introducing a form of retroactive legislation governing the rate at which sick leave was to be earned; to remove the hospital stay requirement for sick leave in excess of 90 consecutive days; to require employers to keep a sick leave record to show the sick leave position of each employee; to divide sick leave entitlement into two categories: category 1 to contain the sick leave earned up to 36 days and category 2 to contain the sick leave earned other than category 1 up to a maximum of 84 days; and to require sick leave be first deducted from category 1.

The Commissioner for Labour also proposed an amendment at the Committee Stage to enable the Bill to come into operation on a day to be appointed by the Governor. The proposed day was 1.11.83.

All the amendments were agreed and the Bill was read the third time and passed.

City Polytechnic of Hong Kong Bill 1983

First Reading: 9.1.83

Second and Third Readings: 23.11.83

The Bill provided for the establishment and incorporation of the City Polytechnic of Hong Kong. The purpose of the Bill was to seek to establish the City Polytechnic as an incorporated body with perpetual succession and specify its objectives and powers; establish a Council as the governing and executive body and stipulate its membership; provide for the appointment of a Director and other staff; provide for the establishment of an Academic Board; and regulate accounting and other financial reporting procedures.

The Bill was studied by the LegCo Social Services Group under the convenership of Dr. Harry FANG. After seeking clarification from the Administration on a number of clauses, the Group supported all the provisions in the Bill.

Dr. FANG spoke at the second reading debate. He urged that the provision of students' hostels be seriously considered so as to facilitate social interaction among students and provide those who came from poor families and remote districts with a better place for study. Mr. S. L. CHEN welcomed the Bill and noted an increasing demand by the young people of Hong Kong for a Polytechnic-type tertiary education, and an increasing demand by local commerce, industry and community services for Polytechnic-trained graduates. It was therefore a timely decision for Government to establish a second polytechnic.

Dr. HO Kam-fai emphasised that a proper industrial infra-structure and a sound economy required contributions from technical personnel at all levels. It was therefore imperative for Government to ensure the balanced development of technical manpower.

In reply, the Secretary for Education and Manpower agreed to consider Dr. FANG's remarks about hostels and agreed with Dr. HO that the balanced development of technical manpower was important. He said the Administration would aim to achieve this in planning technical education and industrial training.

*Banking (Amendment) Bill 1983
Deposit Taking Companies
(Amendment) Bill 1983*

First Reading: 10.8.83

Second and Third Readings: 7.12.83

These two Bills sought to amend their respective principal Ordinances to improve further the level of protection afforded to depositors and investors. The main provisions in the two Bills were to impose tighter limits on lending by a deposit-taking company (DTC) or a bank to a single customer or grouping and to directors; to limit the amount of money placed by a bank or a DTC with foreign banks; to require the auditor of a DTC to report to the Authority matters affecting the financial position of the company and contraventions of the DTC Ordinance; and to clarify the provisions of both Ordinances relating to secrecy.

Following publication of the Bills, representations were received from the Hong Kong Deposit-taking Companies Association, the Finance Houses Association of Hong Kong Ltd., the Chinese Association of Finance Companies Ltd., the Hong Kong Society of Accountants, the Hong Kong Association of Banks and a number of finance companies. The Bills and the representations were examined by the LegCo Monetary Policy Group under the convenership of Mr. W. C. L. Brown.

The Group held discussions among themselves and with the Commissioner of Banking and the Commissioner of Deposit-taking Companies, as well as with other senior Government officials. Members supported the reservations of the business community in relation to the role of the auditor and the requirement which could compel the disclosure of privileged information by a solicitor. The Administration agreed to amend the Bills accordingly and in addition a number of other technical amendments were agreed.

At the debate on the second reading, Mr. Brown declared his interest as Chairman of the Hong Kong Association of Banks and as an executive holding positions with both a bank and a deposit-taking company. He added that the financial community generally supported the aims and principles of the Bills. Nonetheless, he related the concern raised on the proposed powers for the Commissioner of Banking to limit monies placed with a foreign bank, and on the restrictive definition of "company" in the principal Ordinance.

In reply, the Financial Secretary thanked Unofficial Members for the consideration given to the Bills and to the many representations that had been made. He gave the assurance sought by Mr. Brown that the Commissioner of Banking would exercise with discretion his power to limit placements of money with a foreign bank, provided the foreign bank was considered adequately supervised by its parent authority. He also agreed to review the definition of "company" at some future date.

At the committee stage, Mr. Brown and the Financial Secretary moved amendments to 14 clauses and seven clauses respectively. Among these were amendments to provide some flexibility in restricting advances to directors and to cover transitional arrangements.

Debtors (Arrest and Imprisonment) Bill 1983

First Reading: 7.12.83

Second and Third Readings: 11.1.84

The Bill's object was to reform the law relating to the arrest and imprisonment of civil debtors. Specifically, it sought to provide for court hearings prior to the arrest and imprisonment of persons against whom claims were made. It also clarified the rules governing the imprisonment of civil debtors.

Following publication of the Bill, representations were received from the Law Society of Hong Kong, the Hong Kong Bar Association, the Hong Kong Association of Banks, the Chinese Manufacturers' Association of Hong Kong, individual law firms, banks, finance houses and businessmen. The representations were considered by the LegCo General Services Working Group under the convenership of Mr. LO Tak-shing. The Group met the Deputy Law Draftsman and, in the light of advice from Unofficial Members, the Administration drafted a large number of amendments to the Bill.

The technical aspects of the Bill were studied by the Legislation Scrutiny Group under its convener, Mr. Peter C. WONG. The Group met four times and the Deputy Law Draftsman was in attendance at each session. As a result of these discussions further amendments were proposed and, in view of the complexity of the Bill, the Administration agreed to publish a revised Bill for information in the Gazette on 23.12.83.

More representations followed which were carefully considered by Members and resulted in further amendments to the Bill. It was apparent that there were two main bodies of opinion: one considered that imprisonment for debt should be completely abolished, while the other wished to maintain the existing arrangements. Members took the view that these views were entrenched and completely irreconcilable, and that the Bill as amended offered the best compromise.

When the debate on the Second Reading was resumed, Mr. Peter C. WONG outlined the changes proposed. He pointed out that whilst imprisonment would be ruled out, certain improvements had been made to ensure that recalcitrant debtors did not escape the provisions of the law. He said the reforms were long overdue. While preserving the rights of the creditor, he said, the Bill removed a glaring inequity and abolished an anachronism which belonged to another age.

Mr. Charles YEUNG took up the theme of the anachronistic nature of the existing law with reference to the writings of authors such as Charles Dickens. He went on to quote statistics in respect of debtors which indicated that over the past eight years debtors remained in prison, on average, for only 20 days. He noted that the imprisonment provisions constituted a deterrent, but it was also necessary to protect those who genuinely could not pay. In summing up he said he thought that if all the amendments were accepted the new Ordinance would be a piece of fair legislation which would receive the support of the community.

Mr. WONG Po-yan also spoke in support of the Bill, pointing out that while it appeared at first to be lenient to debtors it in fact provided a much greater level of legal redress than was available under existing legislation. Mr. CHAN Kam-chuen pointed out that under the old system only a small percentage of debtors ever found themselves in prison because most debtors were wilful defaulters who were deterred from further default by the threat of their creditors to throw them into prison. He believed however that the Bill should be supported, provided the Government monitored the possible consequences of it giving rise to the increased use of 'hired muscle'.

Mr. J. J. Swaine thanked the Attorney General's Chambers for agreeing to publish the revised Bill for information, something which had greatly assisted Unofficials in their consideration of the Bill. He also called attention to the pioneering efforts of his Unofficial colleagues, notably Mr. Peter C. WONG, to bring about this welcome measure of law reform.

Mr. Stephen CHEONG noted that many representations had been made on the Bill protesting at what was seen to be upsetting a piece of tested and proven legislation that had been designed with local conditions in mind. He did not subscribe to that view because in any civilised country with an acceptable legal system only the judiciary should have the right to hand down jail sentences.

In reply, the Attorney General noted that some degree of opposition had been expressed to the Bill, elements of which Mr. CHAN and Mr. YEUNG had pointed out. He paid tribute to the time, effort and wisdom Unofficial Members had contributed to the Bill and was grateful for the enthusiastic welcome they had in general given to its compromise provisions which sought to reconcile the competing interests of creditors and debtors.

At the committee stage, Mr. Peter C. WONG, Mr. YEUNG and Mr. Swaine moved amendments to six clauses, while the Attorney General moved amendments to five clauses.

*Motor Vehicles (First Registration Tax) (Amendment) Bill 1984 Road Traffic (Registration and Licensing of Vehicles) Regulations (Amendment)
Bill 1984*

1st Reading: 11.1.84

*Resumption of Debate on 2nd Reading:
18.1.84*

On 11.1.84, the Secretary for Transport introduced a package of proposals to limit the growth of taxis following a comprehensive review of the taxi trade. He explained that taxis had always been regarded as personalised transport and, while it was acknowledged that they provided a valuable service within the transport mix, the Administration was of the view that their numbers could not be allowed to continue to grow. This was particularly important as other forms of public transport had significantly improved their standard of service. The Administration further took the view that, in view of the significant improvement in public transport services, there was no longer any need for taxis to be favoured by low First Registration Tax and annual licence fees. The First Registration Tax payable on taxis was to be the same as for private cars, while the annual licence fee was to be doubled to twice the level of that for private cars on the basis that taxis covered many more times the distance on the roads than the average private car. The diesel engine surcharge was also set at double the level for private cars.

The taxation measures were introduced under Public Revenue Protection Orders, a fact which provoked taxi operators to take immediate protest action. At 4.15 p.m. on 12.1.84 a group of operators arrived at Swire House and insisted on seeing UMELCO Members. Mr. F. K. HU, Mr. CHAN Kam-chuen and Mrs. Selina CHOW met the representatives who came from various taxi organisations. Numbers grew at the meeting as other drivers arrived and considerable congestion was caused by taxis parked along Connaught and Chater Roads. The demands made by the taxi operators were:—

(i) to pay the old First Registration Tax and annual licence fees;

(ii) to allow successful tenderers in previous tender exercises to pay the old First Registration Tax and annual licence fees;

(iii) to allow replacement taxis to be exempted from the First Registration Tax; and

(iv) to recognise that taxis are a form of public transport.

The meeting continued until Members withdrew at 8.30 p.m. However, at the invitation of Members, the taxi operators continued their discussions in the UMELCO Office until 11.15 p.m.

The following day (13.1.84) traffic in Central was virtually immobilised by parked taxis. Similar chaos was caused in Nathan Road and at Tai Po which was completely cut off by a taxi blockade. The three Members who had met the representatives briefed a full meeting of LegCo Unofficials specially convened by Dr. Harry FANG. Members later held a meeting with the Secretary for Transport to explore options for improving the situation.

After meeting the Secretary for Transport, a delegation of Members led by Dr. FANG went to see the Acting Governor who agreed that an additional meeting of LegCo should be held on 18.1.84 to debate the Bills. Meanwhile, unruly elements in Kowloon unconnected with the taxi drivers took advantage of the tense situation to loot shops and create disorder in the streets.

After careful consideration of the measures proposed by the two Bills, Members were unanimously of the view that the package represented an unreasonable burden on many taxi operators and did not take adequate account of the complex position and problems of the taxi trade. They decided to oppose the Bills at the special sitting on 18.1.84. Members also considered that insufficient consultation had taken place and that the traditional principle of government by consensus had been transgressed in this instance.

On 13.1.84 Members held a press conference at 11.45 p.m. and issued a press release informing the taxi trade representatives that Unofficial LegCo Members would oppose the Bills at the forthcoming special LegCo meeting. They also urged the taxi operators to resume normal operations immediately in the general interests of the community. The taxi blockades began to disperse shortly afterwards.

At the LegCo meeting on 18.1.84, 22 Unofficials spoke. Dr. FANG opened by putting the taxi increases in the context of the operating costs of running a taxi. He pointed out that, although Government had agreed to a 17% increase in fares—against the operators' long-standing request for a 33% increase—this would now have to cover the additional estimated 7½% increase in operating costs caused by the new taxes. Dr. FANG said while the manner in which the taxi operators had chosen to demonstrate their dissatisfaction was to be regretted, there could be no doubt as to their sincere concern and depth of feeling at what they believed to be forces threatening their livelihood. He said it was Members' unanimous view that the package as a whole represented an unreasonable burden on many taxi operators and did not take adequate account of the complex position and problems of the taxi trade. Dr. FANG urged a radical rethink of the entire package, not as a sign of weakness and capitulation but as an earnest indication of an open Government sensitive to public reaction and ever willing to seek just and fair solutions to whatever problems might confront the community.

Dr. Francis TIEN saw the proposal to regulate the taxi trade by fiscal means as running contrary to the basic free enterprise system of Hong Kong and Mr. Alex WU stated his anxiety that policies were being devised purely on the basis of a statistical analysis without taking account of the human factor. Fr. Patrick T. McGovern pointed out that the amendments proposed were associated with taxi fare increases under the Road Traffic (Public Service Vehicles) (Amendment) Regulations; this, he considered, negated the claim that taxis were personalised transport. He also hoped the debate showed that the limited democracy of an appointed unofficial membership in LegCo could work.

Mr. Peter C. WONG criticised the imposition of a sudden hefty increase in fees without warning and considered the proposed increases "excessive and inequitable". He also pointed out that taxis provided a useful public transport service. Mr. WONG Lam also agreed that taxis were a means of public transport and urged the Government to consider the plight of the large number of taxi operators who had borrowed money to pay for their vehicles.

Mr. Charles YEUNG spoke of the "social and financial aspects" of taxis on the transport scene and pointed out the communication breakdown in the Government's consultation process. Dr. HO Kam-fai refuted the argument that taxis were a form of personalised transport and drew attention to the value of their services to the disabled, the elderly, the sick and injured and those not able to commute by the crowded mass carriers. Mr. Andrew SO, Mr. HU and Mr. CHAN were critical of the abrupt and drastic increases proposed.

Mr. W. C. L. Brown addressed the question of whether Members, in voting against the Bill, were merely giving in to pressure. He noted that it was unfortunate that the normal time-frame for the study of Bills was denied to Members in this instance; however he accepted that the need for action was urgent and that all that had happened was that Members had studied the Bills rather faster than they might otherwise have done. He considered if there were a victor in this particular case it was the system of Government which enabled Unofficials to oppose Bills which they believed required further consideration.

Mr. J. J. Swaine spoke of the human element in transport policy. Mr. Stephen CHEONG considered that the proposed tax increases would have the opposite effect to what they were intended to have, as increased costs would mean increased fares which would result in a higher level of consumer resistance and thus more taxis cruising empty. Mr. CHEUNG Yan-lung condemned the strike action taken by the taxi trade, but did not agree with the policy of treating taxis as personalised transport. Mrs. CHOW's opposition to the Bill was on the basis that the timing was wrong, consultation had been inadequate and because she did not agree with the logic on which the Bills were based. Both Dr. Henrietta IP and Mr. CHAN Ying-lun considered the proposed increases particularly unfair on the 973 taxi owners who had successfully tendered before the Bills were introduced.

Mrs. Rita FAN shared Mrs. CHOW's view that the increases coming as they did at Chinese New Year were a particular hardship to taxi operators. She considered, however, that the way in which they had expressed their dissatisfaction was regrettable.

In opposing the Bills, Mrs. Pauline NG urged the Government not to ignore the value of taxis to the general public. Mr. Peter POON said the taxi trade was complex and fragmented and felt that the Government should undertake a more in-depth study of financial aspects of the trade. Mr. YEUNG Po-kwan spoke of anxiety and resentment against use of the Public Revenue Protection Orders.

In reply, the Secretary for Home Affairs spoke of the consultation which had taken place on the proposed Bills. The Attorney General said the events had been a vindication of the present system in Hong Kong and had demonstrated that LegCo was the ultimate safeguard if the Government misjudged what was politically acceptable to Hong Kong. After the Secretary for Transport explained and amplified the reasoning behind the policy package, the question that the Bills be read a second time was put and defeated, with the Officials abstaining from voting.

Companies (Amendment) Bill 1983

First Reading: 9.3.83

Second and Third Readings: 25.1.84

The purpose of the Bill was to complete substantially a programme of legislation commenced in 1974 to implement recommendations of the Companies Law Revision Committee (CLRC). The Bill was first published in draft on 18.7.80 for general information. On publication, it attracted a number of public representations from organisations and individuals in the professional, business and academic sectors, including the Hong Kong General Chamber of Commerce, the Law Society and the Hong Kong Society of Accountants. These submissions were considered by the Registrar General whose written comments were referred to Unofficial Members in May, 1981.

Between November, 1981, and March, 1983, an Ad Hoc Group to consider the representations and comments of the Registrar General met 10 times, first under the convenership of Mr. S. L. CHEN, then Mr. W. C. L. Brown. They met twice with the Registrar General and sought detailed written clarification of a number of issues. It was finally agreed that all controversial issues on which agreement could not be reached should be withdrawn from the Bill and referred to a Standing Committee on Company Law Reform (SCCLR) for further consideration.

It was against this background that the Companies (Amendment) Bill 1983 was re-published in the Gazette on 4.3.83 and introduced into LegCo on 9.3.83.

Another round of consultations followed, during which more comments and representations were received from organisations and individuals, including some who had given their comments previously. Again, these were considered by the Administration whose written comments were studied by Members. Meanwhile, the Ad Hoc Group met again to review and discuss the Bill, while the Legislation Scrutiny Group, convened by Mr. Peter C. WONG, looked at the technical aspects. As a result, the Ad Hoc Group met a further 15 times and the Legislation Scrutiny Group once.

Upon resumption of the debate, eight Unofficials spoke in support of the Bill.

Mr. Brown referred to the Bill as an important and complex piece of legislation. He described the "unusual step" Unofficials had taken in deliberating on comments from the public and reaching agreement with the Administration on a wide-ranging number of changes whilst the Bill was still in draft form and before being introduced into LegCo. He added that enactment of the Bill would merely take Hong Kong's company law to "a further milestone", and there was still a long way to go. He thus welcomed the establishment of the SCCLR with terms of reference calling for an annual report on progress made in regard to those matters referred to it for further examination. He then commended 22 items to the Committee for further examination.

Mindful of the numerous amendments proposed in the Bill and referring to a view expressed in the House of Lords when similar legislation in the United Kingdom was last debated, Mr. Brown proposed that it would assist all in understanding company legislation if, in the event that the SCCLR were to recommend further changes to company law, an entirely new Bill, rather than another voluminous amendment Bill, should be produced.

Mr. Peter C. WONG referred to company law as "one of the most fascinating of the legal subjects", and joined Mr. Brown in welcoming the establishment of the SCCLR. He said the Bill represented the culmination of almost two decades of concerted and arduous effort, and was a major step forward towards reform in the field of commercial law.

Mr. WONG Po-yan spoke of the importance to industry and the economy of an improved legal framework for the regulation of companies. He warned that where a self-regulation system proved inadequate a code of conduct would be required. The amendment Bill would provide such a code. Mr. WONG also welcomed establishment of the SCCLR.

Mr. Stephen CHEONG described introduction of the Bill as timely and suggested that it would help consolidate Hong Kong's success in preparation for the next phase of growth.

Miss Maria TAM stressed the importance of disclosing the true identity of the directors of a company and suggested amendments to the Bill that would further clarify directors' responsibilities and restrict their powers.

Mr. Peter POON welcomed the Bill which would "contribute to the improvement of financial reporting and auditing standards in Hong Kong", adding that it contained many amendments to update company legislation which had been lagging behind Hong Kong's rapid development as a leading financial centre.

The Secretary for Economic Services spoke in reply in the Second Reading debate. He thanked Mr. Brown and the Unofficials of the Ad Hoc Group for their support and for the time and effort they had spent in examining the Bill. In agreeing with Unofficials that a lot remained to be done in the field of company law reform, even after enactment of the Bill, he announced the establishment of the SCCLR under the chairmanship of Mr. Justice Cons and outlined the Committee's terms of reference. He also assured Mr. Brown that he would not lose sight of his suggestion to produce an entirely new Companies Bill rather than another voluminous amendment Bill.

At the Committee Stage, Mr. Peter C. WONG, Mr. Charles YEUNG, Mr. Andrew SO, Mr. WONG Po-yan, Mr. Stephen CHEONG, Miss Maria TAM and Mr. Peter POON moved amendments to 17 clauses and two schedules, while the Secretary for Economic Services moved amendments, mostly of a technical nature, to 41 clauses and four schedules.

Pawnbrokers' Bill 1983

First Reading: 10.8.83

Second and Third Readings: 15.1.84

The Bill's object was to repeal the existing Pawnbrokers' Ordinance and introduce certain changes to legislation regulating the operations of pawnbrokers. More specifically the Bill sought to raise the loan limit from $5,000 to $25,000, impose a maximum rate of interest applicable to all loans, improve licensing control by the Commissioner of Police in line with current licensing practices, and increase the level of penalties.

Shortly after the Bill's introduction, a group of representatives from the Hong Kong and Kowloon Pawnbrokers' Association came to UMELCO to raise points of concern. These, together with points raised at a subsequent meeting with the representatives, were considered by the LegCo General Services Working Group under the convenership of Mr. LO Tak-shing. The pawnbrokers were particularly concerned about the duty the Bill imposed on them to insure pawned items against fire or theft.

The Group met with the Administration and it was agreed with other matters that the pawnbrokers' liability to pay compensation should be limited. Amendments to this effect would be introduced and Mr. Charles YEUNG spoke in support of the Bill in the Second Reading debate.

In reply, the Secretary for Security thanked the Unofficial Members for the time and effort they had spent on the problems which had been brought to light, and their helpful suggestions for solving them. He also pledged to introduce regulations to ensure that clients would be adequately warned of the risks taken in pawning goods of a value greater than the maximum loan limit.

At the Committee Stage, the Secretary for Security moved amendments to six clauses to clarify that pawnbrokers would only be liable to make good the loss of, or damage to, pawned items if the loss or damage was a result of their default, neglect or misfeasance, and to limit the pawnbroker's liability for any article to $25,000, the maximum loan limit allowable under the Bill.

Magistrates (Amendment) Bill 1984

First Reading: 25.1.84

Second and Third Readings: 2.5.84

This Bill proposed that, generally, for charges classified as minor offences, a summons should not be issued to the defendant in the first instance, but that a notice of prosecution be issued and subsequent proceedings dealt with in the absence of the complainant and defendant unless the defendant wished to deny the charge or requested a hearing. Minor offences were those subject to a penalty not exceeding a fine of $10,000 and imprisonment for six months.

Following a meeting between the Legislation Scrutiny Group convened by Mr. Peter C. WONG and the Administration, some amendments to the Bill were agreed and certain administrative undertakings given by the Registrar of the Supreme Court as to the way in which the legislation would be implemented.

At the debate on the Second Reading, Mr. WONG spoke in support of the Bill. He said the simplified procedure for dealing with minor offences would save time and effort, as the defendant's appearance in court would not be required. Nonetheless he emphasised that the rights of the defendant would not be compromised in the administration of justice.

In reply the Attorney General made known the two administrative undertakings given by the Registrar of the Supreme Court:

(i) to include in the 'Notice of Payment of Fine' advice to the defendant on the steps he should take to dispute the fine if he claimed that he had never been served with a minor offence notice; and

(ii) to instruct his staff that, if a defendant contested the demand for payment on this basis, all further steps to enforce the fine would cease until the matter had been determined by a magistrate.

At the Committee Stage, Mr. WONG moved amendments to one clause to further protect the rights of defendants by increasing the period from 28 to 35 days during which the defendant could file a written notice requiring a hearing; and by deleting the provision to include the defendant's previous convictions in the notice of prosecution.

Employment (Amendment) Bill 1984

First Reading: 14.3.84

Second and Third Readings: 2.5.84

The purpose of the Bill was to increase severance payments to workers and extend the period during which claims for such payments had to be made from one month to three months after the date of termination or lay-off.

A large number of representations from both the employers' and employees' organisations were received. An Ad Hoc Group under the convenership of Dr. Harry FANG was formed to study the Bill and the representations. The Group met with a delegation of employers' representatives and three groups of employees' representatives and held in-depth discussions with the Administration. After careful consideration, Members generally agreed that the Bill should be allowed to pass and would provide better protection for workers.

In speaking at the debate on the Second Reading, Dr. FANG supported the Bill and summed up the points put forward by both employers' and employees' organisations. Mainly, the employers were worried that increased severance pay benefits would mean additional financial costs. They also considered the process of consultation in the Labour Advisory Board needed improvement. For their part the employees felt that severance pay should be raised to one month's pay for each year of service and that the qualifying period of service should be reduced to one year. In conclusion, Dr. FANG urged the Government to set up a Central Provident Fund to provide better protection to workers.

Fr. Patrick T. McGovern recalled that the original provision for severance pay had been passed by LegCo in June, 1974. Ten years had passed and employers were still using the same arguments in their efforts to keep workers' benefits to a minimum. He noted that the Bill contained only half the original proposals put forward to the Labour Advisory Board, and he supported the Bill on the ground that half a Bill was better than no Bill. However, he hoped the Administration would reconsider the sections not incorporated in this Bill as well as various other proposals which had been put forward over the years by workers' representatives.

Dr. HO Kam-fai said he supported the Bill, but noted possible labour disputes arising from the provision of security to workers who were caught up in contingencies such as child birth, sickness, injury and being laid off. Therefore, he supported Dr. FANG's point and asked the Administration to consider a centrally-administered provident fund scheme as an alternative which might provide greater security to workers.

Mr. Andrew SO supported the Bill by saying unrestrained welfare for the workforce would impede the initiative of society and asked for sincere co-operation between employers and employees to bring prosperity and progress to society. Mr. SO saw the aim as being to improve the welfare of workers step by step.

In reply, the Commissioner for Labour said he shared Fr. McGovern's desire to see further improvements to workers' welfare.

Cross Harbour Tunnel (Passage Tax) Bill 1984

First Reading: 25.4.84

Second and Third Readings: 16.5.84

The purpose of the Bill was to impose a passage tax on vehicles using the Cross-Harbour Tunnel in order to reduce non-essential use of the tunnel, thereby lessening congestion.

Following the Budget Speech at which the passage tax was proposed, critical comments and representations were received from a handicapped driver and the Hong Kong Automobile Association. Subsequent to introduction of the Bill in LegCo on 25.4.84, the Hong Kong Society for Rehabilitation and the Traffic and Transport Committee of Central and Western District Board also made representations to UMELCO.

An Ad Hoc Group was convened by Mr. S. L. CHEN to study the representations together with the provisions of the Bill. After careful consideration, Members fully agreed that for handicapped drivers cars were not a luxury and that they and the rehabuses should be exempted from the passage tax.

Four Members spoke at the debate on the Second Reading. Mr. CHEN and Dr. Harry FANG drew attention to the needs of the handicapped who did not have the option of taking public transport and welcomed the Administration's favourable response to the suggestion of exempting handicapped drivers. Mr. CHEN added that a flexible scheme of applying the tax during peak hours only could help even out the peaks and troughs of tunnel usage, and that the inability of the Tunnel Company's computer system to operate such a system and to distinguish between public and private light buses for tax purposes seemed singularly out of place in present day Hong Kong. Noting the assurance given by the Administration that revenue from tunnel taxes would be considered especially for transport purposes, he hoped that it would mean a commitment to the provision of a second fixed harbour crossing as soon as possible.

Fr. Patrick T. McGovern opposed the motion, saying the present generation of motorists had already paid for the existing cross-harbour tunnel and it would not be fair for them to start paying for the next harbour crossing which did not yet exist. He questioned the assumption that a considerable number of private motorists made unnecessary journeys through the tunnel and considered as unconvincing the suggestion that the Bill was justified on traffic management grounds.

Mr. WONG Lam abstained from voting on the Bill as he doubted the effectiveness of the tax in solving the congestion problem, pending completion of another cross-harbour link, because motorists would soon become accustomed to the tax and use the tunnel again. He said Government should settle the computer problem first with the Tunnel Company before introducing the tax.

In reply, the Secretary for Transport accepted the Unofficial Members' proposal for exempting disabled drivers from the tax. As regards rehabuses, he assured Members that the passage tax was regarded as a recognised cost for which additional subventions would be made. He considered it inappropriate for Government to ask the Cross Harbour Tunnel Company to change its computer system solely for Government's purpose. But, if the system was to be replaced or updated for other reasons, he would discuss with the Company how the revised system could take account of Government needs. He also said a final report on the second fixed harbour crossing would be submitted to ExCo by September, 1984.

Dr. FANG moved an amendment at the Committee Stage to provide for the exemption of disabled drivers from payment of the passage tax.

Medical Registration (Amendment) Bill 1984

First Reading: 25.1.84

Second and Third Readings: 16.5.84

The purpose of the Bill was to redefine existing foreign medical qualifications for registration as a medical practitioner in Hong Kong and to empower the Medical Council to exempt any person from any of the requirements for becoming a Licentiate.

After publication of the Bill, 13 representations from both groups and individuals were received. The Bill and the representations were studied by the LegCo Social Services Group under the convenership of Dr. Harry FANG. The Group members met with representatives of the Hong Kong Medical Association and the British Medical Association, Hong Kong Branch, to discuss the power granted to the Medical Council to exempt suitable candidates from the Licentiate Scheme and the appeal procedures proposed. The Group also met with the Administration to discuss the provisions of the Bill.

At the debate on the Second Reading, Dr. FANG supported the Bill as a measure to make it easier for persons holding overseas medical qualifications to be registered as medical practitioners in Hong Kong, but emphasised the need to maintain standards.

Dr. HO Kam-fai supported the Bill and urged the Medical Council through Government, in exercising its new powers in granting exemptions, to give special consideration without sacrificing standards to those candidates who had expressed a willingness to work in unpopular streams and to accept unpopular postings.

Dr. Henrietta IP said she had some reservations about the Bill, but would support it because the Administration had said that full exemption would only be granted on rare occasions, and that internal guidelines for exemptions would be worked out by the Medical Council. Moreover, she had confidence that members of the Medical Council would not lightly allow such full exemptions.

In reply, the Secretary for Health and Welfare thanked Dr. FANG, Dr. HO and Dr. IP for their support of the Bill and explained in more detail how the power of exemption would be delegated by the Medical Council and how appeals could be made against exemption decisions.

At the Committee Stage, Dr. FANG moved amendments to two clauses to qualify the power of the Medical Council and to clarify appeal procedures in exemption matters. Dr. IP also moved an amendment to one clause on the acceptability of certain overseas qualifications.

Inland Revenue (Amendment) Bill 1984

First Reading: 30.5.84

Second and Third Readings: 13.6.84

The Bill sought to implement three proposals made by the Financial Secretary in his Budget speech on 29.2.84 when moving the Second Reading of the Appropriation Bill 1984. The main provisions of the Bill were to increase the standard rate of tax from 15% to 17% and the rate of profits tax payable by corporations from 16½% to 18½%, applicable to all provisional and final assessments for 1984/85 and subsequent years; to render chargeable to profits tax all interest accruing from the carrying on of a business in Hong Kong; and to discourage the use of loan capital secured against deposits with the object of avoiding payment of profits tax.

The draft Bill was initially published in the Gazette as a Schedule to a Public Revenue Protection Order on 30.3.84. Publication of the Bill sparked off critical comments from both the media and the public. There was also criticism of the measure to protect profits tax following the removal of interest tax, an area attracting representations mainly from local business concerns and trade bodies. Representations were also received from the Hong Kong General Chamber of Commerce, the American Chamber of Commerce, the Hong Kong Society of Accountants, the Taxation Institute of Hong Kong, the Insurance Council of Hong Kong, plus various banks, corporations and individuals. In view of the large number of representations, it was decided that the draft Bill and the representations should be examined by a LegCo Ad Hoc Group under the convenership of Mr. W. C. L. Brown.

The Group held long discussions among themselves and with the Commissioner of Inland Revenue. A number of suggestions were made by Unofficial Members and these were incorporated into the Bill published in the Gazette on 25.5.84. More representations followed and further meetings were held between the Ad Hoc Group, under the deputy convenership of Mr. Peter C. WONG. The Group also met representatives from the Hong Kong Textile and Clothing Industries' Joint Conference on 28.5.84 to listen to their views. At the same time, the LegCo Legislation Scrutiny Group was convened by Mr. WONG to examine technical aspects of the Bill. After careful deliberations, Members generally agreed that the Bill's proposals were essential for the protection of revenue and to deter tax avoiders. They were also satisfied that the Bill was not retrospective in nature and would not represent a departure from the territorial source principle of taxation in Hong Kong.

Four Members spoke in the debate on the Second Reading. Mr. Brown highlighted the various amendments which had been made to the original draft Bill resulting from the discussions between the LegCo Ad Hoc Group and the Administration. He said Unofficial Members supported the Bill with its amendments which he believed had removed most genuine business transactions from the ambit of the new proposals. However, given that many multi-national corporations financed their subsidiaries from a central treasury, he expressed concern at the possible impact of the decision to disallow for tax relief interest paid by a Hong Kong subsidiary or associated company to an overseas parent, and asked the Government to reconsider the relevant clause of the Bill in the light of experience. He also urged the Government to clarify the meaning of 'carrying on business in Hong Kong' as soon as possible.

Both Mr. WONG and Mr. Peter POON regarded the Bill as an effort to plug the tax loophole caused by abolition of tax on certain interest income. Mr. WONG spoke of the importance of the unit trusts industry in the context of Hong Kong as a financial centre, and said he would move a committee stage amendment to clarify the unit trust position. Mr. POON suggested the Inland Revenue Department should apply the new laws in a sensible and reasonable manner and review them in the light of experience. He also echoed Mr. Brown and urged the Government to give clear guidance on the meaning of 'carrying on business in Hong Kong'.

Mrs. Rita FAN said, while she was in favour of any anti-tax-avoidance measures to protect Government revenue, she had reservations about extending the territorial concept in taxation to include off-shore interest in the tax-net, and the growing complexity of the tax system, particularly as regards the treatment of interest payments. She thought the Bill would create complications in the tax system, especially for companies carrying on on-shore as well as off-shore business activities from Hong Kong. The growing complexity of the tax system might well prompt Hong Kong businessmen to take steps to prevent their normal commercial transactions from being caught unexpectedly by the Bill. Noting that the financial benefits generated might well be offset by the costs of implementing the legislation, as well as the likely unfavourable economic and financial ramifications, Mrs. FAN abstained from voting on the Bill.

In reply, the Financial Secretary thanked Unofficial Members for giving "wise advice" on the Bill. He stressed it was the duty of Government to introduce legislation to counter tax avoidance and that the Bill would in part help to achieve this objective without hindering genuine business borrowings or dampening the interest of potential foreign investors in Hong Kong. Regarding the meaning of 'carrying on business in Hong Kong', he said there were technical difficulties in clarifying this, but he assured Members the Government would examine each case carefully and a Departmental Interpretation and Practice Note would be issued by the Commissioner of Inland Revenue to provide guidance in this matter soon after enactment of the Bill.

At the Committee Stage, Mr. WONG and Mr. POON moved amendments to two clauses in relation to interest income received by authorised unit trusts and interest payments concerning publicly listed bonds issued prior to 1.4.84.

Landlord and Tenant (Consolidation) (Amendment) Bill 1984

First Reading: 16.5.84

Second and Third Readings: 13.6.84

The purpose of the Bill was to make further amendments to the principal Ordinance as part of the process of continuous review of the Ordinance and its operation. Specifically, the Bill sought to adjust the permitted rent of pre-war domestic premises from 14 times to 21 times the standard rent; to exclude from control with effect from 1.7.84 rented business premises located in pre-war domestic premises; to exclude from Part II control with effect from 19.12.84 luxury premises with a rateable value of $35,000 (as at 10.6.83) or above; and to raise the minimum rent from 30% to 45% of the prevailing market rent.

Following publication of the Bill, three representations were received and an Ad Hoc Group under the convenership of Mr. Peter C. WONG was formed to study the Bill. The Group held lengthy discussions with the Administration and examined more than 23 specific points of objection. As a result, the Administration agreed to amendments to six clauses and the addition of a new clause.

Three Unofficial Members spoke during the debate on the Second Reading. Speaking in support of the Bill, Mr. WONG first outlined the new measures proposed in the Bill before explaining the amendments arrived at after discussions with the Administration.

Fr. Patrick T. McGovern spoke in opposition to the Bill. He said Part II was wrong in principle in that it further eased the way for an increase in rents towards the still "unfair market rent." At a time when supply fell far short of both demand and need it was not advisable to ease control.

Dr. Henrietta IP supported the Bill and noted that it was one of a series to decentralise rent systematically.

Complicated as it might be, it was well calculated so as not to bring significant hardship to the tenants affected. She noted that, regarding residential premises, the only ones which would be decontrolled were luxury flats, 73% of which were let to corporations anyway.

In reply, the Secretary for Housing said he understood Fr. McGovern's concern about a possible upswing in the rental market, but the long-term solution to such a problem lay in improving the supply of suitable accommodation, and not by prolonging rent control for a particular sector of the housing market.

At the Committee Stage, Mr. WONG moved amendments to seven clauses. Among these was an amendment to simplify the notification of new rents without impairing protection of either landlord or tenant.

Public Omnibus Services (Amendment) Bill 1984

First Reading: 2.5.84

Second and Third Readings: 27.6.84

The principal object of the Bill was to strengthen existing provisions for supervising the operation of the bus companies, and in particular the forward planning of the franchised bus companies, and for more effective sanctions to apply to cases of failure to operate a proper and efficient service.

After publication of the Bill, formal written representations were received from China Motor Bus Company and Kowloon Motor Bus Company. Their main concerns included the definitions of 'residents' service' and 'multiple transport service' which they feared might infringe on their franchise, and the duty imposed on them to prepare a forward planning programme. In view of these representations, the Administration agreed to defer the Bill and make amendments to some of its provisions.

The Community Services Working Group (Convener: Miss Lydia DUNN) discussed the Bill, the representations received and the proposed amendments to be moved by the Administration. After careful consideration, Members were of the view that, while there seemed to be a case for saying 'residential' and 'multiple transport' services operated by private bus companies infringed the terms of the franchises of the two companies, these services did benefit the community; and provided there was sufficient monitoring of these private operators there would be sufficient business for all concerned.

Miss Maria TAM spoke in the debate on the Second Reading, reflecting the Working Group's opinion that co-existence of franchised and private bus companies could provide high or quality service to the public and would serve the interests of the community, provided sufficient care was taken to ensure that private operators did not contravene the conditions of their licence.

In reply, the Secretary for Transport gave the assurance that residential coach services were intended to complement, not compete with, franchised services, and approval of such services would be subject to strict conditions. With the coming into effect of the new Road Traffic Ordinance (Cap. 374) in August, 1984, the passenger service licence required for a residential coach service might be suspended or cancelled if licence conditions were contravened and the vehicle concerned would effectively be put off the road. Enforcement would then become more effective.

The Secretary for Transport moved amendments to three clauses at the Committee Stage to avoid any doubt about infringing the rights of the franchised bus services. Provision was made to ensure that, before granting any licence to a private bus company, the Commissioner for Transport would consider first the interests of the franchised companies and avoid introducing a service which would parallel a regular commuter service.

Employment (Amendment) (No. 3) Bill 1984

First Reading: 27.6.84

Second and Third Readings: 11.7.84

The main purpose of this Bill was to give statutory recognition to end-of-year payments to employees, and clarify contractual obligations of an employer in this respect.

After publication of the Bill, representations were received from nine employees' unions and four employers' organisations. These raised a number of points mainly concerning payment of maternity leave, definition of "wages", sub-contractors' employees' wages and eligibility criteria for the end-of-year payment. The Bill and these representations were studied by the LegCo Economic Services Working Group, under the convenership of Mr. Allen LEE, which met the employees' unions and the Administration to clarify various points.

At the debate on the Second Reading, Mr. LEE spoke in support of the Bill. He summarised the representations of both the employers' and employees' associations and reported his conclusion that the general principle of the Bill was supported by both. To avoid delay it was hoped the Bill would be passed as early as possible, leaving other suggestions put forward to be considered separately and, if appropriate, incorporated into the Ordinance at a later date.

The Commissioner for Labour, in reply, acknowledged Mr. LEE's support of the Bill and said some of the points would be the subject of further consideration. He added that a short guide to the legislation in both English and Chinese would be made available for free distribution to the public.

At the Committee Stage, the Commissioner for Labour moved a consequential amendment to Section 48 of the Apprenticeship Ordinance to ensure that all registered apprentices as well as those employees covered by the Employment Ordinance would benefit from the end-of-year payment part of the Bill.

Business Registration (Amendment) Bill 1984

First Reading: 11.7.84

Second and Third Readings: 24.7.84

The main purpose of this Bill was to provide for the imposition of a levy of $100 on each business registration certificate; and to create a branch registration certificate which would also be subject to the levy. The levy would be paid to the Protection of Wages on Insolvency Fund, which would be set up under the Bill.

After publication of the Bill, the Hong Kong General Chamber of Commerce criticised the short consultation period and the proposed levy of $100. The Chamber considered the levy inequitable to small businesses as it would result in small businesses subsidising large businesses and suggested that a sliding scale of levy be introduced rather than a flat rate for all businesses. The representation was duly reflected to the Administration whose comments on it were studied at a full meeting of Unofficials. Members finally agreed that the Bill should go forward as proposed.

At the debate on the Second Reading, Mr. CHAN Kam-chuen and Mr. Stephen CHEONG spoke in support of the Bill. Mr. CHAN explained the background to setting up the Protection of Wages on Insolvency Fund as recommended by the Working Group on Problems Experienced by Workers of Companies in Receivership. He further explained the reasons for a single flat levy in preference to alternative schemes. Mr. CHEONG said the system of collecting the levy ought to be simple, efficient and cost-effective. The method chosen was to strike a balance between equity and simplicity and to enable first payments from the Fund to be made as early as possible. However, he urged the Administration to review the rate of levy, including the decision to raise the levy on branch certificates.

In reply, the Secretary for Education and Manpower thanked Members for supporting this important step in setting up a Protection of Wages on Insolvency Fund.

Conveyancing and Property Bill 1984

First Reading: 27.6.84

Second and Third Readings: 25.7.84

The purpose of this Bill was to improve and simplify the system of conveyancing in Hong Kong. In particular, it sought to expedite court procedures for resolving disputes related to land; establish a "25-year root of title" to land; prescribe standard conveyancing documents; and introduce a new system of mortgaging with increased protection for lenders.

To ensure that the legislation proposed would be as comprehensive as possible, the Bill was published in draft on 29.7.83 for public comments and suggestions. An Ad Hoc Group was formed under the convenership of Mr. W. C. L. Brown to consider the principles of the draft Bill and representations from the public. The Ad Hoc Group also invited the Legislation Scrutiny Group, convened by Mr. Peter C. WONG, to look into the technical aspects. The Ad Hoc Group met twice, while the Legislation Scrutiny Group held six meetings with the Registrar General and other Government officials. Many amendments were proposed, and total agreement with the Administration was reached by the time the Bill was ready for formal introduction and the Second Reading stage.

When debate was resumed on the Second Reading, Mr. Brown and Mr. WONG spoke in support of the Bill.

Comparing the nearly 100 years taken in considering reforms in conveyancing, Mr. Brown said the one year taken by Unofficials to deliberate on the Bill appeared like undue haste. He outlined the consultations which had taken place since the Bill was published in draft and paid tribute to those who had put so much time and effort into the examination of these important proposals. Mr. WONG described the Bill as a momentous occasion in the history of the legislative process.

The Attorney General replied on behalf of the Administration and thanked the Unofficials for all their work and support for this major piece of legislation.

At the Committee Stage, Mr. WONG moved amendments to 15 clauses and four schedules, the most significant of which was the deletion of the clause regarding overreaching of equitable interests; there had been disagreement within the legal profession over the extent to which an assignment of a legal estate should overreach equitable interest. In the end, it was agreed that more research should be devoted to this topic before making provision under the law. Mr. WONG proposed a further amendment to introduce a new clause which created a presumption that, where a tenancy was vested in two or more persons, the tenancy would be presumed to be a tenancy in common. This reflected Chinese customary law in the New Territories and of the operation of equity elsewhere in Hong Kong.

Subsidiary Legislation

Under the Interpretation and General Clauses Ordinance (Cap. 1), subsidiary legislation means any proclamation, rule, regulation, order, resolution, notice, rule of court, by-law or other instrument made under or by virtue of any Ordinance and having legislative effect. All subsidiary legislation must be published in the Government Gazette and comes into effect on the day of such publication unless otherwise specified.

The normal practice is for subsidiary legislation made by the Governor-in-Council on Tuesdays to be published in the Gazette the following Friday. It will then be tabled in LegCo at the next sitting. Public representations on subsidiary legislation may be received by the UMELCO Office and may be examined by the appropriate working group of LegCo Unofficials any time after publication.

S. 34(2) of the Interpretation and General Clauses Ordinance provides that, where subsidiary legislation has been so tabled, LegCo may, by resolution passed at the first sitting held not less than 27 days after the sitting at which it was so laid, amend or repeal it; and, if a resolution is passed by LegCo to repeal or amend such subsidiary legislation, it is deemed to be repealed or amended as from the date of publication in the Gazette of the resolution, but without prejudice to anything already done under the subsidiary legislation.

During the 1983/84 session, 374 items of subsidiary legislation were tabled in LegCo. The items passed during the session are published in the Hong Kong Hansard 1983-84. Examples of the involvement of Unofficial Members in the passage of controversial items are given in the paragraphs below:

Merchant Shipping (Fees) (Amendment) (No. 2) Regulations 1983

The 1983 amendment regulations were Gazetted on 4.11.83 and tabled in LegCo on 9.11.83. The purpose was to provide for the payment of fees charged at an hourly rate on the basis of the actual time involved and increase the fees chargeable in respect of services performed by the Marine Department to shipowners as contained in the Schedule to the principal Regulations. The proposed fees were based on a review of costs conducted in 1979.

On publication in the Gazette, the Regulations attracted representations from the Hong Kong Cargo-Vessel Traders' Association, Fraternal Association of the Floating Population of Hong Kong, Hong Kong & Kowloon Motor Boats' Association and Hong Kong & Kowloon Floating Fishermen's Welfare Promotion Association. These were considered by the LegCo Economic Services Working Group convened by Mr. Allen LEE. The Group met with a delegation representing these organisations on 23.11.83. The delegation claimed that the proposed increases in fees in respect of lighters, small launches and fishing vessels were exorbitant and unreasonable. They complained that their member organisations had not been consulted on the proposed revision of fees.

The Economic Services Working Group met the Secretary for Economic Services and the Deputy Director of Marine on 29.11.83 to discuss the points raised in the representations. Views were exchanged on possible effects on the livelihood of small operators and fishermen caused by the fee increases proposed. Members were assured that the current increases were to update fees which had not been adjusted since 1965 so as to cover the increase in costs over the years and, in deciding on the level of fees, the earning capacity of lighter operators and fishermen had been taken into account. In response to Members' concern about the lack of consultation over the fee increases, the Administration agreed to strengthen consultation with these trade organisations. It also agreed to review fees more frequently to obviate the need for large scale increases in future.

Building (Lifts) (Amendment) Regulations 1983

The Building (Lifts) (Amendment) Regulations 1983 were Gazetted on 25.11.1983 and tabled in LegCo on 7.12.83. Their purpose was to improve safety standards applicable to the design, construction and installation of lifts and to ensure conformity with current British Standard Codes of Practice and Specifications relating to lifts.

On publication, the Regulations attracted representations from the Lift and Escalator Contractors' Association. The Regulations and representations on them were fully considered by the LegCo Community Services Working Group under the convenership of Mr. S. L. CHEN. Members of the Group also met representatives of the Lift and Escalator Contractors' Association who expressed doubts on the necessity of some of the proposed Regulations and explained their difficulties in complying with them. The Association was also upset that the Regulations as published were different from those circulated previously to them in draft for consultation purposes.

When asked about this by the Working Group, the Administration replied that the points raised at the meeting did not constitute 'additional evidence' and concluded that no amendments to the 1983 Regulations were warranted. Nevertheless, on the three outstanding points raised by the Association, the Administration agreed to two, i.e. to consider changes in the requirement that lift doors be protected against accidental or malicious opening and to allow cargo lifts to have mesh perforated, vertically sliding car doors. The latter point would be reflected in the proposed Lifts (Construction) Regulations which were being drafted. As regards the Association's objection to the wording of the provision relating to the design of lift pits, the Administration considered that the wording proposed would not be subject to misinterpretation.

Unofficial Members' Motions

During the year, three motions were introduced by Unofficial Members to debate issues of major public concern.

The Future of Hong Kong

The two debates are covered in Chapter II.

Green Paper on the Further Development of Representative Government in Hong Kong

The Green Paper on the Further Development of Representative Government in Hong Kong was published and presented to LegCo by the Governor on 18.7.84. The purpose of the Paper was to suggest how the central institutions of Government in Hong Kong might be made more representative in a way which would make the Government more directly accountable to the people of Hong Kong and to invite public discussion of and comment on the proposals set out in it.

On publication, the Green Paper received a mixed reception from people in various quarters, and was widely discussed by numerous interest groups and in the media.

At an in-house meeting of Unofficial LegCo Members on 20.7.84, it was agreed to table an Unofficial Motion on 2.8.84 to debate the subject in public. The Motion, moved by Mr. R. H. Lobo, read:

"That this Council welcomes the publication of the Green Paper on the Further Development of Representative Government in Hong Kong and commends it to the public for examination and comments."

Speaking to the Motion, Mr. Lobo said the debate was to enable Members to speak on the Green Paper and to initiate further discussions on the part of the public. He said the Government of Hong Kong was very responsive and the public decision-making process was not divorced from the people. He therefore suggested that the public should examine and identify the strengths of the present system and then find a way to build on these strengths in pursuance of the further development of representative government in Hong Kong.

Nineteen Members spoke during the debate. They unanimously welcomed publication of the Green Paper and generally supported its proposals which advocated a gradual and progressive approach towards representative government in Hong Kong. All urged the public to express their views and to register and vote for the best candidates who would work for the interests of the community as a whole. Nevertheless, some Members expressed reservations about the timing for direct elections to LegCo, the definition of functional constituencies and the period allowed for public consideration and comments. It was suggested that executive powers be allowed to elected Members as a means towards establishing a truly representative system of government.

Mr. Alex WU said people had not been interested in politics in the past and it was time for a change in attitude. He added that the proposed changes in the administrative system would be a challenge to the people of Hong Kong and he urged them to make use of this unprecedented opportunity and through the electoral system to participate in the administration of Hong Kong.

Miss Lydia DUNN, Mr. Stephen CHEONG and Mrs. Selina CHOW all spoke in favour of a 'ministerial type system', i.e. the advisory role of ExCo and LegCo should gradually change to embrace executive responsibility so as to link the people's elected representatives with the administration of the territory. It would also make them more accountable. Miss DUNN also suggested Government should mount a campaign to persuade the people of Hong Kong to participate in the elective system. She added that, by emphasising that the Green Paper was but a first step in an exercise designed to place a majority of elected members in LegCo, there might be a high level of public participation in and support for its proposals.

Mr. Peter C. WONG pointed out that the present system of Government by consultation and consensus had the virtue of absence of confrontation and adversarial politics. It had brought about a stable environment upon which the economy of Hong Kong had prospered in the past. He urged the Administration to ascertain in a positive and impartial manner the sentiments towards the Green Paper of those who did not choose to be in the lime-light. Comparing the proposals in the Green Paper with the constitutional process of evolution undergone by Ceylon, Mr. WONG believed the proposals, with variations to meet Hong Kong's particular circumstances, would work.

Mr. WONG Lam, Mr. Charles YEUNG and Mr. WONG Po-yan all spoke in favour of indirect elections at the initial stage of constitutional reform to LegCo in view of the apolitical attitude of the public, the low level of voter participation in past District Board and Urban Council elections and the risk of adversarial politics which would undermine the stability and confidence of Hong Kong.

Dr. HO Kam-fai suggested that, by increasing the number of appointed members to take account of representatives from functional constituencies, the system of election by functional constituencies could be abolished altogether. He also suggested the appointments system might be withdrawn when the time was ripe for direct elections. Dr. HO and Mr. YEUNG Po-kwan asked Government to take positive steps to nurture political leaders and to educate the electorate to fulfil the goal of self-administration of Hong Kong.

Mr. WONG Po-yan said, for any direct election to be meaningful and representative of the people, at least 50% of potential voters should be registered and there should be at least a two-thirds turnout of registered voters. Only then would a sound foundation have been laid for direct elections to LegCo.

Mr. W. C. L. Brown said it was important that the form of government should not only ensure stability and prosperity up to 1997, but should also be in a form that would facilitate a smooth return of sovereignty to China that year. He said it was not only a right but also the duty of citizens to express their wishes at elections, and suggested that consideration be given to compulsory voting if some form of direct election was to be introduced. Turning to the need for representatives to come from all walks of society and noting that the job of Unofficial Members was a full-time one, Mr. Brown and Mrs. Pauline NG urged the Government to provide proper financial arrangements in order to encourage the participation of grass roots candidates.

Mr. CHAN Kam-chuen observed that as long as it was democratic, direct and indirect elections and elections through an electoral college were just roads leading in the same direction. The system should provide for the independence of the three powers of democracy, i.e. the legislature, the executive and the judiciary.

Mr. Stephen CHEONG, also representing the views of Mr. F. K. HU who was away from Hong Kong, asked Government to clarify the concept of functional constituencies and to publish more details of how it would take account of public comments. He also asked Government to consider excluding appointed members from the electoral college for the 1988 election. Referring to the functions of ExCo, Mr. CHEONG said the total number of ExCo Members in 1991 could remain at 16 with eight elected by LegCo, four Ex-Officio and four Appointed.

Mr. CHEUNG Yan-lung suggested partial direct elections to LegCo from 1988 onwards when people would have had three years' experience of indirect elections and would better understand the electoral system. He said provided all Councillors, be they directly or indirectly elected, abided by the objective to create a prosperous and better society in Hong Kong, there should be no disparity between them in terms of representativeness and they would make a concerted effort to serve the public.

Endorsing the gradual approach and indirect elections proposed in the Green Paper, Mrs. Selina CHOW said indirect elections could guarantee the expansion of elected representation in LegCo and would provide a reliable method of selecting suitable people to serve. She said the system of appointments, both of unofficials to public bodies and civil servants to senior posts in the Administration, and the criteria for these appointments, should be slowly taken over by a committee composed of both Officials and Unofficials. Mrs. CHOW also said the future Chief Executive should be elected by representatives of the Hong Kong people and his powers clearly defined.

Miss Maria TAM outlined the representations made by a number of organisations to the UMELCO Office about the proposals in the Green Paper and suggested these views would serve as important references for Government in examining public comments. She also emphasised the need for experts from various fields to serve in ExCo and LegCo.

Dr. Henrietta IP said the method used to choose who represented us was not so important; it was more important that the person chosen performed efficiently on our behalf and had our interests at heart. She endorsed the proposals in the Green Paper as a well thought-out package which offered the lesser of all evils and could work to meet the aspirations of the people of Hong Kong.

Mr. CHAN Ying-lun said Government should publish the principles and criteria proposed for the electoral college and these should be discussed and accepted by the public. It was important to ensure the representativeness of those elected through the electoral college.

Mrs. Rita FAN urged the Government to encourage and help the silent majority to express their views and to be seen to take the initiative in collecting public opinion on the proposals set out in the Green Paper.

Mrs. Pauline NG suggested once the ratio between elected and appointed DB Members reached 4:1, it would be time to introduce direct elections to a number of LegCo seats; and the review of representative Government proposed in the Green Paper should be brought forward from 1989 to 1987. Similarly, Mr. CHEUNG Yan-lung and Mr. Peter POON suggested advancing the timing for the proposed review to 1986 and 1988 respectively.

In supporting the proposed functional constituencies, Mr. Peter POON, together with other Members, agreed on the value of professionals in LegCo and ExCo and that functional groups should be given a number of seats to ensure there were experts from various fields. In this way they would be more accountable to the people of Hong Kong.

Mr. YEUNG Po-kwan, together with Dr. HO Kam-fai, suggested the proposed two-month consultation period be extended to enable public discussion and the formal submission of representations on the Green Paper. Mr. WONG Lam, Mr. CHEUNG Yan-lung and Mrs. Pauline NG called on Government to initiate comprehensive consultation with the public on this matter.

In reply, the Chief Secretary reassured Members that Government had been doing its utmost to stimulate public discussion and debate on the proposals in the Green Paper and would continue to do so, and that the Government's machinery had been tasked to feed back all comments for central collation and analysis. Turning to specific points raised by Members, he said the possibility of direct elections and of introducing some variant of the ministerial system could be considered when the overall position was reviewed in 1989. He also agreed to consider providing financial arrangements to encourage candidates from all walks of life to take part. In conclusion, the Chief Secretary said the two-month consultation period could not be extended in the light of the overall timetable for elections.

The motion was carried unanimously.

Questions

Unofficial Members put down for answer a total of 180 questions. In addition, 286 supplementary questions were asked, arising from the official replies (see Appendix XI). The subject matter of the questions and the dates on which they were asked are reported at Appendix XII.

Finance Committee

The composition and powers of the Finance Committee are given in paragraph 60 of LegCo Standing Orders.

The Finance Committee consists of all the Unofficial Members of LegCo, plus the Chief Secretary, who is Chairman, the Financial Secretary and the Secretary for Lands and Works. All matters before the Committee are decided by a majority vote, but no ex-officio Member or Official Member has a vote; therefore, the business of the Finance Committee is totally in the hands of Unofficial Members.

The examination of the Budget and all proposals for additional public funds arising during the financial year after the Appropriation Bill has been passed are the main functions of the Finance Committee.

Two weeks before the Financial Secretary presented his Budget speech in LegCo on 29.2.84, copies of the Draft Estimates of Expenditure 1984-85 were made available to Members. To facilitate their examination, four study teams were formed by Unofficial Members. The teams and conveners appointed were:

Study Team	Convener
Economic and Community Services	Mr. W. C. L. Brown
General Services	Mr. S. L. CHEN
Law and Order	Mr. LO Tak-shing
Social Services, Education, Health and Housing	Dr. Harry FANG

Each of the 71 Heads of Expenditure was critically examined and Members formally raised 445 queries. These were either answered in writing or clarified by Controlling Officers at four special Finance Committee meetings which were convened on 7, 8, 9 and 12.3.84 in LegCo. For the first time since World War II these meetings were held in public. A total of 43 Controlling Officers appeared before the Committee and were questioned closely by Members.

Upon resumption of the debate on the Appropriation Bill on 28-29.3.84, 23 Members expressed their views on the Budget. On 25.4.84, 10 Official Members spoke in reply to the points raised by Unofficial Members.

During the year, the Finance Committee met on 18 occasions, normally immediately after the open sessions of the full LegCo. The Committee examined a total of 232 applications for expenditure and raised formal queries on 65 items. As a result of Members' scrutiny or queries, four items were either deferred or withdrawn by the Administration. Altogether, Members approved 228 items and charges amounting to $2,510 million.

Members also took the opportunity at Finance Committee meetings to raise other matters of public interest for discussion with the Administration and 63 ex-agenda matters were discussed in these circumstances.

The Finance Committee has two sub-committees: the Establishment Sub-Committee and the Public Works Sub-Committee. The former reviews the staffing needs of departments and the latter keeps a check on the Government building programme and decides the degree of priority to be given to individual projects.

Establishment Sub-Committee

The Establishment Sub-Committee is one of the two major sub-committees of the Finance Committee. It was formed in July, 1961, to examine requests for staff increases in the 1962-63 Estimates. The terms of reference of the Sub-Committee are:

(i) Annual draft Estimates of Expenditure

To advise the Government whether its preliminary proposals for the provision of additional posts should be included under the personal emoluments subheads of the draft Estimates of Expenditure.

(ii) Supplementary provision in respect of the personal emoluments subheads of the approved estimate

To examine all supplementary provisions put forward by the Government during the financial year for the creation of posts or for the regrading of existing posts involving increased expenditure, and to make recommendations on them to the Finance Committee of LegCo.

The Sub-Committee is composed of 13 Unofficial Members of LegCo, one of whom is chairman, and two Government officials.

With effect from 1.4.80 new arrangements were made for creating posts, under which a figure was specified for each department as the departmental establishment ceiling for the financial year, and Controlling Officers were authorised to create or delete posts in existing non-directorate ranks, provided that the net additional number of posts created did not cause the departmental establishment ceiling to be exceeded and provided that adequate funds were available within the personal emoluments subhead to meet resulting expenditure for the remainder of the year for both the new posts and posts already approved.

In each department a Departmental Establishment Committee (DEC) was set up to advise the Controlling Officer in the exercise of his delegated powers to create posts. Finance Branch and Civil Service Branch are represented on DECs. With a few specified exceptions, posts may only be created by a Controlling Officer after obtaining the advice of the DEC, but the Controlling Officer may redeploy approved posts freely without reference to the DEC. This procedure has speeded up the creation of essential posts and has enabled the emphasis of the sub-Committee's work to be shifted towards regular meetings to discuss the reviews of departmental establishments prepared by the Finance Branch. The Sub-Committee still considers requests for the creation and deletion of posts at directorate level and for the creation of all new ranks.

The size of the Civil Service has expanded rapidly in recent years. During the 10-year period from 1971-72 to 1981-82, the total establishment increased by 61% from 94,417 to 151,809 posts. During 1983-84 the establishment increased by a further 7,633 posts, or 4.6%. At 1.4.84, for the year 1984-85, the establishment showed further, but reduced, growth of 3,207 posts, an increase of 1.85% over the preceding year. This reflected the implementation of a no growth policy by the civil service except where it is essential to provide staff for new facilities and where staff cannot be provided by redeployment.

In 1982-83, $7,479 million or 24% of Government's total revenue of $31,097 million was spent on direct and indirect emoluments of the civil service; this figure increased to $8,370 million or 28% of Government's total revenue of $30,280 million in 1983-84. Membership of the Sub-Committee is reported at Appendix VIII.

Public Works Sub-Committee

From the earliest days of British administration in Hong Kong, there has been a committee with Unofficial Members on it to review the progress of public works. At the beginning of this century, the Government was proposing wide-ranging schemes for improving road communications between Kowloon and the New Territories and further into Guangdong Province; and Unofficial and Official Members of the Public Works Committee of the Legislative Council, as it was then known, took an active part in the consultative process.

For the financial year 1902-03, for instance, the Public Works Committee was consulted on expenditure on on-going and new projects amounting to $1,279,189. Projects under construction in that year included the Central Law Courts, estimated to cost $50,000, and Western Market at an estimated cost of $30,000.

Nowadays, the progress of public works is watched over by the Public Works Sub-Committee of Finance Committee. For 1984-85, special note was taken of the restriction on new starts on projects arising both from the budgetary limit on commitments for new works laid down by the Financial Secretary and on the capacity of the works department to carry out planning and supervision of works, and it is estimated that the spending on on-going projects in the Public Works Programme will be about $7,900 million.

In dollar terms, public works items form the lion's share of items of Government expenditure looked at by the Finance Committee each year, and the Public Works Sub-Committee plays an important part in examining the detailed proposals and justifications for each project.

The Public Works Sub-Committee is chaired by the Financial Secretary, and members of Finance Committee who are particularly interested in public works elect to sit on it. During the year under report, there were 17 Unofficial Members on the committee. On the Official side, besides the Financial Secretary, the Secretary for Lands and Works is the only full member. The heads of departments responsible for building development, engineering development (including highways), New Territories development and water works, as well as a representative of the Finance Branch of the Government Secretariat, attend each meeting to answer any questions members may have.

The Public Works Sub-Committee meets about once a month, after Finance Committee meetings. All projects for which Government wants to start detailed design and planning, or for which Government wishes to enter into a financial commitment, must be put to the Sub-Committee. If the item is agreed, it is referred to Finance Committee for formal endorsement. Once a project has started, it may be necessary to change the estimate of the cost of the works involved and, again, the Sub-Committee is consulted and its approval sought.

Many of the Unofficials who choose to sit on the Public Works Sub-Committee have a business background, and they are quick to point out where they feel proposed works do not provide value for money. Other members with backgrounds in community work, education, medicine and members of District Boards seek to ensure that the social value, as well as the financial value, of proposals is given due weight.

Each item to be considered at a Sub-Committee meeting is supported by a paper prepared by the Government, setting out the details of the proposals and the justification behind them. At the end of each financial year, the Sub-Committee publishes an annual report in which all the papers they have considered are reproduced.

Members often question the validity of the policy of providing a certain type of facility and ask for an information paper stating why such a policy exists, when it was last reviewed, and whether it is still thought to be valid. For example, during 1984, Members studied information papers on the reasons why there were no projects in the Public Works Programme for parking facilities near MTR stations, the definition of 'completed projects' and the policy for accepting the lowest tenders for projects. Membership of the Sub-Committee is reported at Appendix VIII.

Public Accounts Committee

The Public Accounts Committee was established by Resolution of LegCo on 10.5.78. It is a standing committee responsible for studying the report of the Director of Audit on the accounts of the Government and, where the Committee considers necessary, to call for explanations from public officers on matters referred to in the report. The Committee consists of a chairman and six members, all of whom are Unofficial Members nominated by the President of LegCo. Membership of the Committee is reported at Appendix VIII.

During the year ended 31.8.83, the Committee held six meetings, at three of which evidence from a total of 18 branch secretaries and heads of departments was heard. The conclusions and recommendations of these hearings are contained in the Report of the Public Accounts Committee which was published in January, 1984. Following amendments to the Audit Ordinance and minor changes to LegCo Standing Orders, examination meetings of the Public Accounts Committee, hitherto held in private, will be open to the public from 1984/85.

Mr. S. L. CHEN, Chairman of the Committee, made a statement when the Committee's Report was laid before LegCo on 11.1.84. He urged the Government to make more use of cost accountants in its management structure whose responsibility would be to advise the directors of departments on appropriate yardsticks for the measurement of productivity and efficiency.

Instead of investigating in detail every observation contained in the Director of Audit's report, the Committee confined its attention to the more serious irregularities and shortcomings reported.

The response of the Administration to the comments of the Committee was contained in the Government Minute laid before LegCo on 14.3.84. The remedial measures promised by the Administration included the following major items:

(i) Delays in the occupation of leased office accommodation by Government Departments.

The Director of Audit pointed out that nugatory expenditure had been incurred as a result of delays in the occupation of leased office accommodation by Government departments. In response to comments by the Committee, the Administration produced a set of revised procedures in the Accommodation Manual to reduce such delays to a minimum and would make every effort to ensure the procedures were adhered to.

(ii) Subventions of special schools and special classes.

The Director of Audit pointed out that the Director of Education had exercised discretion in granting 100% capital subsidy to six special school projects, notwithstanding that the voluntary organisations concerned had agreed to contribute sums totalling $1.37 million towards their capital costs. On the recommendation of the Committee, the Director of Education would draw up guidelines for subventions which would be implemented shortly.

(iii) Pilot refuse baling plant at Sai Tso Wan—Deficiencies in contract documentation and project management.

The Director of Audit brought to light that value for money had not been obtained on the pilot refuse baling plant at Sai Tso Wan. In response to comments by the Committee, the Administration would consider possible use of the plant in the context of the Government's solid waste disposal programme.

(iv) Potential or actual loss of revenue from properties and investments, land transactions, fees and charges.

The Director of Audit identified inadequacies in the valuation, assessment and control procedures covering various aspects of land transactions, which had resulted in potential or actual loss of tens of millions of dollars of revenue or delays in its collection. As a result, a new post of Senior Treasury Accountant in the Lands Department was created and the incumbent would carry out a full-scale review of the procedures relating to the collection of revenue in the department.

(v) Abuse of the scheme for private dental treatment for civil servants.

Evidence of abuse of the scheme was reported towards the end of 1982 and suspected cases were referred to the Secretary for the Civil Service for investigation and further action. A full report on the investigation would be released.

(vi) University of Hong Kong redevelopment, delay and additional expenditure.

It was revealed that the final stage of the first phase of the University's building programme was completed nearly four years late and at a cost likely to be something in excess of $200 million compared to the original estimate of $75 million. In response to comments by the Committee, procedures had been revised to ensure that adequate site investigations, which had caused much of the trouble, would be carried out in future. The University and Polytechnic Grants Committee would also consider whether the estates offices of institutions of tertiary education were adequately staffed.

Umelco Activities

The Unofficial Members of both the Executive and Legislative Councils (UMELCO) usually meet at least twice a month in the UMELCO Office to discuss topical issues, important public representations and matters concerning the administration of the UMELCO Office. In 1983-84 16 panels were formed to deal with different aspects of Government business and public administration. The Panels met with Government officials regularly to discuss future plans and current problems in areas such as the civil service, transport, housing, education, medical and health, industrial relations, cultural affairs and the Government's Chinese language policy.

Other UMELCO Studies

Apart from the Panel activities reported above, two further UMELCO groups dealt with UMELCO Staff and House matters, and the full UMELCO met regularly each month with the Chief Secretary to discuss Government business in general. A full list of UMELCO Panels and Groups is set out at Appendix VIII.

UMELCO Groups Appointed by the Governor

I.C.A.C. Complaints Committee,
Chairman, Sir S. Y. CHUNG

This Committee was created by the Governor in December, 1977, and has the following terms of reference:

(i) to monitor and, where it considers appropriate, to review the handling by the I.C.A.C. of complaints by anyone against the I.C.A.C. and officers of the I.C.A.C.;

(ii) to identify any faults in I.C.A.C. procedures which lead or might lead to complaints; and

(iii) when it considers appropriate, to make recommendations to the Commissioner of the I.C.A.C. or, when considered necessary, to the Governor.

Membership of the Committee is reported at Appendix VIII and includes a Law Officer appointed by the Governor. During the period under review, the Committee considered 32 complaints against the I.C.A.C. and its officers.

UMELCO Police Group,
Chairman, Mr. LO Tak-shing

This Group was also established in 1977. It provides an independent non-police element in the machinery for investigating complaints against the Police. Appointments to the Group are made by the Governor and the Group's terms of reference are:

(i) to monitor and, where it considers appropriate, to review the handling by the Police of complaints by the public;

(ii) to keep under review statistics of the types of conduct by Police officers which lead to complaints by members of the public;

(iii) to identify any faults in Police procedures which lead or might lead to complaints; and

(iv) when it considers appropriate, to make recommendations to the Commissioner of Police or, when necessary, to the Governor.

In addition to regular monthly meetings with the Director of Management and Inspection Services, the Group held meetings during the year amongst themselves to discuss matters of policy and procedure. The Group also met the Commissioner of Police to exchange views on important matters of policy and principle.

The Group's 1983 report was tabled in the Legislative Council on 27.6.84.

During the period under review, Members considered 3,855 investigation reports completed by C.A.P.O. and questioned 323 case reports at meetings with the Police. The results in 180 cases were modified. Further reports were sought in respect of 38 cases. In addition, 10 cases were referred to the Attorney General's Chambers for examination or re-examination on the instructions of the Attorney General.

UMELCO Visits

UMELCO Members continued their programme of regular visits to various districts in the urban area and in the New Territories to keep in touch, not only with new developments, but also with the problems, views and aspirations of the district communities. Informal discussions with local representatives are an important feature of these visits.

Points raised either by the representatives or the Unofficials themselves are recorded and referred to the Chief Secretary for comment, and recommendations are added by the Unofficials as appropriate. These reports and the Chief Secretary's comments are later circulated to all Unofficials, so that those who did not participate in a particular visit may be kept informed of territory-wide problems and developments.

Visits cover both Government departments and private institutions, and last year a total of 13 such visits were made. These were:—

UMELCO Redress System

One of the main functions of Unofficial Members is the operation of the UMELCO Redress System. Unlike the statutory grievance systems operating in some countries, the UMELCO system is neither defined nor confined by the law. It handles both appeals from members of the public objecting to Government decisions, and complaints alleging maladministration on the part of Government departments.

Under the system, Members have three rights. The first is the right to information, including access to Government files and correspondence, policies, procedures and instructions. The second is the right of access to senior Government officers and, third, Members may challenge a department's actions. All heads of departments and Government officers are required to co-operate with UMELCO in operating the redress system.

Members of the public may put forward their problems by telephone, letter or through a personal visit. In most cases they are interviewed by a Complaints Officer of the UMELCO Office who endeavours to obtain all relevant information. It is also sometimes necessary to visit the site of a complaint, often with a representative of the Government department concerned, to understand the problem fully. A report is prepared on every interview, and together with any site visit report these form the basis of future enquiries and action.

The next step is to study the case in the light of Government policies and procedures. Some general information is usually available in the UMELCO Office, but it is often necessary to ask the Government department concerned to comment on a case or to supply additional papers or files for reference purposes. In important cases involving a matter of principle or policy, or containing controversial issues, and in all cases where a head of department's explanation appears to be inadequate or unsatisfactory, the Secretary General of the UMELCO Office may refer the case to the Unofficial Members who will consider what further action should be taken.

Each week one Unofficial Member of ExCo and two Unofficial Members of LegCo are on call. The Duty Roster Members, as they are called, are there to interview members of the public who ask to see them and to examine reports on all cases handled by Complaints Division staff during the week.

To augment the duty roster system, Members of the relevant UMELCO panel may also be involved in hearing public complaints and representations. This can provide a specialist input, given the fact that the Duty Roster Members may not have the same intimate knowledge of the subject under complaint as Members of the appropriate UMELCO Panel. As a rule, Members of the appropriate UMELCO Panel, for example, the Lands and Works Panel for land affairs, and the Transport Panel for representations and complaints arising in the transport field, are invited to join the Duty Roster Members at the hearing stage. After the hearing, the Panel representative(s) will consider whether the case has policy implications and, if necessary, the Panel convener may refer the matter to a full meeting of UMELCO for advice.

Inevitably some grievance cases brought to UMELCO fall outside the jurisdiction of Unofficial Members. These are disputes between private individuals, disputes between employers and employees, including individual civil servants, matters which are sub-judice or may involve possible criminal charges, matters over which a statutory appeal has already been initiated or on which the Governor or the Governor-in-Council has made a decision, and matters for which a foreign Government is responsible. In these cases, nevertheless, the staff of the UMELCO Office may still be able to offer advice or assistance, and always endeavour to do so, such as making enquiries or arranging appointments for the aggrieved party.

The UMELCO redress system is advertised regularly in the press. It is also advertised on TV, and posters publicising the UMELCO Office as a channel for the redress of grievances are widely displayed. Of the 3,280 new complaints received during 1983-84, 68 were from delegations or groups claiming representative status. This is a sharp increase over the number of group complaints received in previous years. Unlike individual grievances which form the bulk of complaints, group delegations usually question broad general principles of government policy and consequential decisions. Such policies or decisions often concern a large number of people or, when implemented, would have wide implications for various sectors of the community. Representations of this nature invariably attract intense media attention, and the hearing and examination of group complaints during the year imposed considerable pressure on the resources of the Office.

Typical complaint cases handled by the UMELCO Office are reported at Appendix XV.

UMELCO Office

The UMELCO Office was established in August, 1963, to provide support to Unofficial Members. It is located on the 12th floor of Swire House in the Central District of Hong Kong Island, immediately above the Mass Transit Railway Central Station. Although financed under the Government Estimates, the UMELCO Office is not a Government department.

The UMELCO Office is headed by the Secretary General, who is responsible to the Senior Unofficial Members of the two Councils for the work of the Office. It comprises a Members' Division, a Complaints Division, an Administration Division, a Special Duties Division and an Information Unit. It has a staff of 76.

To ensure a full understanding of Government procedures and policies, some of the staff are seconded Government officers. Other members of the staff are employed directly by UMELCO. An organisation chart showing the establishment and deployment of posts in the UMELCO Office is at Appendix XVIII.

The Members' Division assists Members in all their official activities, except those concerning the handling of public complaints. Its staff arrange and attend all in-house meetings of Members. They carry out research, prepare information papers, keep minutes and take follow-up action arising from meetings. They also undertake studies of draft legislation and help organise and participate in all UMELCO visits. Representations by public bodies and other interest groups on draft legislation or other public business are also handled administratively by the Members' Division.

The Complaints Division supports Members in the operation of the UMELCO Redress System. It receives complaints from 8.30 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Mondays to Fridays and from 8.30 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Saturdays. Its staff interview complainants, research cases and prepare reports, and conduct all correspondence arising from complaints. The charter rights of UMELCO as a channel for redress of grievances and the UMELCO complaints system are described earlier in this Chapter.

The Administration Division provides general office services and looks after the house-keeping functions of the UMELCO Office. The Division's Interpretation/Translation Section handles the translation of all in-coming letters in Chinese and the translation of correspondence from UMELCO in response to representations made in Chinese.

The Special Duties Division was established in July, 1984, to assist and service the work of Members connected with the future of Hong Kong and constitutional reform. It also coordinates liaison with the District Boards.

The Information Unit handles all the information and publicity work of UMELCO and was expanded during the year to deal with increased activities and heightened media interest.

APPENDIX IV

UMELCO Position Paper

of 9.5.84

Statement issued by the Unofficial Members of the Hong Kong Executive and Legislative Councils on 9th May 1984.

The Future of Hong Kong

The Executive and Legislative Councils are the two central organs of the Government of Hong Kong. Unofficial Members are in the majority in both councils. They are appointed by the Governor from a wide spectrum of society. Through their membership of these two Councils, Unofficial Members advise on the formulation of Government policies, participate in the enactment of legislation, monitor the effectiveness of public administration and consider complaints by members of the public against Government Departments.

As they are appointed by the Governor rather than elected, Unofficial Members make no claim to representative status, but they are in touch with all sectors of the community through their membership of over 300 boards and committees dealing with public affairs, and with all facets of Hong Kong's economic and social life. Since the Sino-British talks on the future of Hong Kong began in late 1982, Unofficial Members have received, both individually and through the UMELCO Office, many representations on the question of Hong Kong's future after 1997. So they are in a position to reflect the views and wishes of Hong Kong people on this vital question.

The Sino-British talks have been conducted throughout in the strictest confidence, although there have been many statements from the Chinese side. Sir Geoffrey Howe's Statement in Hong Kong on 20th April publicly lifted the veil for the first time from the British side on some aspects of the talks. Inter alia he said that:

(i) It would not be realistic to think of an agreement that provides for continued British administration in Hong Kong after 1997.

(ii) Other ways were being explored to secure the assurances necessary for the continuation of Hong Kong's stability, prosperity and way of life and, although Hong Kong would become a part of China, it would enjoy, as a Special Administrative Region, a high degree of autonomy.

(iii) The Chinese leadership claim that they wish existing systems and freedoms in Hong Kong and the free market economy to remain fundamentally unchanged for at least 50 years after 1997.

Hong Kong has enjoyed a constitutional link with the British Crown for 143 years. This link has provided an effective external insulator against interference from the ruling government on the Mainland, despite the turbulence which has characterised China's history for so many years and despite the essential incompatibility of the political system prevailing in present day China, on the one hand, and the liberal traditions of a capitalist society, on the other.

It is now suggested that this link should be removed but that, in order to achieve a high degree of autonomy for Hong Kong under Chinese sovereignty, there would be a devolution of power from the Central People's Government to the Hong Kong Special Administrative Region via a Basic Law to be promulgated in the early 1990's. Hong Kong people are being asked to accept, in other words, that the Chinese Government will resume sovereignty and exercise administrative control over the whole of Hong Kong after 1997, against a promise that Hong Kong's existing systems and accustomed life style will remain unchanged.

But many anxious questions spring to mind to which no satisfactory answers have been given as yet. For instance:

(i) Will the essential elements of the Basic Law be enshrined in the Sino-British Agreement? If not, would not the British Government run the risk of signing an agreement which the Chinese side may later unilaterally alter on the grounds that it is in conflict with the Basic Law?

(ii) In the final analysis, the more detailed the Agreement, the more that the Basic Law is compatible with it and the more binding it is in form, the more likely that the people of Hong Kong will find it acceptable in the belief that the Chinese are more likely to honour it. Thus, if the Agreement is to be signed before the Basic Law is promulgated, should not Parliament withhold ratification until the details of the Basic Law are known?

(iii) Even so, given the historical reality that Hong Kong has developed over many years as a recognisable community in its own right, with its own distinctive life-style, surely Hong Kong people have the right to ask for assurances that any Agreement entered into between the British and Chinese Governments will be honoured? That is to say, should not the British Government insist on a mechanism which will ensure that the agreement is faithfully implemented?

(iv) To this end, should not Britain insist on retaining some residual status in Hong Kong beyond 1997 to provide re-assurance that the terms of the Agreement will be kept?

(v) Given the possibility that the Chinese authorities will seek to anticipate 1997 and start interfering with the administration of Hong Kong between now and then, will the British Government insist that it must retain effective control, as the sovereign power, during the next 13 years? If effective control is not exercised by the Hong Kong Government under the authority of HMG, a smooth transition up to, let alone stable government beyond, 1997 will not be possible for Hong Kong people will not feel it is worthwhile even to try to adjust to their new circumstances. A collapse of confidence before 1997 would make Hong Kong virtually ungovernable. For example, the allegiance of the police and the civil service will be seriously impaired. Quite apart from the disastrous effect on the people of Hong Kong, this would be as embarrassing to the British Government as a ruined economy would be disappointing to the Chinese Government.

(vi) About half of Hong Kong's present population of 5.3 millions came to Hong Kong from China to seek a better life here. They do not relish the thought of a return to Chinese Communist rule. But what of the rest of the population? They are British nationals by birth (a small number by naturalisation) holding British passports with a right of abode in the British Dependent Territory of Hong Kong. Parliament may cede sovereignty over the territory, but it cannot, by the same act, deprive British nationals of their national status. What then will be the fate of Hong Kong's BDTs? How will their rights and status be preserved? How will BDTs continue to enjoy British protection? Will they, and other Hong Kong belongers who cannot accept the idea of living under Communist authority, have a right to settlement in the United Kingdom and should not the British Government negotiate settlement places for them?

Recently, when in Hong Kong, Sir Geoffrey Howe said the Agreement must be such that the British Government can commend it to Parliament, but the people of Hong Kong will need to know the terms of the Agreement and have time to express their views, and he added that Parliament itself will need time to reflect and take account of the views of Hong Kong people. The Foreign Secretary was reiterating what has been said many times before, namely, that any Agreement reached between the British and Chinese Governments must be acceptable to the people of Hong Kong. This raises at least two questions:

(i) How is it proposed that acceptability is put to the test?

(ii) What will be HMG's reaction if Hong Kong people do not accept the Agreement or parts of it? Parliament cannot take lightly the responsibility of transferring authority over a community (as opposed to the territory) for which the constitutional link with Britain has meant so much for so long to a communist government, albeit the Chinese Government which has a legitimate claim to sovereignty over the territory of Hong Kong itself. The inescapable fact is that the Chinese Government is committed to a political philosophy which is at least incompatible, and at worst hostile, to the philosophy on which the various systems and freedoms enjoyed by Hong Kong today rest.

It follows that acceptability will depend on the Agreement now being negotiated:

(i) containing full details of the proposed administrative, legal, social and economic systems applicable after 1997;

(ii) providing adequate and workable assurances that the terms of the Agreement will be honoured;

(iii) stating that the provisions of the Basic Law will incorporate the provisions of the Agreement;

(iv) guaranteeing that the rights of British nationals will be safeguarded.

We believe that Members of Parliament will wish to take account of our views. We also believe that these views are an accurate reflection of the views of Hong Kong people as a whole, to whom the imminent withdrawal of the British link has been a great, if not entirely unexpected, disappointment.

APPENDIX V

Speaking Note for Meetings in Beijing

Translation of the Full Text of a Chinese Speaking Note used by Sir S. Y. CHUNG, Miss Lydia DUNN & Mr. Q. W. LEE during their Meetings with Chairman DENG Xiaoping and Mr. Ji Pengfei in Beijing on 23rd June 1984

We are honoured to have the opportunity during our visit to Beijing to meet with Chairman DENG Xiaoping and other Chinese leaders to have an exchange of views about the future of Hong Kong.

Being Chinese, we support the recovery of the sovereignty of Hong Kong and China's reunification plan, especially since China has formally announced that, after 1997, Hong Kong will become a Special Administrative Region having a high degree of autonomy and administered by local people; and that the existing systems will remain unchanged for 50 years.

The British Foreign Secretary, Sir Geoffrey Howe, announced on 20th April, 1984, that Britain will return the sovereignty of Hong Kong to China in 1997. This has helped to clarify the future of Hong Kong. However, it has not helped to boost the confidence of the people of Hong Kong. People remain anxious and worried and they are filled with uncertainties. This anxiety is not limited to those with money. They affect workers and ordinary citizens alike. This is a fact and we feel it our duty to reflect this situation honestly.

The current worries of the people of Hong Kong concern the period before 1997 and that after 1997.

As regards the period before 1997, most people believe that only if prosperity and stability are maintained in the next 13 years can there be any hope that prosperity and stability would continue for 50 years after 1997. People are worried that, in order to reach an early accord, the Governments of China and Britain may come to an Agreement which will be lacking in detail and meaningless. This would lead to a loss of confidence, an exodus of professional and talented people, an outflow of capital, a lack of investment, resulting in economic recession in Hong Kong. Furthermore, people are worried that the jostling for power in the next 13 years may threaten the stability and prosperity of Hong Kong, forcing China to interfere or take over Hong Kong before 1997.

As regards the period after 1997, most people similarly believe that, if there is no confidence in the arrangements after 1997, it would not be possible to maintain prosperity and stability in the 13 years before 1997. In particular, there are three main worries about post-1997 arrangements:

First, people are worried that, instead of genuinely being administered by the people of Hong Kong, the future Government of Hong Kong would actually be administered from Beijing. Although China may not send any cadres to Hong Kong, the people administering Hong Kong in the future Government of Hong Kong may in fact be controlled by Beijing. Second, people fear that the middle and lower level cadres who are responsible for the implementation of China's policy over Hong Kong may not be able to accept the capitalist systems and lifestyle of Hong Kong. They may not implement the policy of the central Government of China and they may interfere in the local administration.

Third, whilst people have faith in Chairman DENG and the present leadership, people are concerned that the future policy of China may change and that future leaders may revert to "extreme left" policies. They may not recognise the "one-country-two-systems" policy and renege on the promise that the existing systems in Hong Kong will remain unchanged for 50 years.

As we are Unofficial Members of the Hong Kong Executive and Legislative Councils, the people of Hong Kong have high expectations about our meetings with Chairman DENG and other Chinese leaders in Beijing. We are conscious of our responsibility. We are concerned with the overall interest of Hong Kong so that it would continue to remain prosperous and stable. We will not, therefore, raise for discussion on this occasion individual sectional issues such as land ownership and dual nationality, vital though they are. Our proposals are also not made for our own personal interests. We have carefully studied the views expressed by all classes of Hong Kong society in the last 10 months. We have thought through what would be necessary to maintain the prosperity and stability of Hong Kong before and after 1997, under the principle of the sovereignty of Hong Kong being returned to China in 1997. We will express our views frankly and honestly. We have three main recommendations:—

(i) To maintain prosperity, confidence must be maintained. In order to maintain confidence, the Agreement between the two Governments of China and Britain must be found acceptable by the people of Hong Kong (especially by investors and professionals). The reaction to, and the success or failure of, the Agreement really depends on its acceptability to the people of Hong Kong. For the people to accept the Agreement, the Agreement:

- must be very detailed; it must provide clear and precise definitions of all aspects of Hong Kong's existing systems;
- must be mutually binding as between the two signing countries of China and Britain;
- must contain a provision stipulating that the Basic Law of the Special Administrative Region of Hong Kong will be based on the terms in the Agreement. This would prevent unnecessary arguments among the people of Hong Kong in future when the Basic Law is drafted. In addition, such a provision in the Agreement would help to give confidence throughout the period when the Basic Law is being drafted;

It is said that such a provision would be an interference into the internal affairs of China. We do not think that this argument has any validity. China has already made clear publicly its policies for Hong Kong after 1997. Such policies will also be stated in the Agreement. A provision stating that the Basic Law would reflect the terms of the Agreement is merely an extension of these stated policies.

(ii) In order to enhance confidence, we believe that the Basic Law should be drafted in Hong Kong. It should be included in the Constitution of China after the approval by the Standing Committee of the Chinese National People's Congress (NPC). It is appreciated that normally the drafting and approval of Basic Law of Special Administrative Regions should be the responsibility of the Standing Committee of NPC because Special Administrative Regions are established, where necessary, under Article 31 of the Constitution of China. However, in view of the special circumstances of Hong Kong, the drafting of the Basic Law in Hong Kong would help to enhance confidence, and at the same time the expertise and talents of the Hong Kong people can be made use of. We believe, therefore, that the Basic Law should be drafted in Hong Kong by the people of Hong Kong together with representatives from Beijing for the approval of the Standing Committee of NPC. The Standing Committee can, of course, make amendments to the draft. The authority of the NPC would not, therefore, be violated by this proposal. In addition, to give confidence even further that there would be no changes in the 50 years after 1997, it should be stipulated in the Basic Law that, following the precedent of Macau's Basic Law under Portugal, any future amendments to the Basic Law can only be initiated by Hong Kong.

(iii) Perhaps we can best illustrate the worry of the Hong Kong people by an analogy. A small town is about to be resettled in a place where flooding has occurred about once every 10 years in the last 30 years. In order to give confidence to the people being resettled there that their livelihood would not be threatened by flooding in the new place of residence the residents ask that a flood-protection dam should be built. If the Chinese leaders understand the anxiety of the people of Hong Kong and would agree to the establishment of an insulating mechanism, like a dam, between Hong Kong and China, confidence in Hong Kong would be greatly increased. We, therefore, propose the establishment of a Committee consisting of Chinese people of international standing and reputation. This Committee will be appointed by the Government of China. Their responsibility would be to monitor or advise the drafting, and implementation of, and subsequent amendments, if any, to the Basic Law.

The above recommendations, if accepted and adopted by the Government of China, will, in our opinion, greatly help to give confidence to the people of Hong Kong, upon which the prosperity and stability of Hong Kong depend. We hope that they would be seriously considered by Chairman DENG Xiaoping and other Chinese leaders.

ExCo Press Conference Statement on Draft Agreement

Statement by Sir S. Y. CHUNG, Senior Unofficial Member of the Executive Council, at a Press Conference given by the Unofficial Members of the Executive Council in Hong Kong on Friday, 28th September, 1984.

The Future of Hong Kong

Last Wednesday you heard the speech of the Governor when he presented the Sino-British draft Agreement on the future of Hong Kong. Yesterday the Governor answered various questions at a press conference. The objective of this press conference is to explain why the Unofficial Members of the Executive Council are endorsing the draft Agreement and commending it to the people of Hong Kong.

(i) As you will recall, the Foreign Secretary disclosed in April this year that it would be unrealistic to have British administration in Hong Kong after 1997 and the whole of Hong Kong would have to revert to China in 1997. Subsequently, UMELCO issued a statement last May in which they reflected the anxieties and wishes of the people of Hong Kong and listed the four most important requirements which they considered to be essential in the Sino-British Agreement.

(ii) Since the publication of this statement, UMELCO have received a large number of representations from a wide cross-section of the community expressing their support. The South China Morning Post also commissioned an independent research firm to conduct a survey which showed that 82% of the community approved fully or in part of the statement. In addition, almost 70% of the elected and appointed Unofficial Members of the 18 District Boards came out in support. From this response, it is clear that a large majority of the people of Hong Kong supported the UMELCO statement as reflecting their worries and wishes.

(iv) Briefly, UMELCO's paper outlined four basic requirements which were considered to be essential for the acceptability of the Agreement. These were, first, that the Agreement must contain full details of all the systems in Hong Kong after 1997; second, that it must state that the provisions of the Basic Law will incorporate the relevant provisions of the Agreement; third, that it must provide adequate and workable assurances that the terms of the Agreement will be honoured; and finally that the rights of Hong Kong British Nationals will be safeguarded. Given the support that UMELCO have received from the community on these four basic requirements, it follows that acceptability will, to a large extent, depend on how far the Agreement meets these requirements. The Unofficial Members of the Executive Council, therefore, have assessed the acceptability of the Agreement based on these four major requirements.

(v) First, we believe that the Agreement does provide sufficient details of the administrative, legal, social and economic systems which will be maintained in the Hong Kong SAR after 1997. Some people, however, may still wish to see more precise details in certain areas. One should appreciate that it is impossible in an unique agreement such as this to define every aspect of Hong Kong life in thirteen years time. Nonetheless, we believe that the agreement does provide, with sufficient clarity and precision, a sound framework on which the people of Hong Kong can plan and build their future.

(vi) Secondly, the Agreement fully meets our second requirement in clearly stating that the future Basic Law will incorporate the relevant provisions of the Agreement.

(vii) As to the third requirement of providing adequate and workable assurances, this issue is somewhat subjective in nature, and different persons may have different assessments.

(viii) The important assurance, we believe, is the undertaking by both

Governments to implement the Joint Declaration and its Annexes which shall be equally binding. We are advised by legal experts on international affairs that an international agreement of this kind is the highest form of commitment between two sovereign states and that the Agreement is legally binding on both Governments. If there are any breaches by any one of the two signatories within the life of the Agreement, the other will be obliged to make representations in the interests of the people of Hong Kong.

(ix) Lastly, on the fourth requirement of guaranteeing the rights of British Nationals; whilst there will undoubtedly be disappointment about the termination of transmissibility in 1997, the Hong Kong BDTs will welcome the safeguard in the Agreement of their right to use British passports after 1997.

(x) On the whole, the Agreement, in our opinion, does meet substantially our major requirements. In addition, in assessing acceptability, we have considered the alternatives. What is the alternative, particularly for those who cannot leave or do not wish to leave? The alternative is no agreement and the likelihood of a unilateral declaration by China. A unilateral declaration may not contain all the details we require; may not be binding; may not provide any assurances or an undertaking about the future Basic Law. It almost certainly would not safeguard the rights of Hong Kong BDTs.

(xi) In addition, there are in the draft Agreement many positive features which are to be welcomed. For example, on the issue of an elected legislature and on land matters; on the right of Hong Kong people to travel freely in and out of the SAR; and on the various freedoms which we hold so precious in Hong Kong. The fact that this draft Agreement contains much more details than many people expected indicates the efforts of both Governments to meet the concerns of the people of Hong Kong. We therefore believe that a mutually binding agreement, freely negotiated and entered into between two sovereign states and providing a workable framework, is much to be preferred to no agreement.

(xii) The last two years have been historic years for Hong Kong: sometimes frustrating and sometimes emotional for all of us. We would like to express our admiration to the people of Hong Kong for their patience in these uncertain times. We the Unofficial Members of the Executive Council were very conscious of our responsibility in reflecting the views and wishes of the people of Hong Kong. We were united and determined in one over-riding objective; that of securing an agreement which would provide the continuation of prosperity and stability of Hong Kong well into the future.

(xiii) It is our belief that what we have today is the best agreement possible and one which we, the Unofficial Members of the Executive Council, can commend to the people of Hong Kong in good conscience. The world at large will observe the good faith with which it is implemented and we trust the people of Hong Kong can also take heart from this.

(xiv) Finally, we would like to take this opportunity to pay tribute to the Governor of Hong Kong and his team. They have worked long and hard but the Governor deserves a special mention. There have been pressures on him from all sides, but in all these the Governor has always the interest of Hong Kong at heart. The people of Hong Kong owe him a debt of deep gratitude.

This statement was delivered in Chinese as well as in English

APPENDIX VII UMELCO Position Paper of 29.11.84

Statement issued by the Unofficial Members of the Hong Kong Executive and Legislative Councils on 29th November 1984

The Future of Hong Kong

Introduction

Unofficial Members of the Executive Council and the Legislative Council* (UMELCO) have always been aware of the concern of the people of Hong Kong about their future, and on the arrival of the Governor in May 1982, the Senior Member stressed publicly the importance and urgency to the people of Hong Kong of the satisfactory resolution of this issue.

Since the Sino-British talks on the future of Hong Kong began in late 1982, UMELCO have received many representations about Hong Kong's future up to and beyond 1997.

Before the debates took place in the two Houses of British Parliament in May this year, UMELCO sent a delegation to London and issued a statement to reflect the anxieties and wishes of the people of Hong Kong: there they listed, inter alia, the four most important criteria by which the acceptability of the Sino-British Agreement to the people of Hong Kong would be judged.

Briefly, these are, first, that the Agreement must contain full details of the proposed administrative, legal, social and economic systems applicable in Hong Kong after 1997; second, that it must state that the provisions of the Basic Law will incorporate the relevant provisions of the Agreement; third, that it must provide adequate and workable assurances that the terms of the Agreement will be honoured; and fourthly, that the rights of Hong Kong British Nationals must be safeguarded.

Following its publication, UMELCO received a large number of representations from a wide cross-section of the community expressing their support. The South China Morning Post commissioned an independent research firm to conduct a survey, which showed that 82% of the community approved fully or in part of the statement. In addition, about 70% of the elected and appointed Unofficial Members of the 18 District Boards gave their support.

Three Unofficial Members went to Beijing in June this year and reflected to the Chinese leaders, including Chairman DENG, the anxieties and wishes of the people of Hong Kong. They also made three major proposals to the Chinese leaders, proposals which they considered would help to enhance the confidence of the people of Hong Kong about their future.

These three major proposals were first, that the Sino-British Agreement must be detailed and binding and the Basic Law must be based on the Agreement; second, that the people of Hong Kong should participate in the drafting of the Basic Law and those sections relating to Hong Kong's internal affairs should be drafted in the territory, and not amended except at the initiation of Hong Kong; and third, that a committee of Chinese people of international standing should be appointed by China to monitor and advise on the drafting, implementation and subsequent amendments to the Basic Law.

Their trip to Beijing also received overwhelming support from the public. A second poll taken by the same independent research firm showed that eight out of ten agreed with the UMELCO visit to Beijing; 74% supported the first, 78% the second, and 61% the third major proposal.

Acceptability of Joint Declaration

Since its publication on 26 September, 1984 all the Unofficial Members, with the exception of two Members in the Legislative Council, have endorsed and commended the Draft Agreement to the people of Hong Kong. The Draft Agreement or Joint Declaration, in their view, does meet substantially the four basic criteria contained in the UMELCO statement made in London in May. Furthermore, there are in the Joint Declaration many positive features which are to be welcomed and it contains much more detail than many people originally expected. It is a mutually binding agreement, freely negotiated and entered into between two sovereign states.

All the 18 District Boards, as well as the Urban Council and the Heung Yee Kuk, have found the draft Joint Declaration generally acceptable. Unofficial Members, in conjunction with some newspapers, commissioned an independent research firm to conduct a territory-wide survey covering 6,000 randomly selected adults above the age of 18. The results of this professional survey indicated that the majority of the people of Hong Kong found the Draft Agreement generally acceptable and that 90% of the respondents preferred the Agreement to no Agreement at all.

Whilst the draft Agreement is acceptable as a whole to the majority of the community, some concern and points of detail have been raised. In particular, there is anxiety about interference from the Chinese Government; worry about conscription in the Hong Kong Special Administrative Region; uncertainty about the acceptability to third countries of the new form of British passport; doubt about the preservation of existing human rights and personal freedoms; fear about the stationing of PLA troops in Hong Kong; resentment about the termination of transmissibility of British nationality for Hong Kong BDTs in 1997; reservations about possible incompatibility between the constitution of the People's Republic of China and the future Basic Law of Hong Kong; and concern about the faithful implementation of the Agreement and the policies of future Chinese leaders.

There are also very strong requests that the people of Hong Kong should not only be consulted on, but should actively participate in, the drafting of the Basic Law and that Hong Kong people should also sit on the Sino-British Joint Liaison Group.

The ultimate success of the Joint Declaration depends on people's confidence that it will be implemented faithfully and that matters of concern and questions of detail which have been raised are satisfactorily resolved and clarified by the two signatory Governments. Therefore, in accepting the Agreement, we urge both the British and Chinese Governments to take steps to reassure the people of Hong Kong in these respects.

Move To Representative Government

Given that Hong Kong will be a Special Administrative Region within China after 1997, with an elected legislature enjoying a high degree of autonomy, it is essential that a government structure consisting largely of local people is in place and in proper working order well before 1997. It is therefore necessary to move to a more representative form of government, transferring the powers of the present colonial government to the elected representatives of the people of Hong Kong.

In this respect, UMELCO welcome and support the basic proposals and the progressive approach outlined in both the Green and White Papers on the Further Development of Representative Government in Hong Kong. However, Unofficial Members echo the caution expressed in many quarters against any rapid or radical changes which may put at risk Hong Kong's raison d'être, that is, stability and prosperity.

Hong Kong is not an independent state and can never be. Despite the promise of a high degree of autonomy, its subsidiary relationship with the Chinese Central Government must be understood and accepted. Parliamentary government as practised in the West, featuring adversarial politics, is not necessarily suited to Hong Kong, recognising Hong Kong's unique status and the political constraints placed upon it by this status. Hong Kong must, therefore, devise its own unique style of representative government, building on the proven elements which have been responsible for Hong Kong's success.

The Next Twelve Years

Most people in Hong Kong believe that only if stability and prosperity are maintained in the period prior to 1997 can there be any hope that stability and prosperity will be continued for fifty years after 1997. It is therefore generally felt that the next twelve years will be critical and crucial to Hong Kong's continual success beyond 1997. It is essential, therefore, that all concerned, Britain, China and the people of Hong Kong, play their part in furthering Hong Kong's stability and prosperity in the next 12 years.

The main task for Her Majesty's Government in the next twelve years is to ensure a smooth transition, so that 1997 does not represent an abrupt break with the past, but the continuation of a gradual process of evolution. To allay fears of Britain losing interest in Hong Kong, it is important that HMG continue to govern Hong Kong effectively. It must demonstrate its continual determination, resolve and commitment to Hong Kong's stability and prosperity.

The Chinese Government must demonstrate its willingness to listen to the views and wishes of the people of Hong Kong. In particular, given the great significance attached by the people of Hong Kong to the Basic Law, it is hoped that, as was suggested by the Unofficial Members to the Chinese leaders in Beijing in June this year, the people of Hong Kong should be consulted on, and participate in, the drafting of the Basic Law.

As for the people of Hong Kong, they understand that the aim of the draft Agreement is the maintenance of Hong Kong's stability and prosperity, and that stability and prosperity are the product of, among other qualities, their energy, talent, industry and confidence. The Agreement provides a sound basis on which to continue to apply these attributes. The people of Hong Kong are ready and willing to take on the challenge of the new circumstances they face. Given understanding and sensitivity by the two signatory Governments and their firm commitment to implementing the Joint Declaration in both letter and spirit, the people of Hong Kong will succeed in maintaining Hong Kong's stability and prosperity, and in making the draft Agreement work.

* The Governor consults the Executive Council in the execution of the powers and authorities granted to him by Letters Patent, and acts on its advice. At present, it consists of 4 Ex-officio Members, 2 Official Members and 10 Unofficial Members, appointed by the Governor.

The Legislative Council consists of 3 Ex-officio Members, 13 Official Members and 30 Unofficial Members. It enacts legislation and controls public expenditure.

The Unofficial Members are appointed from a wide spectrum of the community. Through their membership of over 300 boards and committees, including District Boards, the Urban Council and the Heung Yee Kuk, dealing with public affairs, with educational and legal matters, and with all facets of Hong Kong's economic and social life, Unofficial Members are in touch with all sectors of the community.

Apart from their duties in the two Councils, they monitor the effectiveness of the public administration, and consider complaints by members of the public against Government, for handling which they have far wider powers than is possessed by any Ombudsman.

APPENDIX XV

Typical Complaints Cases Handled by UMELCO Office

I. Complaints/Appeals

Successful

Complaint about the Provisions of Section 54 of the Landlord and Tenant (Consolidation) Ordinance (Cap. 7) (C 1489/83)

A lawyer complained to UMELCO about the provisions of Section 54 of the Landlord and Tenant (Consolidation) Ordinance (Cap. 7). Under this Section, it was stated that where a landlord and tenant entered into a tenancy agreement after commencement of the Landlord and Tenant (Consolidation) (Amendment) Ordinance 1980, the landlord should lodge with the Commissioner of Rating and Valuation a notice in the specified form stating the rent payable by the tenant, and such notice should be signed by both landlord and tenant. Section 54(3) also stated that a landlord should not be entitled to maintain an action to recover rent stated in the notice mentioned in subsection (2) unless the notice was endorsed by the Commissioner under that subsection. The complainant said that in a recent case he acted on behalf of his client and applied to court to recover premises on the grounds that the tenant had failed to pay rent. In the first instance the case was rejected by the trial judge, on the ground that his client, the landlord, had not lodged the requisite notice with the Commissioner. However, the Ordinance made no provision for compelling the tenant to sign the notice once the latter was in possession, nor even prescribed a penalty for refusal to sign. Thus, had it not been for his successful appeal against this judgement, his client would never have been able to recover the premises. The tenant concerned would have been able to occupy the premises indefinitely without paying any rent, simply by refusing to sign the necessary notice. He therefore pointed out that Section 54 leaned unjustifiably in favour of tenants.

The complaint was referred to the Administration for consideration. Subsequently, following enactment of the Landlord and Tenant (Consolidation) (Amendment) Ordinance 1984, Section 54 of the principal ordinance was repealed on 1 July, 1984.

Appeal for Ex-gratia Compensation (C 1528/83)

Three 'kaito' operators appealed to UMELCO for ex-gratia compensation for the closing of their 'kaito' service between Tsuen Wan and Moon Tsui Tong on Tsing Yi as a result of reclamation of the typhoon shelter (Tsing Yi Area 8). They claimed they had been operating the service since 1968 with a licence issued by the Marine Department.

The case was taken up with the Administration. The Director of Lands stated that there was no provision for compensation, whether ex-gratia or otherwise, payable in respect of a business loss suffered by 'kaito' operators. The District Commissioner (Tsuen Wan), however, supported the appeal and considered that they deserved Government's special attention and fair treatment as the operators were the victims of progress and development.

Subsequently, an inter-departmental meeting was held to discuss the appeal. The appeal was then brought before the Compensation Review Committee which decided to submit it to Finance Committee for the approval of an ex-gratia disturbance allowance. Finance Committee duly approved that each of the three 'kaito' operators should be awarded an ex-gratia allowances of $16,200.

Appeal for Allocation of Hawker Pitch (C 2589/83)

A farmer at Mui Wo, Lantau Island, appealed to UMELCO for the allocation of a hawker pitch in Western District, Hong Kong.

According to him, he and his wife had been growing vegetables for more than 10 years at Mui Wo. As the Agriculture and Fisheries Department did not operate any co-operative society at Mui Wo or on Cheung Chau, he had no alternative but to sell his vegetables in Western District as an unlicensed hawker. He had been carrying on his business there for more than 10 years without interruption, except when his harvests were seriously affected by typhoons. He was aggrieved that during a hawker re-ordering exercise which took place in the District, the City Services Department did not allocate a hawker pitch to him on the ground that he was not hawking in the District during some of the surveys carried out by the Department.

The matter was taken up with the Director City Services and the Director of Agriculture and Fisheries. The latter confirmed that the client was a genuine vegetable farmer, and that in the absence of co-operative society facilities at Mui Wo, the client had been selling his farm produce in Western District and only ceased business during the typhoon season. He strongly supported the client's appeal.

Having consulted the Director of Agriculture and Fisheries and the Director of the Royal Observatory, the Director of City Services finally gave the client the benefit of the doubt and allocated a site in Western District to his wife to continue business.

Resumption of Land in the NT (C 2656)

A villager of Fanling appealed to UMELCO concerning resumption of his land and rehousing of his family. He owned two lots of building and agricultural land to be resumed by Government for public development. While his claim for compensation was being processed, he accepted a rehousing offer of two units in Choi Yuen Estate in order to surrender his land to enable early commencement of the development project. However, he was later informed by the Lands Department that Government had decided to withhold resumption of his land. At the same time, he was asked to surrender the two public housing units. He claimed the decision had caused him considerable financial loss because he had already spent a lot of money decorating the flats.

The case was taken up with the Administration. The Director of Lands explained that, while the appellant's claim for compensation was being processed, it came to light that he was an indigenous villager and so might be eligible for compensation on village removal terms. It was therefore considered prudent to exclude resumption of his building lots from Stage I clearance pending further investigation into the background of his case. Under village removal terms, the offer of compensation would normally comprise a Government-built resite house for every 0.01 acres of land surrendered, plus other ex-gratia payments such as rental allowance, removal and decoration allowance, etc. Furthermore, acquisition of lots under village removal terms should be conducted by way of negotiation rather than through resumption proceedings. The decision not to resume the appellant's building lots was made entirely in his interest so as not to prejudice his possible entitlement to more favourable terms of compensation under the village removal policy.

As clearance of the appellant's land had been held in abeyance, the Housing Department immediately notified the appellant to surrender the housing units to Government. However, in the light of the Director of Land's explanation, the Director of Housing decided not to require him to vacate the housing units, if he chose to remain, until the resite houses to be built by Government were ready for occupation.

Complaint against Double Charge for Cremation Service (C 3170)

A member of the public complained against the City Services Department for charging him twice for the cremation of his late father's body. He made a booking for cremation of the body at the Diamond Hill Crematorium, and was charged $250 for the service. However, the cremation service could not take place because typhoon signal No. 10 was hoisted that day. As a result, another booking was made, but he was required to pay another $250 before the booking could be accepted. He requested a refund of the first $250 without success; hence his appeal to UMELCO.

The matter was taken up with the Director of City Services who explained that the decision to refuse the application for refund was based on departmental procedure that required advance notice to be given for cancelling any appointment. In view of the special circumstances, he agreed to make a refund to the complainant and to two other persons whose appointments were also cancelled on the same date even though they had not taken the initiative to ask for a refund.

In the light of this complaint, the UMELCO Office suggested to the Director of City Services that he should review the relevant departmental procedure to avoid causing inconvenience to the public. Finally, the Director of City Services decided that, henceforth, no additional charge would be levied in respect of applications for change of cremation time if they were due to unforeseen or abnormal circumstances beyond the control of applicants. The decision would apply to all public crematoria.

Appeal for Reprovisioning of Covered Playgrounds (C 3968/83)

A concerned committee in Tuen Mun appealed to UMELCO for reprovisioning of covered playgrounds in primary schools in Yau Oi and On Ting Estates. Allegedly, due to unsatisfactory planning, primary school places had been under-provided in the estate and as a temporary expedient the covered playgrounds of three schools were converted into classrooms. Consequently, students had to use open spaces outside the schools for physical education lessons and for other school activities. The committee considered that this would inevitably lower the quality of education and might even put the safety of students in jeopardy.

The committee also claimed that in June, 1983, they asked the Government to provide replacement covered playgrounds as a matter of urgency and subsequently had a meeting with representatives of the Education and other Government departments. They were given the impression that their request was supported by all departments concerned, as well as the District Board, subject to provision of funds. However, since their last meeting with the Education Department in November, 1983, there seemed to be no progress; hence their appeal to UMELCO for assistance.

The case was taken up with the Director of Education who later obtained financial approval for construction of replacement playgrounds and requested the Director of Housing to proceed with the work immediately. The Director of Housing subsequently advised that all the work on the Tuen Mun covered playgrounds was in progress and was expected to be completed by November, 1984.

Licensing of Factory Canteens (C 3995/83)

A factory canteen association appealed to UMELCO against the decision of the Director of Lands not to approve their applications for modification of lease conditions to enable them to continue the operation of their canteens. They made the following representations:—

(a) Their applications for modification of leases had been rejected merely because their canteens had direct access to a road or lane. No guidance had been given to them on remedying the situation.

(b) It was too harsh to require them to pay a substantial forbearance fee for the grant of a short grace period to stop their business.

(c) They were puzzled to learn that some canteen operators in Tuen Mun had successfully applied for modification of lease conditions.

(d) As new Crown leases of land for industrial buildings had made provision for factory canteens to be operated on the ground floor, they appealed for a more lenient approach towards existing factory canteens.

The matter was taken up with the Director of Lands.

Also, questions on this issue were asked in the LegCo meeting on 21.12.83 by Hon. WONG Lam and Hon. Stephen CHEONG. In reply, the Secretary for Lands and Works indicated that the Director of Lands was normally prepared to modify conditions to accommodate canteens provided the area they occupied did not exceed 10% of the premises on the lot; was not required for vehicular access, parking, loading or unloading; and was not at or near ground floor level with exclusive direct access to the street other than for emergency use.

Following the Duty Roster Members' intervention, the Director of Lands reviewed the position and took steps to positively assist the canteen operators. The difficulties encountered by the operators were thus resolved satisfactorily.

Complaint about Health Nuisance Caused by Hospital (C 4101/83)

The residents of Small Traders' New Village in Yuen Long complained to UMELCO about the health nuisance caused by a hospital using the pavement as a refuse bin site, thus giving rise to bad smell and posing a threat to their health. They claimed they had complained to the hospital and the District Board, but to no avail; hence their complaint to UMELCO.

The complaint was taken up with the Director of New Territories Services, who confirmed that the complaint was justified. The hospital was undergoing extensive construction work and unlawfully used the pavement as a temporary refuse bin site.

After receipt of the complaint referred by UMELCO, the New Territories Services Department took immediate measures to ensure that the refuse bins were properly covered and the site was kept tidy. On the advice of the Department, a temporary bin site was subsequently located within the hospital precincts and use of the bin site on the pavement was discontinued. The hospital management had also agreed to incorporate a permanent refuse collection point within the hospital to be put in use by 1985/86.

Assistance/Advice given

Appeal for Extension of Grace Period for Processing of Sharks' Fins on Non-industrial Premises (C 2939/83)

A sharks' fins trade merchants' association appealed for an extension of the grace period for them to continue processing sharks' fins on non-industrial premises which were located mainly in Western District. Representatives of the association were interviewed by Duty Roster Members. In the meeting, the representatives claimed that the processing of sharks' fins in Western District had been in existence for many decades. Since 1980, the association had been told by the Urban Services Department that they could not continue the business on existing premises, and had been advised to look for alternative premises in industrial buildings. Seven members of the association had since found ground floor premises which were acceptable to the Urban Services Department, and had been issued Offensive Trade Licences. However, the Labour Department had refused to register them and the traders could not operate despite licences issued by the Urban Services Department.

The representatives stated that they had encountered difficulties in finding suitable alternative accommodation in or near Western District, as most real estate developers were unwilling to let out premises to them. They were, however, reluctant to move to the Kwai Chung offensive trades zone on the ground that their finished products could be contaminated by waste discharged from other factories in the same buildings or in the vicinity. They would also have difficulties in finding experienced workers who had traditionally been living in Western District. They therefore appealed for the grant of a further grace period so that they could carry on their trade until suitable premises could be located. They said they had already submitted plans to the relevant authorities for the purchase of land in Western District to construct a building to be used exclusively for processing sharks' fins.

Enquiries revealed that the trade had been tolerated by the Urban Services Department until 1980 when enforcement action was taken against these traders. However, the association had successfully sought several extensions of the grace period for operation of the trade. With the expiry of the latest extension, the Urban Services Department took a firm stand not to grant any further extension.

In view of the serious environmental nuisance the trade had caused to residents, Members decided that the appeal for extension of the grace period to continue the trade on non-industrial premises could not be pursued further. Nonetheless, they asked the Administration to give early consideration to the proposal of the association for the construction of a new building in Western District for the exclusive use of processing sharks' fins. In his reply, the Director of Lands advised that the Lands Department had tentatively identified one possible site in Kennedy Town and would, after consulting other Departments concerned, get in touch with the association to consider the matter further.

Members had also considered the possibility of permitting the association to operate the trade in industrial buildings in Western District pending the completion of the aforesaid building. Unfortunately, this was impractical for environmental reasons. In the circumstances, the association was advised to consider finding suitable accommodation in areas where offensive trades were permitted so as to continue the trade during the interim period.

Appeal against Cancellation of Ferry Service (C 3741/83)

The residents of Tai O, Tung Chung, Sha Lo Wan and three other villages on Lantau Island appealed to UMELCO against the suspension of the Central/Tai O ferry service w.e.f. 1.12.83.

Representatives of the residents were interviewed on 18.11.83 by the Duty Roster Members. After the meeting, Members decided to pay a site visit to see for themselves the operation of the service and the problems and difficulties which the villagers of Sha Lo Wan and the three neighbouring villages would face after the service was cancelled. On 22.11.83 Members, accompanied by Government officials from the Transport Branch, the Transport Department, and the District Office (Islands), visited Tai O by ferry.

On board the ferry, Members had a discussion meeting with the Government officials. They noted that the main reason for suspending the ferry service was due to its very low utilisation, resulting in a substantial loss of $1m a year to the ferry company. If a convenient timetable and a faster vessel were to be introduced, the fare would have to be increased to a level that the villagers could ill afford. The introduction of a hovercraft service would also not be financially viable. An alternative means of transport in the form of "kaitos" to the villages at Lantau was available to the residents. However, Members found that the "kaito" service could hardly be regarded as reliable. On their return to Central District by helicopter, Members took the opportunity to view the road system linking the villages to the main road on Lantau, and observed that the road network was substandard and needed urgent improvement.

In conclusion, Members did not find strong justification to intervene in the decision to cancel the ferry service, but considered that the Government should, as a matter of urgency, ensure that reliable "kaito" services would be maintained after suspension of the ferry service, possibly with the involvement of the rural committees concerned. Members also considered that, as a long-term measure, the road network should be improved up to standard.

Members raised the issue at the LegCo meeting on 7.12.83, and the Secretary for Transport undertook to ensure that the "kaito" services would be improved and that steps would be taken to improve the road system. Eventually, a new "kaito" service between Tai O and Tuen Mun via Sha Lo Wan was introduced on 16.1.84.

Fares Increase of Lantau Island Buses (C 3979/83)

Representatives of a "Committee Against Fares Increase of Lantau Island Buses" appealed to UMELCO against the introduction of the partial one-man-operation (OMO) system, which provided only one-way sectional fares, on New Lantau Bus (NLB) Route 1. This route would be introduced as from 28.5.84, for a trial period of three months.

In approving the last NLB fares increase which took effect on 20.4.83, ExCo considered that introduction of an OMO system should be pursued. This system was considered by Islands District Board and was generally agreed. As a result, it was introduced on NLB Routes 2-8. One-way sectional fares charge passengers boarding at termini full fares irrespective of where they alight. Although one-way sectional fares become progressively cheaper as the bus approaches its destination, they are more expensive than two-way sectional fares, because the latter also take into account the actual destination of the passengers, including those who board at termini. The one-way system has been adopted by both China Motor Bus and Kowloon Motor Bus, and on a number of maxicab routes.

However, NLB Route 1 which was the longest route and covered the villages of South Lantau, had remained two-man-operated (and therefore a two-way system), with conductresses selling tickets. This route was originally scheduled for OMO in April 1984. Realising that the one-way sectional fares system would mean higher fares for inter-village travel, the Transport Department envisaged that ticket machines should be installed so that two-way sectional fares could be maintained. This was opposed by NLB because of maintenance problems and because machines would be subject to theft and vandalism.

The counter-proposal by NLB called for partial implementation of the OMO system i.e., fares for half-hourly frequency services would alternate between one-way sectional fares and two-way sectional fares. The proposal, however, was opposed by the local representatives as they would have to wait for the buses of cheaper fares for one hour instead of half an hour.

Other proposals such as the ticketing system similar to that used in Japan and a simple ticketing system whereby the driver would dispense to each passenger a pre-printed ticket which would effectively deter over-riding and could be randomly checked by roving inspectors were opposed by the NLB.

The representatives of the "Committee" were interviewed by Duty Roster Members. In the light of the urgency of the matter, Members had a meeting the following day with representatives of District Office (Islands), the Transport Department and the New Lantau Bus Company, and it was agreed that the introduction of OMO system for Route 1 scheduled to be introduced on 28.5.84 should be postponed for two weeks to enable UMELCO to study the appeal closely. Following the meeting, Members paid a visit to Lantau Island on 1.6.84 to see the actual operation of the buses and discussed their findings with the Administration on 7.6.84.

As a result of Members' intervention, the Commissioner for Transport confirmed that a conscious effort would be made to provide fare sections on Route 1, at locations of substantial passenger demand.

Installation of Aluminium-framed Wind Shutters in Public Housing Estates (C 5/84)

The Preparatory Committee for Wong Tai Sin Estate Tenants' Association appealed to UMELCO for permission to install aluminium-framed wind shutters to completely enclose the balconies of public housing units. Representatives of the Committee were interviewed on 6.1.84 by Duty Roster Members.

In December, 1983, the Housing Department announced that installation of aluminium-framed wind shutters on the balconies of public housing units would be allowed, subject to the condition that one-third of the balcony should be left unenclosed. Complete enclosure was not allowed as this would contravene building regulations and more important, the Department wished to ensure adequate ventilation as many tenants used flueless gas water heaters. The representatives contended that this requirement was unreasonable because ventilation was available in twelve-person, eight-person and seven-person units through the windows in the kitchens and toilets which opened out to external air directly; in the smaller units, the problem could be solved by installing ventilation fans or by replacing the flueless heaters with balanced-flue or electric ones.

Following the interview, in order to better understand the problem, Members paid a visit to Oi Man and Wong Tai Sin Estates on 10.1.84. Following this visit, Members asked the Housing Department to consider redesigning the shutters in such a way that one-third of the balcony opening which had to be left unenclosed would be provided with some means of protection against the natural elements. A Member also asked a question on the same issue at the LegCo meeting on 11.1.84.

The Housing Department had since prepared an alternative design of wind shutter which consisted of three sliding windows on the lower part and could be readily removed, with louvres at the top to give the tenants some protection during bad weather, while ventilation to the balcony area was maintained.

Complaint about handling of proposal to set up an Off-course Betting Centre (C 159/84)

A group of residents in a public housing estate complained to UMELCO about the decision of a District Officer to refuse their request for including the proposed setting up of an Off-course Betting Centre (OCBC) in the estate as an item in the agenda of a District Board (DB) meeting.

The matter had been referred to the District Officer concerned for consideration. In his reply, the District Officer explained the various reasons why the complainants' request could not be acceded to at the time, including the fact that given the large number of residents in the district, it was not practicable for him as Chairman of the DB, to entertain direct requests from residents to include items in the agenda of DB meetings without any indication of support by DB members themselves. Having said this, he advised that since a DB member had later formally requested the item to be included in the agenda of the DB meeting, he had decided to hold a special meeting of DB unofficial members to discuss the issue. The opinions of the unofficial members expressed at the meeting would be reported to the Home Affairs Branch for consideration in due course.

The situation was explained to the complainants by UMELCO, and they were advised that should they have any further views concerning the proposed setting up of the OCBC they could consider submitting their views to the DB for consideration.

This group later approached UMELCO again to lodge another complaint about the handling of the issue by the District Officer. During their interview with Duty Roster Members, they said they realised that a special meeting had been convened by the District Officer to discuss the proposal for setting up the OCBC. However, they claimed that according to their sources, the unofficial members were not actually asked to vote on the proposal to set up an OCBC. Instead, they were only told that the Area Committee concerned did not oppose the proposal, and were asked whether 'they would respect the decision of the Area Committee'. The complainants claimed that if the case was presented to the unofficial members in such a manner, it might have unduly influenced the views of members. The complainants also requested statistics on illegal gambling activities in the district, which presumably justified setting up the OCBC.

The matter was referred to the Administration for consideration. In his reply, the District Officer advised that there was no substance in the allegation that the proposal was not properly raised and discussed. He explained that at the meeting unofficial DB members were asked to express their opinions freely on the proposal to set up the OCBC. Since the overwhelming majority of the unofficial DB members expressed no objection, they were not asked to vote on the proposal. He also advised that as the misleading allegation had appeared in a local newspaper he had taken the opportunity of the open forum at the following DB meeting to clarify the matter, and noted that there was no sign of disagreement from any DB member present at the meeting. He also advised that according to the Police, illegal gambling activities were still serious in the district and produced relevant statistics provided by the Police.

The situation was explained to the complainants and Members decided not to pursue the matter further.

Unsuccessful

Appeal for Additional Seating Capacity for Maxicabs (C 3487/83)

A public maxicab operators' association appealed to UMELCO to increase the number of passengers public maxicabs were allowed to carry.

According to representatives of the association, light buses with a seating capacity of 19 were available in the market. They had approached the Transport Department to seek a relaxation of the permitted seating capacity of public maxicabs from 14 to 19 so that they could use 19-seater light buses as maxicabs. At the interview with the Duty Roster Members, they put forward the following arguments to support their appeal:—

(a) The use of vehicles with greater seating capacity would be in line with Government's policy of economy in the use of road space.

(b) It would reduce the waiting time of commuters during peak hours.

(c) If maxicabs were allowed to carry 19 passengers, the operators would not have to apply for fare increases to cover price increases.

(d) Their appeal, if granted, would only involve minor amendment to the definition of light buses in the existing legislation.

The case was taken up with the Commissioner for Transport who refused the appeal on the following grounds:—

(a) The original intention of relaxing the dimension and weight of light buses in December, 1982, was to allow bigger and more powerful vehicles to be used so as to improve passenger comfort and road safety. It was never the intention to allow more passengers to be carried in light buses, as to do so would negate the benefits which the relaxation would bring about.

(b) A distinction has to be drawn between light buses and omnibuses. Under existing law, the main distinction is determined by the number of passengers each type of buses is allowed to carry, i.e. vehicles licensed to carry not more than 14 passengers are classified as light buses while those licensed to carry more than 14 passengers are classified as omnibuses. This has worked well and the public has no difficulty in distinguishing the two types of buses. To increase maxicabs' carrying capacity to 19 passengers would blur this distinction and create confusion and problems in the licensing and control of light buses and omnibuses.

(c) At the present moment maxicabs only form one type of light bus. There are many others, such as public light buses, private light buses, school buses, etc. which are also operating under the same passenger capacity. To relax the passenger capacity for maxicabs would mean extending it to other types of light buses. This is undesirable as other light bus operators may find other reasons to ask for yet a higher capacity and there could be no end to this.

(d) Maxicabs are mainly licensed to serve areas where the demand for public transport does not justify the introduction of a franchised bus route and where they do not compete directly with existing franchised buses. If the passenger demand on any maxicab route has increased to such an extent as to justify the increase of the maxicab passenger capacity, then consideration should be given to replacing the maxicab service with franchised bus service.

Having carefully considered the representations of the association and the objection of the Commissioner for Transport, Members decided not to pursue the case further.

Appeal for Exemption from Property Tax (C 4079/83)

The indigenous villagers of Man Yee and Sha Tsui villages affected by the High Island Water Scheme were resited to premises built by Government in Sai Kung. They were exempted from property tax for five years from 1977 to 1982. They appealed to UMELCO for a further extension of the exemption for three years up to 1985, claiming that Government had made such an offer to the villagers in April, 1982.

Following an interview with Duty Roster Members, the appeal was taken up with the Secretary for District Administration in March, 1984, for consideration as to whether there was justification to make a concession in favour of the villagers and whether the advice of ExCo should be sought for a conclusion of the long-drawn out case which the villagers had pursued with Government since 1982.

The Regional Secretary New Territories in his reply in April, 1984, stated that there was no justification for Government to extend any further concession to the villagers. As to the allegation that Government had breached its promise, the Regional Secretary pointed out that the offer was in fact repeatedly rejected by the villagers themselves. Government could not therefore be accused of breaching its promise. A binding agreement was never entered into. The Regional Secretary further stated that all resited villagers, like any other property owners in Hong Kong, were required to pay property tax in the normal way and that all of them had been paying except the Man Yee and Sha Tsui resited villagers. He therefore rejected the appeal.

Having carefully considered this appeal in the light of the comments of the Regional Secretary, Members decided not to pursue the matter further.

Complaint about Deduction of Public Assistance Entitlement (C 3155/83)
A 67-year-old recipient of public assistance complained to UMELCO that the Social Welfare Department had deducted part of his public assistance entitlement.

Enquiries made by UMELCO revealed that the complainant had actually been overpaid $10,000 in public assistance allowance between 1975-1980. The overpayment was caused by the complainant who wilfully withheld full information concerning his savings and earnings. This was referred to the Attorney General who decided not to prosecute in the first instance, provided the amounts overpaid were recovered. Having taken into account the old age of the complainant and in order not to cause him undue hardship by recovering the entire amount in one lump sum, the Director of Social Welfare decided to effect recovery by deducting $100 per month from the complainant's public assistance allowance, leaving him with $705 per month.

Taking into account the amount of deduction and the background leading to the deduction, the complainant clearly had no valid reason to lodge a complaint and his complaint was therefore considered unjustified.

Complaint about Health Hazard caused by Fast Food Shop (C 1705/84)

A man living on the third floor of a multi-storey building in Mongkok complained to UMELCO about the chimney of a licensed general restaurant situated on the ground floor of the same building. He alleged that the chimney emitted dense smoke and an unpleasant smell which found their way into his premises through the windows.

The case was referred to the Director of City Services who after investigation found that:—

(i) The "chimney" under complaint was in fact the outlet of the ventilating system of the food preparation space and the seating accommodation of the restaurant. The provision of the chimney was one of the licensing requirements and was to ensure adequate air changes for the health and comfort of staff and customers.

(ii) The fuel being used was Towngas which was smokeless and clean.

(iii) The exhaust air had been arranged to pass through grease filters and a water scrubber before being discharged. Its quality at the point of discharge was therefore similar to that emitted from an ordinary domestic kitchen.

(iv) The outlet was located at the third floor level in the open space at the rear of the restaurant. It was about three metres away from the complainant's premises. The outlet was directed to discharge upwards to avoid direct entry through any adjacent windows. The position and direction of the outlet were considered reasonable and acceptable as the open space at the rear of the building was intended for the purpose of ventilation.

(v) A subsequent visit by a senior departmental officer to the complainant's premises revealed that the exhaust from the outlet was satisfactory.

In the light of the findings of the Director, UMELCO decided not to pursue the complaint further.

II. Proposals/Suggestions

Public Assistance Scheme in Hong Kong (C 3901/83)

Two interested groups appealed jointly to UMELCO for a review of the public assistance scheme. Apparently, their approach was prompted by a case concerning a public assistance recipient who was found guilty of obtaining public assistance by deception and sentenced to four months' imprisonment. Representatives of the two groups were interviewed by Duty Roster Members, and made the following points:—

(a) The rate of assistance was pitched at an unrealistically low level.

(b) The present ceiling for 'disregarded income' under the public assistance scheme was so low that it did not provide public assistance recipients with any incentive to lead an independent life by working to augment their income.

(c) No concession in the form of a higher rate was granted to 'single-parent' families despite the hardship such families usually encountered.

(d) Delays in payments often occurred because of the cumbersome procedures involved in processing new applications or in reviewing cases.

(e) Not enough publicity was given to the scheme, particularly on the right of the public to apply for public assistance in times of need. As a result, some needy families were still reluctant to apply because they think it was shameful to do so.

The case was taken up with the Secretary for Health and Welfare. His corresponding comments were as follows:—

(a) The public assistance scheme was at first designed to maintain the living of a family at subsistence level. Other essential items were added in 1972 to make up a value based on a 'basket of goods'. This value had since been increased repeatedly in accordance with price movements as measured by the Public Assistance Index of prices. In addition, there had been three major reviews and additional benefits had since been included in the scheme, including 'long-term' and 'old age' supplements. As at December 1983, a four-member family without earnings might draw around $2,000 per month under public assistance as compared with $2,028 which was the average monthly wage in the manufacturing industries in October, 1982. Furthermore, the public assistance scheme was reviewed every year by the Government in consultation with the Hong Kong Council of Social Services.

(b) The level of disregarded earnings was being reviewed by the Director of Social Welfare to see whether there was a case for raising it.

(c) It was recognised that these families have special needs. However, their problems could not be solved by simply paying a cash grant, but by support services such as home help, etc. It had been decided to examine this in the context of the programme plan on Family Services.

(d) While the staff of the Social Welfare Department should ensure that no hardship arose due to the operation of standard procedures, certain safeguards had to be maintained or else the system could be abused. Urgent payments could be arranged for those applicants in genuine need of immediate financial assistance. It was expected that the payment system would be computerised, which might help in reducing processing time to some extent.

(e) Publicity through posters, leaflets and media releases were given to the scheme, and statistics would indicate that there was increasing awareness by those in the vulnerable categories. Social workers were also deployed to help those, like street sleepers, who would be less informed in applying for public assistance.

Apart from the foregoing, Members also noted that the public assistance rate had been increased by about 13% with effect from 1.12.84.

The situation was explained to the appellants. It was also noted that the review of disregarded income and assistance to 'single-parent' families was in progress and further development would be closely monitored by UMELCO.

III. Requests

Request for Assistance in Applying for Public Housing (C 3283/83)

A disabled person approached UMELCO for assistance in his application for public housing for his family. His left leg became defective as a result of polismyietitis at childhood and he had had to use crutches since. He and his family members had been granted a site at Ha Kwai Chung Temporary Housing Area (THA) in January, 1982, on compassionate grounds, but the client found he was unable to adjust to the living conditions in a THA, in particular to the public latrine and bathing facilities. He therefore requested assistance in obtaining a self-contained flat that would suit his needs.

The case was referred to the Director of Housing who was not able to give any help to the client as the family had not fulfilled the residential-majority eligibility criterion. He then referred the case to the Director of Social Welfare to see if the client could be granted rehousing on compassionate grounds. After consideration, the Director of Social Welfare agreed that the client should be allocated a flat at Lai Kok Estate under the compassionate rehousing quota.

Request for Early Establishment of Third University (C 1247/84)

At the UMELCO meeting with unofficial members of Tuen Mun District Board in May, 1984, a member of the Board urged early establishment of a third university to be located in Tuen Mun.

The matter was taken up with the Administration. The Secretary for Education and Manpower replied that Government was considering the advice of the University and Polytechnic Grants Committee that a third university should be built in the 1990's. However, it was unlikely that a firm decision could be made before the middle of 1985.

Nevertheless, it was acknowledged that building a university required a long lead time, and to ensure that planning could proceed without delay, once a decision had been made in favour of a third university, Government had set up a working party to identify suitable sites. The working party had almost completed its deliberations and Bowring Camp at Tuen Mun was identified as one of the shortlisted sites. However, the location of a third university would have to be based on considerations other than the immediate needs of the region or district concerned.

IV. Outside UMELCO Jurisdiction

Complaint against Building Development Department (C 3729/83)

A building contractor of a Government building project complained to UMELCO about re-entry of the building site by Government. In addition, he made the following allegations:—

(a) There were contradictions and inconsistencies in the provisions of the contract and approved plans for the structural works.

(b) Delays in other engineering works for which he was not responsible had caused serious disruption to the building work.

(c) Too many variation orders were issued, resulting in delays to the project.

The complainant also alleged that because Government had failed to make full payment to the company for the work done he was not able to pay his workers.

The complaint was taken up with the Director of Building Development who refuted the allegations and stated that his Department had at all times acted in accordance with the conditions of contract and rendered every possible assistance to the company concerned and would try its best to bring the matter to a speedy conclusion. The Director further advised that the complainant had applied for arbitration on time for completion and valuation of work done. In view of the course taken by the complainant, the case become sub judice, and could not be pursued further by UMELCO.

Appeal for Arrears of Wages (C 3726/83)

Some 200 drivers of a transportation company approached UMELCO for assistance in claiming arrears of wages from their employer and their representatives were interviewed by Duty Roster Members.

In appealing to UMELCO, the representatives stated that all the drivers were laid off on 21.10.83 and had not received their wages for October, 1983, their overtime pay, reimbursement of tunnel tolls and parking fees, amounting to $600,000. They claimed that they were asked by the Company to return to the head office on 25.10.83 to collect their wages, but when they turned up they were told that no payment could be made to them as the bank accounts of the company had been frozen allegedly by the Official Receiver; hence their appeal to UMELCO for assistance.

Although the case was outside UMELCO jurisdiction, enquiries were made with the Labour Department. The Commissioner of Labour advised that the receivers of the insolvent company had not been able to satisfy themselves that the company should be held liable for the payment of the drivers' wages before an application could be made to the Court for release of such payments. The case was then referred to the Director of Legal Aid to consider if legal aid could be granted to the drivers to pursue their claims. The Director had since been in touch with the drivers and succeeded in applying for a court order for winding up the company. The Official Receiver was appointed as the liquidator.
