Dear Charles,

Anglo-German Summit, Bonn: 16-17 September 1986

Living Accommodation

A decision has to be made as to where the Prime Minister should be accommodated. The recommendation is that she should stay at the Ambassador's Residence. It is proposed that the Foreign Secretary should also stay there, the Defence Secretary and his staff with the Minister, Mr Pattie - if he goes - with the Head of Chancery, and the other senior members of the delegation with senior members of the Embassy. The Chief Press Officer will have a suite at the Steigenberger Hotel, where all others will be accommodated.

You of course know the scene well enough, but for the record, the driving times between the residencies, hotel and Federal Chancellery are as follows:-

HMA's Residence	-	Federal Chancellery	10-15 minutes
Minister's Residence	-	Federal Chancellery	15 minutes
Hotel Steigenberger	-	Federal Chancellery	5 minutes (driving or walking)
Hotel Steigenberger	-	Residence	15 minutes

If it is agreed that the Prime Minister should stay at the Ambassador's Residence, a suggested allocation of the accommodation would be:-

The Prime Minister	-	Main Guest Bedroom on first floor, facing the river
Foreign Secretary	-	Blue Room, second floor, facing the river
Mr Powell	-	Red Room, second floor
Mr Galsworthy	-	Brown Room, second floor
Detective (PM)	-	Pink Room, second floor

Working Accommodation

The Germans will provide four offices in the Federal Chancellery for use by the Delegation during the Summit. Direct dial telephones are being arranged by Mr C K Davies, Cabinet Office. In the evening and early morning the Number 10 and FCO Private Offices will be established at HM Ambassador's Residence. An Embassy engineer will be available to connect and disconnect Brahms.

I should be grateful to know if you agree with the above proposals.

Yours ever,

Colin Budd
